

صباحنا من الامم

Herald INTERNATIONAL Tribune

PUBLISHED WITH THE NEW YORK TIMES AND THE WASHINGTON POST

London, Tuesday, December 6, 1994

No. 34,764

Vietnamese In America Are Looking Homeward

By Seth Mydans
New York Times Service

DALAT, Vietnam — She could not stop sampling the tropical fruits, the steamed snails, the candied plums. She was enthralled by the children, with their red scarves, trooping along the dirt paths to school. Almost every conversation seemed to end in laughter; she was home, and she was happy. "This is where I want to raise my family," she exclaimed.

Nearly 20 years after she fled the fall of Saigon with her parents, Camelia Ngo, now a thoroughly American 28-year-old lawyer, has decided to return to Vietnam.

She is not alone. As one of the most dramatic refugee tides in modern times draws to a close, a new generation of Vietnamese raised in the United States is heading home in small but growing numbers to do business and sometimes, like Miss Ngo, to stay on.

With the lifting of the American trade embargo in February, as many as 10,000 Vietnamese a month are returning for visits to a country hungry for their cash but often suspicious of their Western ways.

They are greeted by frequent inefficiency, red tape and primitive working conditions, even while fending off a continuing backlash at home among many older refugees who oppose contacts with the Communist nation they fled.

These homeward journeys, coming near the end of an exodus of some 800,000 people to the United States, are a crossroads in Vietnamese-American relations.

Although there are no official estimates, Miss Ngo is a member of an emerging new group, young Vietnamese-American professionals who see Vietnam as a land of business opportunity as well as roots: the first optimistic generation of refugees, without the scars of war and loss their parents carry.

"I know the image of Vietnam is always associated with war, but I was too young for those memories," Miss Ngo said. "All I remember about my country is how beautiful it is."

Last month, Miss Ngo was on her second visit to Vietnam, negotiating projects for her Oakland law firm, the Miller Group, which is acting as a middleman for foreign investors.

She was also preparing to take up residence here next year as her company's representative, along with her Vietnamese-American husband, Michael Nguyen, a mechanical engineer.

"We want to do business here, but business is mainly our means of getting here," she said as she sat at a tiny outdoor food stall in the small mountain city of Da Lat, surrounded by the hustle and banter of the marketplace, eating a grilled banana sweetened with coconut milk.

"This is why Michael and I want to come back to Vietnam, to live the simpler life our parents lived," she said. "We want our children to grow

See VIETNAM, Page 8

Presidents Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia, Bill Clinton and Leonid Kuchma of Ukraine and Prime Minister John Major of Britain signing the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty on Monday in Budapest during the European summit conference.

Business Fears Complacency by EU

Corporate Chiefs Say Recovery May Derail Essen Summit

By Alan Friedman
International Herald Tribune

PARIS — As government leaders prepare for the European Union summit meeting in Essen on Friday and Saturday, many leading business people fear that the politicians will fail to take action to make Europe more competitive and to tackle the jobs crisis.

Corporate leaders worry that the meeting will produce more rhetoric than substance.

A common theme that emerged in interviews with the top executives of Barclays Bank, IBM Europe, Imperial Chemical Industries, Mercedes-Benz, and Olivetti was that Europe's economic recovery risks making political leaders too complacent.

As a result, they said, governments may be less likely to push for urgent reform measures such as deregulating large chunks of their economies or slashing public spending to reduce budget deficits.

"We are approaching recovery perhaps too soon, and this might dilute some efforts and take away some of the willingness and aggressiveness to tackle problems," said Helmut Werner, chairman of Mercedes-Benz.

All of Europe's governments share the problems of high unemployment, future pension costs and a lack of competitiveness with other parts of the world, said Martin Taylor, chief executive of Barclays Bank in London. Yet Mr. Taylor said he was worried that government leaders would not work for the huge structural adjustments that are needed "because the phase of the economic cycle has moved to a more benign one."

Sir Denis Henderson, chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries of Britain, warned against "complacency based on recovery and growth." He added that

First of two articles

"when things get easier, people back off on reform."

Sir Denis said he feared the Essen summit meeting would be characterized by political posturing on issues such as expanding the EU to include Eastern European members and the debate about federalism in Europe.

Among the other themes stressed by the businessmen in interviews were these:

- EU governments have not done enough to make the single market for goods, services and capital a reality.
- It will not be possible for Europe to create new jobs in the future unless EU

See EUROPE, Page 8

Clinton NATO Vision Leaves Yeltsin Cold

Russia's Mistrust of Expansion Plan Muddles European Security Talks

By Elaine Sciolino
New York Times Service

BUDAPEST — President Bill Clinton on Monday laid out his vision for the future of European security, but President Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia declared that NATO should not admit new members and that the United States should not be allowed to dominate the world.

Mr. Yeltsin's Cold War-era rhetoric, coupled with scornful denunciations by President Alija Izetbegovic of Bosnia about the world's failure to end the war raging in his country, marred the opening of the two-day, 52-nation summit meeting here.

They also overshadowed a watershed event in the history of arms control, the formal accession by Ukraine to the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty, which will allow for the implementation of the START-1 treaty and eliminate more than 9,000 warheads of the United States and the former Soviet Union.

The meeting was intended initially as a sort of heads-of-state love-fest to transform the unwieldy and powerless Cold War organization, known as the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, into a more serious place for resolving regional conflicts and preventing them from starting in the first place.

In particular, the Clinton administration had wanted the meeting to train the spotlight on an American initiative to speed up NATO expansion and strengthen the larger all-European group.

But that was before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization decided not to launch air strikes to help protect the Bosnian city of Bihac from Serbian attacks and before Foreign Minister Andrei V. Kozyrev of Russia embarrassed the United States and its European allies in Brussels last week by unexpectedly refusing to sign on to their Partnership for Peace plan for cooperation with NATO.

On Monday, like a spoilsport at a family reunion, Mr. Yeltsin seized the moment to remind his European and North American partners gathered in the Budapest Convention Center of Russia's preeminent role in making foreign policy on the European Continent.

Obviously angered by the NATO decision last week to begin defining the conditions for NATO membership, Mr. Yeltsin lashed out at those nations that would leave him out of what the Americans call "the new security architecture" for Europe.

"Why are you sowing the seeds of mistrust?" Mr. Yeltsin asked the 16 NATO nations about the prospect of increasing the alliance's membership, adding that in the aftermath of the Cold War, "Europe is in danger of plunging into a cold peace."

In a thinly veiled criticism of what Russia perceives as the emergence of the United States as the only global superpower, Mr. Yeltsin said, "History demonstrates that it is a dangerous illusion to suppose that the destinies of continents and of the world community in general can somehow be managed from one single capital. Blocs and coalitions can provide no security guarantees."

Although the United States and its NATO partners insist that no European nations would be prevented from eventually joining NATO, a point Mr. Clinton reiterated Monday, both NATO and Moscow know that Russia remains the perceived enemy in Europe and certainly would be at the bottom of the list.

Mr. Yeltsin made that point about NATO expansion when he said, "We hear explanations to the effect that this is allegedly the expansion of stability just in case there are undesirable developments in Russia."

The hurried appearance of Mr. Clinton at the opening of the two-day conference did not bridge the expanding gap between the two countries.

"NATO will not automatically exclude any nation from joining," Mr. Clinton said. "At the same time, no country outside will be allowed to veto expansion."

As for the broader European security group, Mr. Clinton said that it should be "our first flexible line of defense against ethnic and regional conflicts," adding that "by focusing on human rights, conflict prevention and dispute resolution, the CSCE can help prevent future Bosnias."

But Mr. Clinton did not define the structural flaws in NATO and the security conference in connection with the tragedy in Bosnia. When Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher was asked to define those flaws in a news conference on Sunday, he spoke less about architecture than he did about the lack of political will.

Like Mr. Clinton, other heads of state and government, including Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, President Francois Mitterrand of France and Prime Minister John Major of Britain, called for a settlement at the peace table as the only way to end the Bosnian war. Although Mr. Clinton urged the summit meeting to act on "the lessons of Bosnia," neither he nor his European counterparts made any new

See SUMMIT, Page 8

To Fight Police Harassment, An '89 Activist Sues Beijing

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

BEIJING — A leading Chinese dissident sued the government on Monday, demanding that a Beijing court halt what he described as intense police surveillance and stop security officials from following him.

"Especially in the last few days the police have started following me everywhere, and really close behind me so that every one of my actions is affected," said the activist, Wang Dan, 25.

The former student leader of the 1989 pro-democracy demonstrations that were crushed by the army said he decided to file a lawsuit in a Beijing court to try to stop the harassment.

"They even follow me to the swimming pool and watch while I go swimming," said Mr. Wang, who has been a freelance writer since serving a prison term for "counter-revolution."

Mr. Wang said he was unaware of a reason for the tighter surveillance, noting that he had not changed his daily activities and had made no attempts recently to contact foreigners or foreign reporters.

In a sign that the police still are keeping a close watch on Mr. Wang and tapping his phone line, the police called him just a few minutes after he told The Associated Press about the suit. They later visited him in his home and took a copy of the suit, Mr. Wang said.

Mr. Wang's suit is unlikely to even be considered by a Chinese court. In recent years, other activists have sought court action to try to force the government to treat them fairly under the law, whether it was to get a passport or to fight an arbitrary job transfer. However, not a single suit has been accepted for a court hearing.

The police last detained Mr. Wang in August, taking him away for questioning for seven hours before releasing him. He had been held for 12 hours a few days earlier after the police seized him during an interview with American journalists and told him to stop complaining about the surveillance.

"I believe the Beijing Public Security Bureau is invading my right to privacy as a private citizen and is hampering my right to personal freedom, and I am therefore appealing to the courts," he said in his formal complaint.

"I hope the court will decide according

See CHINA, Page 8

Latins Warm to NAFTA, but U.S. Cools to Expansion

By Tod Robberson
Washington Post Service

SAN PEDRO DE LAS COLONIAS, Mexico — About six years ago, this windswept dust bowl of a town had a ready response when the presidential candidate Carlos Salinas de Gortari arrived to deliver his campaign message of economic reform, elimination of trade barriers and other measures to redirect Mexico's state-driven economy.

"They ran me out of town," Mr. Salinas recalled recently. "They threw tomatoes at me."

Today, San Pedro represents one of the success stories that Mexican supporters of the North American Free Trade Agreement repeatedly cite. Employment is up, commerce is up, American-owned manufacturing plants are moving in, and hope and optimism are in the air. When Mr. Salinas returned here in September to say good-bye as his six-year presidential term came to a close, the streets were so packed with supporters — tens of thousands of them — that his motorcade was barely able to squeeze through.

As NAFTA nears its first anniversary on Jan. 1, Latin American and Caribbean leaders are pressing for inclusion in the same trading bloc that appears to have vastly broadened Mexico's economic horizon and opened a new range of employment possibilities for its people.

But even while leaders from around the region gathered in Mexico City to toast Mr. Salinas's economic successes and welcome the newly inaugurated president, Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de Leon, the United States appeared to be growing cooler by the day to expanding NAFTA-like trade ties farther to the south. The intense congressional debate about tariff lowering under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade served as a warning of what Latin American heads of state can expect from the United States when they gather at the Summit of the Americas in Miami on Friday and Saturday.

U.S. officials expect that at a minimum, Latin American leaders will press President Bill Clinton to commit his administration to a firm Western Hemisphere trade-preference policy around which regional blocs can be established.

Virtually every hemispheric leader going to the Miami

See NAFTA, Page 8

A Scrappy 'Noncontender'

Delors Tests Political Waters in France

By Joseph Fitchett
International Herald Tribune

PARIS — He's not a candidate, he insists, but Jacques Delors, the European Commission president, is finding time these days to get away from Brussels and meet with influential French people, taking the political temperature in a suddenly wide-open presidential election.

His platform is a new book, "A Man's Unity," a 400-page interview with a political scientist in which Mr. Delors tells what he saw during his decade as point man on European integration. The tale offers compelling insights about everything from information superhighways to his Catholic faith.

He talks even better. Candor, bursts of good sense and passionate sense of duty, just glimmers on the page, become palpable when Mr. Delors faces audiences on the book circuit.

Untested in electoral battle, Mr. Delors, 69, has started sounding like a formidable campaigner — in contrast to his record, even as a scrappy Socialist finance minister before being shipped to Brussels, for fighting behind the scenes and keeping buttoned-up in public.

The suit of suits, the man who looks like

See DELORS, Page 8

Kiosk

Car Ferry Safety Under UN Study

LONDON (Reuters) — Members of the UN International Maritime Organization's safety committee decided Monday to order a panel of experts to draft new safety rules for the world's car ferries to try and prevent disasters like the sinking of the Estonia, which claimed 913 lives, in September.

Book Review Page 4

Dow Jones	Trib Index
Down 3.70	Up 0.86%
3741.82	112.28

The Dollar	Mon. close	previous close
DM	1.5717	1.58
Pound	1.557	1.551
Yen	100.355	100.605
FF	5.395	5.421

8-Lane Threat to a Wonder of the World

Guardians of the Pyramids Foresee a Road to Urban Sprawl

By John Lancaster
Washington Post Service

CAIRO — Eroded by time, plundered by grave robbers, assaulted by air pollution, the pyramids have taken their knocks over the centuries. But now they may be facing the gravest threat of all: urban sprawl.

To the alarm of archaeologists and UN cultural authorities, the Egyptian government is building an eight-lane highway across the desert plateau that includes the site of the three pyramids of Giza, one of the world's most famous tourist destinations and also the home of the Sphinx. Critics say a land rush is sure to follow.

The new highway, if completed as planned, will pass within about three kilometers (two miles) of the Giza pyramids. It violates both Egyptian law and an international convention protecting such globally significant sites, according to Said Zulficar, director of safeguarding activities of the cultural heritage division of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Other encroachments, he said in a telephone interview from Unesco headquarters in Paris, include high-rise buildings, housing projects, two garbage dumps, military barracks and a military factory "belching filthy black smoke."

"The problem is you turn a pristine desert archaeological site into an urban site like the Acropolis in Athens, which is surrounded by buildings," he said. "There will be hotels, restaurants, gas stations. It will lose its uniqueness."

Haphazardly and often illegally built apartment houses already block the pyramids from view on the main road approaching from central Cairo. A warren of tourist shops sprawls to within a few hundred meters of the Sphinx.

The new road, a bypass route on Cairo's southern side, would, if completed, cut off the last expanse of empty desert that remains contiguous with the Giza pyramids, which already are hemmed in by development on two sides. Mr. Zulficar said that when he raised the matter with Egypt's culture minister and other senior officials, they told him they were unaware of the intrusion and would consider options for stopping it.

"Nothing is planned. It is a catastrophe," said Mahmoud Hosny, a well-to-do dentist who owns an Arabian-horse farm in the area and took a reporter on a driving tour recently. "I want you to look at this and cry for the future of our country."

Mr. Hosny said he had campaigned against the project for four years, to no avail, until one of his patients agreed to bring it to the attention of Unesco. The

See PYRAMIDS, Page 8

Newsstand Prices

Bahrain	0.800 Din	Malta	25 c.
Cyprus	0.100 Din	Nigeria	110.00 Naira
Denmark	14.00 D.Kr.	Norway	15 N.Kr.
Finland	11 F.M.	Oman	1.000 Rials
Gibraltar	0.85	Qatar	8.00 Rials
Great Britain	0.85	Rep. Ireland	0.70 R.
Egypt	0.500	Saudi Arabia	9.00 R.
Jordan	1 J.D.	South Africa	0.6 R
Kenya	0.150	U.A.E.	8.50 Dirh
Kuwait	500 Fils	U.S. MIL. (Eur.)	1.10
		Zimbabwe	210.00

Shrugging Off NATO Attack, Serbs Repair Airfield

By John Pomfret
Washington Post Service

UDBINA, Croatia — Two weeks after NATO warplanes launched the biggest air raid in the history of the 45-year-old alliance, their target, the Udbina airfield, has been repaired and possibly is in use, according to UN and Serbian military officers.

Although work crews, front-end loaders, dump trucks and paving machines could be seen bustling busily about the small air base, cratered by NATO bombs, "you could land on it and take off today if you wanted to," said a UN officer with direct knowledge of the facility. "The Serbs have fixed it up pretty good."

While UN officers said they could not confirm that Serbian Army helicopters were using the airport, they spotted two helicopters near the airfield during the weekend, flying over Kordun, 16 kilometers (10 miles) north of the airstrip.

One officer concluded that the airfield "must be busy again." Others said the helicopters, both fitted with missile systems for use in fighting around the Bihac pocket in adjacent northwestern Bosnia, could have come from several Serbian military bases in the region.

Nikola Simjanovic, a spokesman for the Croatian Serbian army, asserted: "Udbina is already working again."

That could not be confirmed. Udbina, 65 kilometers west of the Adriatic Sea, is the biggest airfield in the region and is controlled by the Croatian Serbs, who occupy 27 percent of Croatia.

The raid on Udbina was aimed at changing Serbian behavior following three Serbian bombing raids that originated from the airfield and targeted Bosnian Muslim areas in the Bihac pocket. Serbian jets dropped napalm and cluster bombs during one attack.

But UN officers said they believed the rapid move to repair the airfield and the continued use of helicopter gunships in the area by both Croatian and Bosnian Serbian forces indicated that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had not gotten its message across.

Serbian officers, when asked, appeared unfazed by the incident. While they mourned the loss of at least two Serbian soldiers killed in the airfield attack, they showed little evidence of willingness to change their ways.

"It's being prepared to be used when we're ready," Mr. Simjanovic said. "The UN and NATO don't have any right to stop us."

Colonel Milan Tregovic, an officer in the region, said: "It was a little action. It gave us a little headache, nothing more."

NATO's strike at Udbina, followed on Nov. 23 by two more raids against Serbian anti-aircraft systems, touched off a Serbian roundup of UN personnel and triggered fears among UN officers that the Serbs would retaliate by killing UN soldiers. Although Serbian forces on Sunday released two convoys of British and Dutch peacekeepers, totaling 53 soldiers, about 350 UN soldiers remain under detention.

The size of the raid and the debate over its efficacy cut to the heart of a major issue dividing UN commanders in the former Yugoslav republics, who are British and French, and NATO's American commanders. The issue focuses on how much force should be used against the Serbs to make them sit up and pay attention.

U.S. military officers have argued that as long as the Serbs are treated to "pinprick" strikes, they will continue to ignore the will of NATO and the United Nations. French and British commanders argue that if NATO's response is too strong, it could trigger a violent Serbian response.

"If we press them too hard without giving them any hope of any way out, then they will go for a sort of collective suicide," said Lieutenant General Bertrand de Lapresle, French commander of UN forces in the Balkans.

In their collective suicide, he said, they will be most dangerous to the UN mission here.

Since the Udbina and Nov. 23 strikes, General de Lapresle and Lieutenant General Michael Rose, British commander of UN forces in Bosnia, have thwarted several attempts by NATO to wipe out Serbian anti-aircraft systems. The UN commanders also tried to convince Secretary-General Boutros Boutros Ghali last week that NATO's enforcement of a "no-fly zone" over Bosnia should be suspended indefinitely.

While they succeeded in halting NATO overflights for about one week, the flights resumed on Saturday. The Bosnian Serbs reiterated their opposition to the missions, and NATO threatened to hit the anti-aircraft sites if their radars locked onto NATO planes.

WORLD BRIEFS

PLO Warns Israel on Altering Pact

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Senior PLO officials said Monday that Israel would destroy its peace agreement with the Palestinians if it made changes in the accord without the approval of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Israeli ministers said Sunday that the next steps toward peace under the 1993 Israeli-PLO Declaration of Principles, including the withdrawal of the Israeli Army from the occupied West Bank, might need to be changed to protect Jewish settlers from guerrilla attacks by opponents of the peace deal.

Ahmed Korei, head of economics for the Palestinian Authority, which administers self-rule in Gaza and Jericho, said a one-sided change "means Israel will destroy the DOP agreement." Mr. Korei, who is known as Abu Alaa, added: "If there is any request to amend the accord, it should be done through an agreement between the two sides."

Irish Coalition Talks Are Suspended

DUBLIN (Reuters) — Talks between the Fianna Fail and Labor parties on forming a new government were abruptly suspended Monday amid new allegations over a child sex-abuse case that brought down the previous government.

The suspension cast doubt on the likelihood of a new Fianna Fail-Labor coalition being announced when Parliament reconvenes on Tuesday to name a successor to Albert Reynolds, who was forced to resign over the case three weeks ago.

The report that triggered the suspension alleged that Fianna Fail had tried to cover up some of the background in the sex-abuse case involving a Norbertine priest, Father Brendan Smyth. The report, in the Irish Times, suggested that Mr. Reynolds and his Fianna Fail party had misled Parliament over the conduct of the former attorney general, Harry Whelehan, in the case.

Maoist Bomb Wounds Indian Official

HYDERABAD, India (Reuters) — Maoist guerrillas wounded a state official in a bomb attack Monday in the southern Indian state of Andhra Pradesh, and two people were reported killed in clashes as voting for the state assembly ended. Results will be announced Dec. 9.

Officials said that about half of the 20 million people eligible to vote in 153 of the 294 state assembly seats had done so. But a majority of the rural voters stayed away, fearing reprisals by the Maoist People's War Group, which vowed to disrupt the polls.

Some officials said a better-than-expected turnout in the Maoist stronghold had improved the chances for Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao's Congress (I) Party, which holds power. The police said the voting was largely peaceful despite the Maoist threats.

Party Joins Japan Opposition Bloc

TOKYO (AP) — In another step in Japan's political transformation, a Buddhist-backed party ended its 30-year history Monday by dissolving itself to join a united opposition.

Like all opposition groups except the Communists, the centrist Clean Government Party has agreed to join in the inauguration of the New Frontier Party on Dec. 10 to challenge the government of Prime Minister Tomichi Murayama.

Most national legislators in the Clean Government Party will join the New Frontier Party. Party members in local legislatures will stay separate from the New Frontier Party and form a new party. The Clean Government Party was founded in 1964 as an official arm of the Buddhist lay organization Soka Gakkai. They officially separated in 1970.

Spain Keeps Up Gibraltar Controls

MADRID (AP) — Spanish authorities said Monday that police controls that have caused long delays in traffic to and from Gibraltar would continue as part of a crackdown on drug and cigarette smuggling from the disputed rock.

Gibraltar officials criticized the Spanish police action last week, saying it was a political move prior to the annual British-Spanish talks on the status of Gibraltar.

Foreign Minister Javier Solana Madariaga and his British counterpart, Douglas Hurd, are to meet in London this month for the ninth round of annual talks since both countries agreed in November 1984 to discuss issues involving Gibraltar.

For the Record

Swedish police were hunting Monday for a 23-year-old Chilean and his accomplices after a gunman ran amok at a Stockholm nightclub this weekend, killing three people. (Reuters)

French authorities freed a Libyan national held in an inquiry into the 1989 bombing of a French airliner over Niger in which 171 people died, judicial sources said Monday. Ali Omar Mansour, described by the Interior Ministry as an intelligence agent, had been detained in Paris since Thursday. (Reuters)

Prime Minister Rafik Hariri of Lebanon withdrew his resignation Monday after crisis talks with Syrian leaders, a government minister said. (AFP)

TRAVEL UPDATE

Where Britons Care Least to Visit

LONDON (Reuters) — British tourists rate India and Vietnam among the most dangerous places to visit, and many are still paranoid about traveling to Florida, according to a survey released Monday.

Fifty-nine percent of 1,000 people questioned in October said they were afraid of going to India and Vietnam, and 41 percent said they would be worried about traveling to Florida. "Publicity about plague in India and isolated incidents of kidnapping and murder in other countries seems to be bringing out the paranoia in British holidaymakers," said Sarah Joannides, deputy underwriting manager for the travel insurance company Home & Overseas, which conducted the poll.

Colombia, Cuba, Israel and Bolivia were also high on the list of destinations considered as dangerous, while Hong Kong, Greece, Japan, Australia and New Zealand were considered among the safest countries to visit.

Funeroscope, a high-tech theme park near Poitiers, France, will no longer close during the winter, joining Euro Disneyland as a year-round attraction. Funeroscope, which expects to draw 2.5 million visitors this year, had closed for 10 weeks during the winter, but will remain open, its president, René Monory, announced Monday. (AP)

A record 2.1 million tourists will visit Israel this year because of the Middle East peace process, the Tourism Ministry said, compared with 1.9 million last year. (AFP)

The Merseyside Maritime Museum, which is devoted to examining the international slave trade, has opened in Liverpool, nearly two centuries after the trade was abolished in Britain. The museum highlights the social and economic impact of the slave trade from the 16th to the 20th century, focusing on the 18th century, "the golden age" of commercial Liverpool. (AFP)

Russian Security Team Pressures the Chechens

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

GROZNY, Chechnya — Russia stepped up pressure Monday on Chechnya by flying three top ministers to a town near the rebel region's border and accusing its leaders of harboring international terrorists.

Defense Minister Pavel S. Grachev, Interior Minister Viktor F. Yerin and Sergei Stepashin, head of the counterintelligence service, flew to Mozdok in North Ossetia, an autonomous region bordering Chechnya in southern Russia.

General Grachev admitted Monday that Russian jets had attacked airfields in Chechnya. He told the Itar-Tass press agency that the raids last week were carried out on airfields where aircraft that had bought weapons and mercenaries to Chechnya were parked.

Russia had previously denied military involvement in the Chechen conflict, although Russian troops have been massing near the mainly Muslim area that declared independence in 1991.

In the regional capital, Grozny, the Chechen leader, Dzhokhar Dudayev, said he was ready for talks with Russia but would not negotiate with opposition groups that have been fighting his forces.

"I always was and still remain in favor of negotiations on an equal basis with the Russian leadership at the corresponding level," Itar-Tass quoted Mr. Dudayev as saying.

A Russian government information center, set up for the Chechnya crisis, increased pressure on Mr. Dudayev by accusing him of turning Chechnya into a training ground for international terrorist groups.

It said Mr. Dudayev was "recruiting foreign mercenaries for possible acts of sabotage and terrorism," but gave no details. President Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia threatened last week to impose a state of emergency after a flare-up in the fighting.

The Russian Defense Ministry has not said how many of its troops are in the area. But most of the Russian forces, including about 260 tanks and armored vehicles, are concentrated in a zone between North Ossetia and Ingushetia, which borders Chechnya.

Chechen volunteers on the road from North Ossetia to Grozny have begun throwing up makeshift anti-tank barriers.

(Reuters, AP)

A group of Chechen volunteers in Grozny learning how to use a rocket-propelled grenade on Monday as tension was rising between Russia and the breakaway area.

Serb Force Pours Fire On Isolated Bihac Post

Washington Post Service

VELIKA KLADUSA, Bosnia — Croatian Serbian forces, firing tank and artillery shells every 45 seconds for at least several hours, blasted remaining Muslim positions in the northern Bihac pocket Monday and UN officials said they believed the fall of the pocket's northern approach was near.

Launching artillery, rocket-propelled grenade, mortar and tank attacks from three directions, Croatian Serbian gunmen, manning batteries in Croatian Serbian territory and inside Bosnia itself, hit Muslims positions throughout Velika Kladusa.

Huge explosions rocked the area as Serbian tanks and howitzers echoed throughout the hilly zone. Lacking heavy weapons, the Muslims fought back with small arms.

Croatian Serbs have taken enough of the territory that they began the first steps toward installing Muslim renegade Fikret Abdic to power. On Monday, Mr. Abdic made his first public appearance inside Bosnia since Muslim government troops quelled his uprising in August. Mr. Abdic, the biggest chicken farmer in the former Yugoslavia, led a rebellion against the Sarajevo government for more than a year.

UN officials said the renewed fighting indicated that the Croatian Serbian army has decided to throw more armor at the remaining Muslim defenders in the northern section of the Bihac enclave in an attempt to return Mr. Abdic to power and begin the process of connecting Croatian Serbian territory to Bosnian Serbian turf via the roads and rail link bisecting Bihac.

"They don't want to talk — they want to kill," said one UN officer in the region, who was monitoring the fighting from Croatian Serbian territory.

A UN spokesman said the UN mission had received reports that Serbs were using incendiary shells and had torched numerous houses in Velika Kladusa in an attempt to burn out the last of the pro-government Muslim fighters. Blazes illuminated the night as the Serbian assault raged.

"It's an indication of the ferocity of the fighting," said Paul Risley, a spokesman for the UN Protection Force. "It is malicious damage."

Mr. Risley said UN military officials have noticed more Croatian Serbian artillery heading toward the battleground, leading them to conclude that the ebb was near for Velika Kladusa.

In the south and west of the pocket meanwhile, the Bosnian Serbs, allies to the Croatian Serbs, also kept up the pressure on the Muslims, but at a reduced rate. UN officials said. Clashes persisted between them and Muslim forces near the Grabez plateau and around the town of Bihac.

— JOHN POMFRET

Italy to Probe How Liner Was Evacuated

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

ROME — Italy announced an official inquiry Monday into the fire that sank the Achille Lauro after some survivors complained that the cruise liner had been unsafe and that crew members scrambled for lifeboats first.

"Their behavior left a lot to be desired," said a survivor, Pauline Best, 58, of Britain. She accused some crew members of abandoning elderly passengers in lifeboats as they scrambled onto rescue ships.

Transport Minister Publio Fiori said the inquiry would try to establish what caused the blaze in the Indian Ocean and how the emergency had been dealt with.

"We want to understand what happened — the reasons, the causes, how people behaved," Mr. Fiori said.

"I also want to get a clear idea of how the owners behaved in assisting the evacuees. I've been told that some things didn't work as they had promised they would."

Another passenger, Hille Sieckmann, 68, said that the crew appeared to be inexperienced in launching the lifeboats and that the lifeboats themselves "were an absolute scandal."

"There were no supplies, not even a bucket to bail in case we took on water," Mrs. Sieckmann said. "There were no engines in some of them, no water to drink, no blankets, no nothing."

The ship's owners, Naples-based StarLine, have rejected claims that their emergency procedures functioned poorly.

Survivors taken on rescue ships to the Red Sea port of Djibouti and Mombasa in Kenya have said the Achille Lauro's alarm system failed.

Asked how fire procedures went when the blaze started, Raymond and Wendy Lofthouse of Britain said in Mombasa: "None of it worked. It was just buckets of water."

Survivors painted a scene of confusion following the outbreak of fire in the engine room of the ship, which was built in 1947.

Some passengers said they owed their lives to the liner's cruise director, Nadia Eckhard, a South African, and her staff, who calmly shepherded passengers into groups to evacuate the blazing ship, while some crewmen scrambled for the first lifeboats.

Asked to comment on the reports, a StarLine official, Sergio Santapao, said the company had not received any complaints. "As far as we are concerned, everything was handled in the best possible way."

One of the Italian passengers, Sergio Panni, said the evacuation had been well managed. "Things were handled properly," he said.

Officials said 170 South Africans, 66 Britons, 8 Americans, 7 Germans and a handful of other nationalities arrived in Mombasa on Monday. A total of 148 crew members, mostly Italians, also landed in Mombasa from the oil tanker Hawaiian King.

A chartered Alitalia 747 took off from Djibouti for Rome on Monday with about 400 survivors on board. Another Alitalia jumbo jet was waiting at Mombasa.

A Dutchwoman died of intestinal illness aboard one of the rescue vessels Saturday night, the Italian Coast Guard said. She was the third Achille Lauro passenger to die.

(Reuters, AP)

Pakistani Editor Killed In Karachi Ambush

The Associated Press

KARACHI, Pakistan — The editor of a popular weekly political magazine was killed by gunmen who ambushed him as he left his office, the police said.

The police said they did not know who was responsible for the attack Sunday on Mohammed Salahuddin, editor of Takbir, an Urdu-language publication. Mr. Salahuddin, whose house was attacked and burned in 1991, was a harsh critic of the Mujahir National Movement, an opposition group that represents Muslims who migrated to Pakistan from India.

Opposition In Italy Wins 4 City Halls

Reuters

ROME — The center-left swept four of six big Italian towns in mayoral run-off races, results showed on Monday, rewarding a new opposition alliance and sparking tension in Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi's coalition.

The most notable coup for the center-left in Sunday's elections came in the northern town of Brescia, where a former Christian Democrat leader, Mino Martinazzoli, easily beat the Northern League industry minister, Vito Gnattoli.

Mr. Martinazzoli enjoyed the backing not only of his own Popular Party, successor to the scandal-tainted Christian Democrats, but also of the Democratic Party of the Left, as the former Communists call themselves, Italy's biggest opposition grouping.

By contrast, the hard right National Alliance, an ally of the League in Mr. Berlusconi's six-month-old government, refused to endorse Mr. Gnattoli.

Opposition candidates also triumphed in the northern town of Sondrio, in Massa in Tuscany and in Brindisi in the south-east.

The coalition parties won narrowly in the Adriatic town of Pescara, while the League won convincingly in the northeastern town of Treviso.

Commentators said the results indicated a route out of the political wilderness for the center-left following its defeat by Mr. Berlusconi's coalition in general elections in March.

In Bangkok, business women know their place.

THE LANDMARK OF BANGKOK

SUMMIT

138 Sukhumvit Rd., Bangkok 10110, Thailand.
Fax (662) 253-4259 Tel (662) 254-0404

The Landmark of London is the Royal Lancaster Hotel

ONLY LONDON

from FF 790 RT*
4 flights daily
1st flight from Orly 7:15 am

AIRUK

Scheduled Airline
See your Travel Agent or call (Paris): 44 56 18 08
*plus tax

To call from country to country, or to the U.S., dial the WorldPhone® number of the country you're calling from.

Antigua (Available from public card phones only.) 82	Dominican Republic 1-800-751-6814	Ireland 800-0022	Montenegro (Special Phone Only) 800-0022	Spain 900-98-0014
Argentina 001-800-333-1111	Ecuador 170	Israel 170	Norway 1-800-55-1001	Sweden 020-785-322
Australia 022-903-012	France 355-5770	Italy 170-1022	Panama 177-150-2727	Switzerland 052-022
Bahamas 1-800-624-1000	Germany 9800-102-80	Japan 800-012-7000	Military Base 172-1022	Taiwan 800-001-1777
Bahrain 800-002	187-00-19	(Available from most major cities.)	Paraguay 800-012-7000	Thailand 800-001-1777
Belgium 0800-10012	00-1-99		Peru 800-MCH(800-624)	United Arab Emirates 800-011
Bermuda 1-800-622-0484	0135-0112		Puerto Rico 800-424	United Kingdom 0800-88-0000
Bolivia 000-2222	001-800-1211		Romania 425-0356	U.S. Virgin Islands 000-88-0000
Brazil 1-800-888-8888	1-800-624-1000		Russia 0800-0112	Uruguay 0800-88-0000
Canada 1-800-624-1000	000-0316		San Marino 95-800-674-7000	Venezuela 0800-88-0000
Cayman Islands 000-0000	000-0000		Saudi Arabia 199-00-19
Chile 000-0000	000-0000		Slovak Republic 001-800-590-1022
Colombia 980-16-0001	000-0000		South Africa 001-800-590-1022
Costa Rica 000-0000	000-0000
Cyprus 000-0000	000-0000
Czech Republic 00-42-000112	00-42-000112

Use your MCI Card® local telephone card or call collect, all at the same low rates. (C) Country-to-country calling available. May not be available to/from all international locations. Certain restrictions apply. * Limited availability.  Not for international communications.  Not available from public pay phones. * Public phones may require deposit of coin or phone card for dial tone.

WORLDPHONE Let It Take You Around The World
From MCI

THE AMERICAS / ANTI-ABORTION VOTES

Bentsen Will Leave Treasury in Early '95 Abortion Foes Take Heart in Tally for New Congress

By Keith Bradsher

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen has told President Bill Clinton that he wants to step down soon, although the two men have not yet agreed on the timing, administration officials said Monday.

In a series of discussions that began before Election Day, Mr. Bentsen has told Mr. Clinton that he is not prepared to stay in office through 1996 and that he believes someone else should replace him before the next round of budget struggles begins later this winter, the officials said.

While Mr. Bentsen might stay for a couple more months if asked to do so by the president, he is unlikely to remain in office any longer, they said.

Mr. Bentsen said before a speech Monday afternoon on trade policy that recent speculation on his departure was premature.

"When I have more information, I'll let you know," he said.

Robert E. Rubin, the assistant to the president for economic policy and the head of the National Economic Council, has emerged as the leading candidate to replace Mr. Bentsen. The only serious concern that at the White House about moving Mr. Rubin has been the difficulty in replacing him on the National Economic Council, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

An administration official speculated that Mr. Rubin might end up running both agencies, much as Henry A. Kissinger once ran the National Security Council and the State Department.

But other officials dismissed this idea, saying that the National Economic Council's role as an honest broker in policy debates would be crippled if it were closely identified with the Treasury Department.

Mr. Bentsen's departure would represent a political setback for the president, the officials said, because Mr. Bentsen has more influence and experience in working with congressional Republicans than any other senior administration official.

Unlike other administration officials with congressional experience, such as Leon E. Panetta, the White House chief of staff, Mr. Bentsen served in the Senate and had the experience of working on the minority side when the Republicans controlled that chamber from 1980 to 1986.

Even administration officials accustomed to putting the best possible face on bad developments were unable to portray Mr. Bentsen's departure in a good light on Monday.

"If you could only have one person on your side in an economic debate, most people would have chosen Secretary Bentsen," said Gene Sperling, a deputy assistant to the president for economic policy.

By Spencer Rich

Washington Post Service

WASHINGTON — Abortion foes gained at least 39 House seats and five Senate seats in the November elections, according to groups on both sides of the issue, giving them a majority or near-majority in Congress on many abortion questions.

"The pro-life side had its biggest victory in the history of the movement," said Representative Christopher H. Smith, one of the chairmen of the House anti-abortion caucus.

Although abortion may be secondary to the Republican "Contract With America," which focuses heavily on economic, tax, welfare and congressional procedure reform, the New Jersey Republican said abortion foes had an excellent chance to roll back administration policies or existing laws and regulations that Republicans view as fostering abortion.

In what abortion opponents assert was a bow to the election results, President Bill Clinton barred the use of federal funds for creating human embryo cells outside the body to be used for research purposes — on the very day, Friday, that a panel recommended guidelines for carrying out such research.

Although the embryo issue does not involve abortion in the sense the word is normally understood — terminating a pregnancy — abortion foes consider it to be a "right to life" issue involving deliberate destruction of a potential human life.

"It crosses a line that is barbaric," Mr. Smith said. "We're creating human life for the sole purpose of experimenting on it."

The anti-abortion measures envisioned by Mr. Smith, the National Right to Life Committee and the Family Research Council include locking such an embryo cell research ban into law, as well as:

- Cutting off funds for international family-planning organizations that abortion foes contend use public funds directly or indirectly to work for legalization of abortion in foreign countries. Senator Jesse Helms offered such an amendment last year, but it lost.

Sources said that now, as incoming chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, the North Carolina Republican is likely to bring it up again.

- Barring federal support for research on the use of transplanted tissue from aborted fetuses to allay the effects of Parkinson's disease.

- Continuing or broadening restrictions on Medicaid-financed abortions, which are allowed only to save the life of the woman or in cases of rape or incest.

- Restricting research and sale of the abortion pill RU-486.

- Barring federally funded family-planning groups from counseling young women that abortion is an option. Opponents call this the "gag rule."

- Barring the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program, U.S. military hospitals overseas and the District of Columbia (even if using its own money) from providing abortions.

"All of it's on the table," Mr. Smith declared. Some groups also favor action to modify restrictions on demonstrations against abortion clinics.

But House Republican leaders have not singled out abortion for priority action in the 104th Congress, and any votes engineered by Mr. Smith and other anti-abortion forces probably will not come for months.

"We will absolutely oppose them," said Ann Lewis, vice president of Planned Parenthood of America. "They want to eliminate the right to choose."

Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League, acknowledged: "They did pick up a lot of votes."

She predicted that Republicans were not going to announce anti-abortion legislation as a major goal, but she added: "I do think they're going to assault the freedom to choose."

She vowed strong opposition to that agenda. According to a league analysis of the election results, the 103d Congress contained a core of 179 members considered sure anti-abortion votes on most issues, although on occasion abortion opponents got more.

In the 104th Congress, according to the analysis, the core anti-abortion bloc will number 218 votes, the group of abortion rights supporters 146, and 71 representatives will have mixed positions.

In the Senate, according to the count, abortion opponents had 40 consistent supporters in the 103d Congress, but that count will rise to 45 senators in the 104th, with the abortion-rights bloc numbering 35 senators, and the remaining 17 senators having mixed positions.

The National Right to Life Committee says abortion foes picked up 40 House seats and five or six Senate seats.

Away From Politics

- The Supreme Court has refused to review a ruling that lets the police shoot people who try to escape while awaiting criminal trials. (AP)

- Authorities were considering filing manslaughter charges against a New Jersey nightclub owner after four youths died in a stampede there. Officials said one exit was locked and another all but hidden. (AP)

- Activists planning a national boycott of California over its new law targeting illegal immigrants said they might also target several corporations. (AP)

- Sheikh Omar Abdel Rahman, the Egyptian cleric accused of plotting to bomb New York landmarks, has been told he has tuberculosis. (Reuters)

- Rescuers were trying to direct an injured baby northern right whale back to the open sea after it wandered 60 miles up the Delaware River. (AP)

- Uncompleted blood-thinning therapy to treat clots in former Vice President Dan Quayle's lungs delayed his scheduled release from a hospital. (Reuters)

CLAUS ON A HOG — Santa cruising Roanoke, Virginia, in the Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Run.

POLITICAL NOTES

Gingrich Called 'Reckless'

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration denounced as untrue and "reckless" on Monday an assertion by Representative Newt Gingrich that up to one-fourth of the White House staff used illegal drugs in recent years before joining the administration.

The White House chief of staff, Leon E. Panetta, said, "we cannot do business with the speaker of the House who is going to engage in these kind of unfounded allegations."

Mr. Gingrich made the claim on Sunday in a broadcast interview, saying: "It's very clear that they had huge problems getting people through security clearance." On Monday, House Republicans elected Mr. Gingrich to be speaker when the party takes control of the chamber in January.

Mr. Panetta, when asked whether use of drugs at some point in the past would have disqualified someone from serving in the Clinton White House, replied that it would not, "any more than it was an automatic disqualification for Newt Gingrich to be speaker." Mr. Gingrich, 51, has acknowledged smoking marijuana as a graduate student more than two decades ago. (AP, Reuters)

Travel Office Indictment?

WASHINGTON — A lawyer for Billy Dale, the former head of the White House travel office, said that he expected federal prosecutors to seek an indictment against Mr. Dale this week, charging him with stealing $69,000 in money paid by news organizations for presidential trips.

Steven Tabackman, Mr. Dale's lawyer, said his client would plead not guilty to the charges, which are likely to revive an embarrassing issue that created a furor when it erupted in May 1993 and left a powerful impression of White House bungling on ethical matters.

"No one who has worked with Billy Ray Dale or had any contact with him either personally or professionally during the 31 years that he served the White House and the media believes for an instant that Mr. Dale embezzled a cent from the travel office," Mr. Tabackman said.

Mr. Dale, 57, began working at the White House in 1957 and became head of the travel office in 1982. (NYT)

More Base Closings Coming

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is preparing to begin another major effort to shut unneeded military bases, with signs that this one will be the biggest — and by far the most painful — such effort in recent history.

Defense Department strategists believe that the coming round of base closings, in 1995, may be the most crucial of all. In drawing down the Cold War military, the Pentagon has slashed the total number of troops, but it has not reduced the infrastructure — bases and depots — as sharply.

Pentagon budget-makers fear that unless the services get rid of large numbers of those unneeded bases this time, they will be stuck with hefty overhead costs that will leave them unable to channel funds into critical weapons systems and modernization programs.

Moreover, as the generals are painfully aware, the next round may well be their last chance. Congress authorized base-closing efforts in 1988, 1991 and 1993 and may not be willing to approve another one.

Robert W. Gaskin, a former Pentagon strategist, points out that the pain in the coming round is likely to be exacerbated by the fact that "all the easy choices have been made."

Planners in all four services are predicting that the list of bases that the services will propose for closing in 1995 is apt to be the biggest ever. (LAT)

Quote/Unquote

Representative Henry Bonilla, Republican of Texas, in a speech nominating Mr. Gingrich to be the speaker of the House: "Newt Gingrich is a visionary, a believer in basic values."

Representative Vic Fazio, Democrat of California, on Mr. Gingrich: "He is a great motivator to our caucus." (AP)

FISHER ISLAND. UNLIKE ANY COMMUNITY IN THE WORLD.

In 1925, William K. Vanderbilt II could have chosen anywhere in the world to create his elegant seaside winter estate suitable for hosting captains of industry, presidents, kings and princes.

He chose Fisher Island in Florida, overlooking the Gulf Stream, Biscayne Bay and the skylines of Miami and Miami Beach.

Three-quarters of a century later, Fisher Island has remained absolutely faithful to the original design and purpose William Vanderbilt envisioned for it.

In the last decade, the developers of Fisher Island have re-created the princely lifestyle that flourished on this historic, museum-quality estate.

Today, it offers an array of world-class amenities, including seaside golf, tennis on three surfaces, an international spa, magnificent beaches, fine restaurants, two deepwater marinas, shops and the ultimate in privacy and security. More than four hundred of the world's most prominent families from thirty-nine countries now live in splendid residences in Vanderbilt Style.

Fisher Island, Florida 33109 (305) 535-6071 / (800) 624-3251. Fax (305) 535-6008.

Your inquiry is welcomed and appreciated.

Unlike any community in the world

Residences from $800,000 to $4,800,000. Guests of residents are welcome to stay in restored Vanderbilt Era Guest Cottages and Seaside Villas, from $425 to $1,000 per night.

This project is registered with the New Jersey Real Estate Commission, NJREC, 909-711 to 711A. Registration does not constitute an endorsement of the merits or value of the project. Obtain and read the New Jersey Public Offering statement before signing anything. This is not an offering to any person in any state where such an offering may not lawfully be made. Equal Housing Opportunity.

Moscow's Asian Arms Bazaar

Danger Seen in Spread of Military Technology

By Michael Richardson
International Herald Tribune
SINGAPORE — Aggressive sales in Asia by makers of Russian-designed arms are likely to become a continuing source of friction between the West and former members of the Soviet bloc, especially Russia, as they compete for orders in the world's fastest-growing military market.

Western officials and analysts warn that the increasing commercial rivalry is hastening the spread of advanced weapons and technology in Asia, and may ultimately lead to a dangerous arms race in the region.

Following the purchase of 18 MiG-29 fighters from Russia in June on very favorable financial terms, Malaysia is testing the Russian-designed T-72 tank and may soon place an initial order for more than 60, Malaysian officials said Monday.

The relatively low-cost tanks, manufactured under license from Moscow, would probably come from Poland or Slovakia, they said.

China, India, South Korea and Indonesia have all shown strong interest recently in Russian-designed military equipment, which is generally much less expensive than comparable Western weapons.

Asian nations assert that wider access to military equipment and technology will provide much-needed modernization of their defense capability and increase stability in Asia. But "cut-price transfers of advanced combat aircraft and main battle tanks could alter the balance of power in particular regions," said David Mussington, a former defense scientist in the Directorate of Strategic Analysis of Canada's Department of National Defense.

Russian weapons are appearing for sale to developing countries even before they are acquired by the Russian military.

He said that over the long term, the transfer of Russian production technology could be much more important than weapons sales in the global spread of military power.

In its latest annual strategic survey, the London-based International Institute for Strategic Studies warned that as a result of the rapid diffusion of sophisticated military technology in Asia, "what may emerge are countries which have senous tensions with their neighbors and are increasingly free of the constraints imposed by Euro-Atlantic arms exporters."

Mr. Mussington said recent Russian sales to China had led to the transfer from Russia of production facilities for the advanced Su-27 fighter and SA-10 surface-to-air missiles, as well as Russian technical assistance.

He said that Russia and its former Soviet-bloc allies, anxious to expand arms exports to earn hard currency and offset falling military orders at home, were "vulnerable to the same cost pressures that afflict Western arms producers, as evidenced by the feverish activity of Russian defense enterprises in Asia and elsewhere in the developing world."

Mr. Mussington said that Russian weapons previously unknown to Western intelligence agencies, such as the R-73 air-to-air missile, were appearing for sale to developing countries even before they were acquired by the Russian military.

Following the breakup of the Soviet Union and its defense industries, Russian arms exports plummeted to $1.3 billion in 1992 from just over $14 billion in 1988, according to a study by the U.S. Congressional Research Service in Washington.

In the same period, U.S. military exports to the Third World rose to $13.5 billion from $10 billion, while British exports nearly tripled to $2.4 billion and French exports more than doubled to $3.8 billion.

Gennadi Chufin, deputy director of the Institute of Oriental Studies at the Russian Academy of Sciences in Moscow, said that Russia's share of global arms sales fell to "a mere 11 percent" in 1992, from 37 percent in 1989.

"It is little wonder then that practically all major political parties in Russia have displayed a rare unanimity in calling on the government to actively promote arms exports to restore positions with traditional buyers of Soviet-Russian weapons, and to explore new markets."

Mr. Chufin said that Moscow would expand arms sales to Asia, including China where it would supply T-72 tanks, C-300 surface-to-air missile systems, and jet fighters, among them "most modern variants" of the MiG-29 and MiG-31.

MUSLIMS MARCH IN INDIA — A group of 400 Muslims protesting Monday at India's largest mosque in New Delhi. They demanded the reconstruction of the Babri mosque in Ayodhya, which was stormed and razed in 1992 by thousands of Hindu militants, who said the mosque desecrated the birthplace of the Hindu god Rama.

Pentagon Plans to Destroy Remaining Napalm Stocks

FALLBROOK, California — Twenty years after the Vietnam War, the government is planning to dispose of its last stocks of napalm, the sticky, fiercely burning weapon.

More than 35,000 aluminum canisters containing 10.4 million kilograms (23 million pounds) of napalm are soon to be removed from the Fallbrook Naval Weapons Station, where they have sat in wooden crates for two decades.

Officials of the Southern California center plan a public hearing next month to brief the public on the latest disposal plan. Past attempts to remove the napalm failed for various reasons, including a lack of money.

"This time we think we have a better handle on it," said a spokesman for the Naval Ordnance Center.

The navy plans to hire a contractor to extract the napalm from the canisters for use as fuel in kilns at cement-making plants around the country, the spokesman said. The process, which is scheduled to begin within two weeks, could take up to five years and cost more than $24 million.

Napalm was dropped in bombs from aircraft and used in flame throwers.

U.S. Judges Seek to Limit Caseload

WASHINGTON — A panel of federal judges is proposing new limits on access to federal courts for Social Security beneficiaries, victims of job discrimination and consumers, as part of a long-range plan to cope with huge increases in the caseload.

If recent trends continue, the judges said, the federal courts will be inundated with civil and criminal cases. The crime bill passed this fall, for example, has extended federal jurisdiction to a new range of crimes.

The report says there are already signs of "impending crisis" and predicts that the problems will grow steadily over the next 25 years.

By the year 2020, the judges estimate, more than a million new cases will be filed each year in federal district courts, up from the 281,740 in the year that ended June 30.

"Numbers alone do not adequately capture this frightening picture," the report said. To handle the anticipated caseload, even assuming some increase in judicial productivity, would require more than 4,000 judges, up from the current total of 846, the report says. Without hiring new judges, delays would grow intolerably. With so many judges, the report says, it will be difficult to maintain the coherence and consistency of federal court decisions.

"Federal law would be Babel, with thousands of decisions issued weekly and no one judge capable of comprehending the entire corpus of federal law, or even the law of his or her own circuit," it says.

After hearings, a final version of the report will be submitted in March 1995 to the full Judicial Conference, which is expected to accept most of the recommendations.

Warden Is Beloved At Prison in India

Kiran Bedi Pushes for Change At New Delhi's Toughest Jail

By John F. Burns
New York Times Service

NEW DELHI — When Kiran Bedi was named warden of India's largest and most notorious prison, a job considered a professional graveyard, many of her critics shed crocodile tears.

The assertive Miss Bedi, a 45-year-old Punjabi, has ruffled many a feather since becoming India's first policewoman 23 years ago.

Now, 18 months after taking the prison job, Miss Bedi — who was once women's tennis champion of Asia — has staged a scrambling comeback. Instead of getting bogged down in the corruption and violence associated with the New Delhi's Tihar prison, she has pushed through reforms that have begun to change its reputation.

Miss Bedi's popularity has been fostered by the educational and recreational activities she has brought to the prison, as well as by the pressure she has put on judges to adopt more liberal bail policies. With more than 150,000 prisoners awaiting trial in India's jails while courts work ponderously through a huge backlog, it is not unusual for accused people to serve more time awaiting trial than the maximum term they would face if convicted.

When Tihar's 9,700 inmates were told that she had been awarded one of Asia's most coveted public service awards this summer for her work there, many inmates — who range from prisoners awaiting trial to convicted murderers awaiting execution — broke into dancing.

But many of the politicians and police superiors Miss Bedi has crossed in her career are more likely to have reacted with a gnashing of teeth.

While she has been celebrated by many in India as the archetype of India's new career women, she is deeply resented within the still overwhelmingly male police force. More than one effort has been made to check her rise by assigning her to jobs considered dead ends.

Her assertive style was displayed on a tour of Tihar. Striding across the prison yard, she punctuated her remarks with disparagement of the established ways of Indian politics, particularly the close bonds between powerful politicians and the police hierarchy.

All three major national political parties invited Miss Bedi to run as a parliamentary candidate in the last general election in 1991. She refused, and she says she has not changed her mind. "When I look at our politics, I don't see ethics at all," she said. "Here at Tihar, I have power with ethics, so why substitute it for a world where I would end up with neither?"

At Tihar, where she is the first woman to serve as warden, her philosophy of rehabilitation is at odds with the prison's repressive reputation. The penitentiary, built to serve Britain's colonial rulers in the 1880s, is four prisons grouped together behind 30-foot walls, with separate sections for men and women. The jail is heavily overcrowded.

On her tour of the prison yard, Miss Bedi chatted easily with prisoners. Several times, her progress was halted by prisoners shouting "Madam! Madam!" — followed by an plea for help in obtaining bail, or a speedier trial.

In the prison yard, Gerald Victor interrupted the literacy class he was teaching to step forward. The 38-year-old one-time businessman was awaiting trial on a charge of disposing of a pistol used to kill a prominent lawyer. The maximum penalty for that offense is three years in jail, and he had been there for 40 months awaiting trial. "Let's go to legal aid," he said. "This man does not belong here."

With the lithe build and cropped hair of an athlete, and a preference for loose trousers and long shirts instead of saris, Miss Bedi has prompted criticism from traditionalists who say she has turned her back on traditions of Indian womanhood. Supporters regard her as a champion of women's emancipation. She rebuts both views. "I like to think that what attracts attention to me is my work, not my gender," she said.

BOOKS

GENTLEMAN SPY: The Life of Allen Dulles

By Peter Grose. 641 pages. $30. Houghton Mifflin.

Reviewed by David Corn

FOR decades Allen Dulles stood as the symbol of the Central Intelligence Agency: a tweedy, pipe-smoking, blue-blooded diplomat-turned-Wall-Street-lawyer-turned-intelligence officer or, as Peter Grose dubs him in his engaging biography, a "gentleman spy." These days, the posterboy for the CIA is Aldridge Ames, the drunk incompetent who rose through the old-boy bureaucracy to a sensitive post where he could do great damage as a Soviet mole.

Dulles was almost bred, it seems, with the CIA in mind.

WHAT THEY'RE READING

• M. S. Swaminathan, the Indian geneticist and international administrator, is reading "No More Room" by Lester Brown. "We already have filled this planet, and if we don't regulate it, then the Malthusian predictions will come true." (Lise Gersten, IHT)

His grandfather, John Watson Foster, was secretary of state in the late 19th century. Dulles's father was a Presbyterian pastor. From a practitioner of realpolitik and a missionary came the Company's number one man. Naturally, Dulles went to Princeton. He joined the Foreign Service in 1916 and served in several overseas posts. In 1926 he left the government, whirled through what is now called the revolving door and entered the tony firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, where older brother (and future secretary of state and airport namesake) John Foster Dulles was already ensconced. Allen Dulles handled international lending activity and represented German business interests.

He returned to the government payroll at the start of World War II with the Office of Strategic Services. As the OSS's man in Switzerland, he pulled together networks of agents and gathered information on German plots to assassinate Adolf Hitler, on the resistance in France and Austria, on the Holocaust. He negotiated the surrender of the German forces in Italy, but his best agent — a low-level German officer who delivered 1,600 documents from the Nazi Foreign Office — was a walk-in. Analysts back in Washington often questioned Dulles's reports. And he made mistakes: He predicted that Hitler would not attack Russia. Still, a legend formed: Dulles the spy-master.

In 1950, Dulles, at the age of 57, was appointed deputy director of plans for the young CIA. Three years later, he ascended to the post of CIA director. In these positions, he defined the intelligence system of the United States. He fancied political warfare — coup-making, propaganda, political fronts — and this activity, despite the objections of others in the CIA and the government, became a priority for the service. Intelligence collection — Dulles's strong suit as an OSS man — received less attention in his CIA than the fun and games. A large and insular bureaucracy grew under him, even though he himself hated such structures. And within this culture a clubby atmosphere developed, one that protected malleable and less-than-stellar officers. After CIA officers slipped LSD to an unsuspecting American physician, probably causing his suicide, Dulles issued the slightest of reprimands to those responsible. No one in the club would suffer.

Much of the second half of "Gentleman Spy" covers turf already well-traveled in the literature of intelligence: the CIA-choreographed coups in Iran and Guatemala; the development of the U-2 plane; the procurement of Nikita Khrushchev's 1956 anti-Stalin speech (Dulles later called this "one of the major coups of my tour of duty," but the CIA was handed the speech by the Israeli intelligence service); the anti-Castro Bay of Pigs debacle of 1961, and the now all-too-familiar assassination operations against pesky socialist leaders of the developing world.

A bit frustrating is the reluctance of Grose, a former New York Times reporter, Foreign Affairs editor and State Department official, to confront fully the sense of elitism and self-righteousness that imbued Dulles and his comrades. The "Park Avenue cowboys," he writes, "were highly intelligent and deeply motivated to do the public good." Dulles and his like-minded colleagues were blinded by their own hubris. They believed that because they were gentlemen they could do dirty deeds for causes they deemed just, that the world was theirs to fiddle with — and in secrecy. "Gentleman Spy" does not rewrite the history of this set, but it does remind us that the distance between a self-proclaimed gentleman and a deceitful plotter is not always that far.

David Corn, Washington editor of the Nation magazine and the author of "Blond Ghost: Ted Shackley and the CIA's Crusades," wrote this for The Washington Post.

CHESS

By Robert Byrne
ALEXANDER Shabalov beat Alexander Ivanov in Round 2 of the United States Championship.

The two gains of the queen sortie involved in 2 d4 e3 Qd4 Nc6 4 Qc3 are the elimination of the e5 pawn and the inability of Black to counter with 4...d5 because of 5 ed.

White must rein himself in on 4...Nf6 and not attempt to storm the black fortress with 5 e5! Nc4 6 Qc4 d5 7 ed Be6 8 Ba6 Qd6 9 Bh7 Qb4 10 Qb4 Nb4 11 Na3 Rb8 12 Bf3 Ne5 because Black's dynamic play is worth more than the gambit pawn. Moreover, in this same line after 6 Qc2 d6 7 f3 Nb6 8

Position after 27...Nf6

Bh6 Qb4 9 g3 Qb6 10 ed Be6. Black has great positional advantage.

When Black counterattacks with 7...Re8, it would be wrong for White to play defensively with 8 f3 d5 9 Qf2 de 10 Ne4 Nc4 11 fe Qe7 because of the weakness of the isolated e4 pawn. Ivanov tried 9...Bd6, a suggestion of Patrick Wolff. Yet Wolff's analysis only considered 10 Qh3 and 10 Qf3, whereas Shabalov's 10 f4! was stronger.

On 12 Bd3, it may be that the compact 12...d6 would have been Black's best course. After 13 Rd1 Re1 14 Re1 Ne7 15 Nh4 Bd7, Black's development is proceeding apace.

It was evident after 20 g4! that Shabalov's attacking plans were not spent. After 20...c6 21 g5 Nd7 22 Ng5, perhaps Ivanov should have tried to hold off the pawn surge with 22...Qf8! 23 f5 f6.

After 22...Nb6! 23 f5 Qd7 24 Rf1 Bd6 25 Qh3, Ivanov could not play 25...Nf5? because of 26 Rf5 Qf5 27 Nb6. After 25...Kh8, Shabalov ruptured the king position with 26 f6! g7 g7.

Defense by 27...Ng8 could have been defeated by 28 Qh5; for example, 28...Nc4 29 Rf3 Nd2 30 Rh3 Nb3 (30...h6 31 Qg5! Bf8 32 Nh6!) 31 Kb1! h6 32 Qe5! Bf8 33 Nh6 Qh3 34 Qg8 mate. After 27...Ng6, Shabalov charged through with 28 Bh6, threatening 29 Bg7 Kg8 30 Nh6 mate. After 28...Bf8 29 Bg7! Bg7 30 f6 Kg7 31 Qh6 Kh8 32 Nf6, Ivanov gave up.

GLOBAL SATELLITE NETWORK

• CNN BUREAUS

Why News Travels Fast

With 29 bureaus tracking the news plus satellite coverage that spans the globe, CNN sets the standard for immediate, credible and comprehensive reporting around the world.

For information regarding advertising opportunities, please contact:

Kay Delaney in New York 1-212-852-6956
David Levy in New York 1-212-852-6912
Eric Clemenceau in Paris 33-1-44-95-15-80

Nan Richards in London 44-71-290-8000
Lynne Kraselsky in Hong Kong 852-826-4525
Nobu Hashimoto in Tokyo 81-3-5466-1561

© 1994 Turner Broadcasting System, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

WHATEVER IT TAKES

Good morning. Want to be here tomorrow?

Here's a little something we learned. Success is not the result of spontaneous combustion.

You must set yourself on fire.

If your competition does 50 push-ups, you do 51. If they go the extra mile, you go the extra 10. If they are fast, be faster. If they are smart, be brilliant. If they have the bigger hammer, you have the sharper nail.

Don't solve problems, anticipate them. Don't promise results, get them. Treat every challenge as an opportunity in work clothes.

Know that well done is better than well said. That it is not just the hours you put in, but what you put into the hours.

Let others dream of worthy accomplishments. That's okay. You stay awake and do them. Believe you can't be beat and you won't be beat; that there is plenty of room at the top. But not enough to sit down.

It's easy to put these words down on paper. At Digital, we're putting them into practice.

Whatever it takes. Not fancy words. Just real ones.

Mission-critical marching orders for everyone. From our president to the person who turns the lights off very late at night.

Today, Digital is working as never before to be the company you rely on to implement networked platforms and applications in heterogeneous environments.

Today, we are working hard to do it quicker and more cost-effectively than anyone else.

Simply put, today we are working to make ourselves indispensable to our customers.

And you will begin to see tangible examples of that effort every day at Digital.

Whatever it takes does not mean that we will compete unfairly or bend the rules; that ethics and integrity will be sacrificed on the altar of profits.

It does mean that we will go to the nth degree to win your business. And keep your business. It means we will play tough. But fair.

We intend to go as far as guts and talent and vision will take us. And share the benefits with you along the way.

For more information, call your local Digital sales office or reach us via our Internet address: moreinfo@digital.com.

digital

Herald Tribune

PUBLISHED WITH THE NEW YORK TIMES AND THE WASHINGTON POST

Be President

The Clinton administration's shell-shocked first response to the election returns was full of the wrong questions. They had to do with image rather than substance, as if the business of being president were a kind of con. How should the president try to reposition himself, was the instant query. What kind of new political image and persona did he need? Should he try to ingratiate and align himself with the more liberal Democrats or the less liberal ones? Which (if any) former presidents should he emulate? Should he prepare to cooperate with the Republican Congress or set the political stage to run against it?

Now, however, if only by virtue of the calendar and the press of business that can't be ignored, reports from the White House suggest that some grimmer questions are asserting themselves. That could be good news, for the country and president alike. It's old-fashioned, we know, but what the president could do, if he chose, is decide on the merits what national policy might be — what he wants to achieve — propose and fight for it as best he can, and let that define him. First make the wine and only then design the label. How's that for a revolutionary proposition?

It shouldn't be all that difficult. The president could adopt as a model his own first year. The immediate issue then as now was the budget. Bill Clinton had to decide what to do about the deficit — whether and how far to try to drive it down — and then how to fit within that goal the rest of what he wanted to accomplish.

In that year, wisely, in our view, he chose not a temporary but an aggressive compromise, a set of measures that not only reduced the deficit but left a little money over in finance the mostly modest spending increases he called investments. He should pursue the same mix of objectives again — not the exact same measures, which can't be repeated, but the same broad pattern, which can. It has the advantage of being the right thing to do, good policy and, because it is good policy, conceivably even good politics, too.

The deficit will turn back up again in a year or two if the president and new Congress don't act to suppress it. For the sake of future generations they should keep the fiscal pressure on. But do it responsibly, in the House particularly, the Republican majority-to-be would compound the problem by reverting to the mostly Republican policies that produced it and cutting taxes even while adopting a balanced budget amendment. The combination would require enormous spending cuts, much larger than have yet been fully acknowledged, from which the authors would nonetheless exempt Social Security and defense. Those together with the interest on the debt are more than half the budget. The rest of the government would be left to bear too great a burden.

It isn't a matter of not wanting to cut or thinking there aren't plenty of programs that can be cut without great loss. But the "Contract with America" is extreme. It would jeopardize important functions of government while shifting enormous burdens to the states. It goes too far; the president can and ought to make the argument for a balanced alternative. Balanced in that sense does not mean weak; to the contrary.

How then might Mr. Clinton raise the money he would need? There is hardly a shortage of ideas or possibilities. Step up the means-testing of entitlements (including Social Security and Medicare); the math doesn't work if you leave them out. Begin to raise the retirement age. Tighten the eligibility rules in some programs. Toss out the likes of the dairy price supports, which are dysfunctional anyway. Impose some new limits on tax breaks. Toss out some more discretionary spending. Does the country really need a Small Business Administration or an Amtrak subsidy or a special low-income home heating subsidy atop the rest of the aid the government gives the poor?

Mr. Clinton should go first, propose some serious, specific budget cuts but at the same time — novel notion — defend the legitimacy and importance of other things that government does that ought not to be cut. There is plenty of room for a forceful, responsible proposal. Let someone else decide where that puts him in the great, confused and pointless war of political left-to-right labels.

No, a single budget won't redefine an entire administration. And it won't address the whole array of organizational weaknesses and personal and political habits that have landed Mr. Clinton and his presidency in so much trouble and that desperately need attention, too. But it's not a bad place to start.

— THE WASHINGTON POST.

The Obesity Gene

The identification of a genetic flaw that seems to cause obesity in mice, and possibly in humans as well, caused ripples of excitement when it was announced last week. The finding holds out the dazzling hope that scientists may, eventually, come up with a drug treatment to help overweight people shed unwanted, unhealthy pounds. But don't count on the discovery changing your life any time soon. Any treatment is said to be five to 10 years away. And the field of genetic disease is littered with false hopes gone unrealized.

It is humbling to recall the excitement that greeted past announcements of genetic defects associated with alcoholism, cancer, manic depression, schizophrenia and other ailments. Only later did scientists realize that they had misidentified the gene or else had no idea how it operated, and thus no idea how to devise a treatment. Still, there is some reason to hope that the new gene discovery might be an exception. That is because there is a long history of research in physiology and biochemistry that points in the direction of the new finding.

Scientists have long hypothesized that body weight is regulated by a feedback mechanism that keeps weight near a particular set point. They have also done experiments suggesting that some factor circulating in the bloodstream tells the brain when to raise or lower food intake and energy metabolism. If an obese mouse is surgically attached to a thin mouse, for example, the obese mouse will lose weight, apparently responding to a substance in the blood of the thin mouse.

At least five mutant genes are thought to be involved in obesity in mice. What scientists at Rockefeller University in New York City have now accomplished is the isolation of one of the most important, known as the ob gene. In two strains of obese mice, the ob gene was found to be defective, suggesting that when it malfunctions, it causes obesity. The researchers hypothesize that this gene, acting only in fat cells, normally produces a protein that circulates through the blood to reach the part of the brain that controls appetite.

When a large amount of fat cells churn out a large amount of the protein, the brain tells the body to reduce food intake. Unless, of course, the gene malfunctions. In that case the brain will be fooled into thinking there is not enough fat in the body and will encourage the intake of even more food. The gene probably controls long-term food intake, not the hour-by-hour changes in appetite that determine when one feels hungry.

That all sounds plausible, but scientists have a long way to go to prove it. Thus far they have simply found the defective gene in mice that are obese. Now scientists must show that the protein the ob gene produces does in fact circulate in the bloodstream and that when injected into an animal with the genetic defect, it will cause a weight loss. Once they do that, there will be real cause for excitement.

Even then, there is no guarantee that the same effects would be seen in humans. The shimmering hope is that, if a faulty satiety signal triggers obesity, scientists may be able to administer the missing satiety protein to patients, much as diabetes is treated with insulin injections.

But obesity in humans is apt to be much more complicated than obesity in mice, with multiple genes and hormones involved, and many behavioral factors as well. It may be hard for scientists to find a single magic bullet.

So keep your fingers crossed. And keep up the diet and exercise.

— THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Other Comment

What Taiwan Voters Want

The election in Taiwan was seen by many as a test of the Kuomintang's pro-independence stance and the Democratic Progressive Party's advocacy of Taiwan independence. It was and it wasn't. The Kuomintang did use the emotional "China will attack if Taiwan declares independence" ruse to its fullest. This had some effect with the less well-informed electorate in rural areas; in Taipei it did not work. It is thus dangerous to interpret the results as an outcome for or against independence. A more fair and open debate on the issue is needed before far-reaching conclusions can be drawn on what the people want. If they want independence, this needs to be respected by China and recognized by the international community.

— Taiwan Communiqué (Cheryl Chase, Maryland).

Appeasement Again: Like Ethiopia, Like Czechoslovakia

By Stanley Hoffmann

CAMBRIDGE, Massachusetts — Those of us who grew up in the 1930s and were later told about the lessons of Munich believed that the appeasement of aggression would not be repeated. We were wrong.

The way the so-called international community has dealt with Bosnia reproduces the League of Nations' handling of the Italian invasion of Ethiopia in 1935 and 1936 and, in a somewhat different respect, the British-French treatment of the Czech crisis of 1938.

When Italy invaded Ethiopia, the League imposed economic sanctions on the aggressor, but at the same time the British and French tried to negotiate a settlement with Mussolini. The sanctions, limited to certain products, were too mild to hurt Italy.

The British-French plan conceded two-thirds of Ethiopia to Mussolini, but public opinion in England killed it. Mussolini went on to conquer all of Ethiopia.

The international community made the mistake of simultaneously pursuing two incompatible policies: collective security against aggression, and a negotiated compromise between parties that were treated as morally equivalent. The hope of reaching a compromise kept the resort to collective security more symbolic than real. Aggression prevailed.

The same thing has happened in Bosnia. The United Nations' resort to international mediation has resulted in a succession of plans, each leaving more and Today's powers have not obtained Balkan peace yet, and may get much more war. The dishonor they have already earned.

more of Bosnia to the Serbs without satisfying them.

The United Nations has also resorted mainly to symbolic measures of support for the victims of Serbian aggression — the rather powerless International Criminal Tribunal, questionable economic sanctions, ceremonial NATO air strikes. Negotiations backed by no credible threat of armed force have turned into appeasement.

Symbolic collective security that did not even allow Bosnia to exercise its "inherent right of self-defense" by lifting the arms embargo on it has turned into a fiasco.

The only new thing that the United Nations has added to the Ethiopian precedent is an international force with a humanitarian mission — which, haplessly, has been trapped in Bosnia. The force has become a hostage to the Serbs; for the British and French, its safety has become more important than Bosnia's, and a convenient pretext against any resort to more effective military measures.

The proper policy would have been to press the Serbs, by force if necessary, to stop using war and ethnic cleansing and to negotiate a fair settlement with their Muslim adversaries after a lasting cease-fire had been imposed.

During the crisis over the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia, when Hitler negotiated directly with the British (who were acting for themselves and the French), he constantly refused to take "yes" for an answer; he kept escalating his demands while Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain kept increasing his own concessions at the expense of the Czechs.

At Munich, where the Czechs were not even invited, Hitler obtained pretty much all he had demanded. His only "concession" was to refrain from seizing by force what the British and the French were willing to offer him.

The Clinton administration began by condemning the Vance-Owen plan of early 1993 as a sellout of Bosnia. Now it seems ready to concede to the Bosnian Serbs both the right to confederate with Serbia — to form what would be the Greater Serbia of President Slobodan Milosevic's dreams — and the right to remain in control of all the territory they have seized by force until they obtain satisfactory constitutional arrangements from the Bosnian government. All of this, offered behind the backs of the Bosnian authorities, would be conceded in exchange for the Serbs' willingness to stop using force.

Britain and France have remained faithful to the sellout spirit of Munich. And the United States has preferred finally to join its obstinate ally rather than act alone and take risks to help a victim of aggression — as if appeasement entailed no risks of its own.

Are there differences between the situations? Weren't the two crises of the 1930s conflicts between states, whereas Bosnia is a civil war?

Some had tried to characterize Italy's invasion of Ethiopia as a legitimate act of colonial expansion. As for Hitler's dismantling of Czechoslovakia, many chose to see it as an intervention on behalf of a German minority mistreated by the Czech majority — in other words, an intervention in the domestic affairs of Czechoslovakia based on the impeccable principle of self-determination.

This is exactly what the Communists in Belgrade, converted into nationalists, have claimed in order to justify their dismantling of Bosnia. The Bosnian Serbs would never have been able to conquer 70 percent of the country without the Serbian army's intervention in early 1992. — in other words, without Belgrade's aggression against a multinational country recognized by the European Union and the United Nations.

Some argue that Bosnia should never have been recognized as an independent state in 1992 because of the uncertainty hanging over its future. But a refusal to recognize it would only have provided justification for Serbia's design of ethnic imperialism directed against the Muslims at a time when a European attempt to find a peaceful solution had been sabotaged by the Bosnian Serbs' decision to form a "republic" of their own.

The relations between Serbia and the Bosnian Serbs faithfully reproduce the relations between Nazi Germany and the Sudetenland. The only real difference is that President Milosevic does not have Hitler's power and global ambitions.

But can we be sure that Serbia's nationalists will be satisfied? A victorious Serbia could spread violence to Kosovo or to Macedonia or Albania. There is still the danger of a major international crisis in the Balkans, provoking a showdown between Russia and NATO, a split between the Western powers and Greece, and increasing tensions between Western Europe and the United States.

As at the time of Munich, the great powers have chosen "peace" at the expense of honor. They have not even obtained peace yet, and may get much more war. The dishonor they have already earned.

The writer, chairman of the Center for European Studies at Harvard University, contributed this comment to The New York Times.

For Democracy, Mexico's President Needs Power

By Stanley A. Weiss

WASHINGTON — Mexico has a new president and an old problem: how to move from dictatorship to democracy without first plunging the country into anarchy. Unfortunately, the United States isn't helping ease the transition. By pushing Mexico to fully embrace dramatic democratic reforms in the short run, Washington may be helping to ensure the triumph of dictatorship, or worse, in the long run.

Signs of stability were in short supply as Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de León began a six-year term on Dec. 1. The secretary-general of the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) was murdered in September. Mr. Zedillo would not be president but for the assassination of the party's first candidate, and the rebellion in the southern state of Chiapas shows signs of reigniting.

Mr. Zedillo is caught between the United States (and many Western-educated intellectuals in Mexico) pushing for a decentralization of power and the demands in his own party who are not above using violence to maintain their grip. So far he has veered toward those urging quick democratization. He has pledged to make the PRI independent of the government and to devolve federal powers to the states. But by doing so he will be giving up the very powers necessary to ensure Mexico's democratization.

That is Mr. Zedillo's catch-22. Fundamental change in the PRI and in the role of Congress means surrendering his power to keep Mexico calm through a mixture of patronage and authoritarianism. It is a recipe for resistance, reaction and violence.

There is another way. It is the way of Mr. Zedillo's predecessor, Carlos Salinas. Mr. Salinas followed the Asian model: good economics before good politics. He used his status of being above the law to dismiss more than half of the country's state governors. But during his reign the budget was balanced, triple-digit inflation came down to a manageable 7 percent, and most state-owned companies were privatized. As a result, Mexico has a burgeoning middle class and, through the North American Free Trade Agreement, much closer ties with the United States and Canada.

Today Mr. Zedillo faces problems and opponents even more formidable than those confronted by his predecessor. He needs to create a safety net for the tens of millions of Mexicans still living in poverty. He needs to radically restructure a corrupt judicial and legal system. But first, he must face down those who have amassed huge personal fortunes based on ties to the PRI.

He must also contend with the Zapatista rebels in the south and the narco-criminals in the north, whose profits from moving drugs into the United States each year are estimated to be more than twice the total revenues of Mexico's petroleum industry. To deal with this unholy triumvirate, he will need to wield more power — not less.

The United States has much at stake. Mexico is now its second largest trading partner, after Canada. Mexico is also its greatest source of illegal aliens and drugs — problems that will only get worse if conditions become less stable. And the U.S. relationship with Mexico can set a pattern for relations with the burgeoning democracies elsewhere in Latin America, many of which are clamoring for inclusion in NAFTA.

What should Mr. Zedillo do? Take a page out of his predecessor's playbook. In his first 100 days, Mr. Salinas attacked the corruption that was at the heart of Mexico's economic problems. He arrested the gangster head of the oil workers' union, the top executive of Mexico's largest brokerage house, and a major drug trafficker. That asserted his authority and gave him the breathing room for his economic reforms.

President Zedillo, too, should go after his enemies. He must face down the anti-democratic element within the PRI, pursue and arrest the leading drug dealers, and tell the Zapatistas that he will treat them fairly but that if their revolt resumes he will send in the army to restore order. Only then will he have laid a foundation upon which democracy can be built.

The writer is chairman of Business Executives for National Security, an organization of U.S. business leaders. He contributed this comment to The International Herald Tribune.

North Korea: Washington Has Some Hard Selling to Do at Home

By Jim Hoagland

WASHINGTON — It was a few weeks ago, in the Green Room of NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," James Carville, due on screen in front of us, Madeleine Albright, the Clinton administration's diplomatic bulldog, was telling interviewer Tim Russert why the United States had just agreed to guarantee energy supplies for North Korea.

"Paid for by South Korea and Japan!" Paid for by South Korea and Japan!" I bear Mr. Carville chanting in a stage whisper. The president's political adviser is trying to beam to the president's UN ambassador a selling point for the administration's controversial nuclear deal with Pyongyang. But his telepathy doesn't connect.

"Tell 'em Americans won't have to pay for it," Mr. Carville mutters with growing dismay as Mrs. Albright plows ahead with strategic and diplomatic justifications and ramifications.

Mr. Carville is considered by her media-savvy colleagues to be the best television foreign policy spokesman the administration has, in part because she resolutely refuses to commit nuance. She steams into each answer as if it were illegal to hold another point of view. But in the holding room where Mr. Russert stashes his program's waiting guests, Mr. Carville frets about the ambassador missing out on the politics of selling the North Korea deal.

Fret he should. It is not immediately obvious to heartland America why North Korea is being rewarded with two nuclear reactors worth $4 billion for having agreed conditionally on Oct. 10 to abandon, slowly and grudgingly, the nuclear weapons it has been developing — in defiance of international guarantees that Pyongyang had already given.

Mr. Carville's instinct is right.

The Clintonites have some heavy selling to do.

North Korea's government is isolated, Stalinist and economically crumbling. A few months ago it was listed as a "backlash state," an appellation the Clinton administration awards only to a half-dozen certified stinkers of the earth such as Iraq, Libya and Cuba. But as part of the Oct. 10 deal, the United States has agreed to lift its trade, investment and diplomatic barriers with North Korea, while getting South Korea and Japan to pay for two new Western-style nuclear reactors for Pyongyang.

South Korea initially gagged on a deal that if completed would save the hostile North Korean regime from collapse. But it has slowly come around to supporting the U.S.-brokered accord, for lack of a better alternative. That is likely to be the path followed by the rest of us as well, including the Republican majorities that will now control Congress.

The administration maintains that it does not have to submit the agreement to Congress for approval and intends to avoid votes on the floor of Congress by finding the up to $15 million the United States has to shell out (for oil shipments and other interim energy costs for North Korea) from already appropriated funds.

That strategy avoids having to face in partisan debate three broad questions that pose big problems for senior administration officials: (1) Do they really believe that North Korea has ceased being a backlash state and should therefore be trusted? (2) Why did Kim Jong Il do the deal now? (3) Won't it serve as an incentive for other backslashers to pursue nuclear weapons programs, to get bought off by the United States if for no other reason?

A Stalinist state depends on an external threat to justify its reign of terror. If the threat does not exist, the state invents it, or provokes it by belligerent acts. That is what North Korea has done for decades. For this deal to work, the dictatorship in Pyongyang will have to change its very nature.

Privately, U.S. officials say the economic and political concessions being offered the North are in fact poisoned bonbons. To get the goodies, Pyongyang has to open up the system and the country so much that the harsh Communist rule of today will be worn away. South Korea's leaders have accepted the deal because they believe that the regime in the North will have been transformed into a nonthreatening entity before the agreement is fulfilled.

American officials concede that they do not have any strong intelligence on why Kim Jong Il decided to take the American offer a few months after the death of his father, Kim Il Sung, and before he himself was officially installed in power. Nor do these officials present hard and fast reasons why the United States could not have held out for faster and more certain ways of shutting off the nuclear weapons development program.

The latter point is likely to be the longest line of attack by the Republicans, who are in the comfortable position of having a five target to shoot at without having to destroy it and accept the responsibility for what would follow. Their attacks are likely to make Mr. Carville squirm a lot more before this saga is finished.

The Washington Post.

Taiwan: A Successful Exercise in Smart Democracy

By Philip Bowling

HONG KONG — Taiwan elections have the outward appearance of what is worst about democracy and the inner strength of what is best. There is high-decibel rhetoric, some vote-buying and occasional (but not fatal) violence and occasional (but not fatal) violence.

A clear but sophisticated message is being sent to the voters — and to Beijing. So it proved again on Saturday, when 70 percent of eligible voters cast ballots in a range of contests, the most important being those for governor of Taiwan Province and mayors of Taipei and Kaohsiung, the principal cities.

The elections were more important than those contests would suggest. By taking place at all they reflected the continued political evolution of Taiwan. And they were seen to foreshadow 1996, when Taiwan will elect its president for the first time.

The ruling Kuomintang prevailed in the most important contest, for the governorship of Taiwan, and its mayor in Kaohsiung was re-elected. But it lost the mayoralty of Taipei to the candidate of the Democratic Progressive Party, or DPP, which advocates Taiwanese self-assertion and ultimately independence. The Kuomintang in fact came in third there, behind the candidate of the New Party, a purist breakaway of the KMT that is critical of money politics and suspicious of what it sees as Kuomintang pandering to Taiwanese regionalist sentiment.

What conclusions are to be drawn from this exercise in democracy by 20 million ethnic Chinese living in Taiwan? First, popular participation was immense, as reflected in election rallies, media coverage and voter turnout. Money still played some part, but with the major contests concentrated on a few candidates with huge constituencies, it played a much smaller role than in earlier elections, when vote-buying by local bigwigs was common.

The election was a rebuff to those who insist that Taiwan's democracy was brought about by pressure from Washington and not by struggles in the late 1980s led by the DPP.

Second, the results show a general endorsement of the middle-of-the-road agenda adopted by the Kuomintang under President Lee Teng-hui on matters relating to mainland China; namely, the emphasis on Taiwanese identity and the need for recognition of the de facto independence of the province while adhering to the ideal of one China.

The voters remained worried about the consequences — specifically, threats of an invasion from the mainland — of the DPP's demands for formal independence. Yet, voters at the province level continued to show that Taiwanese identity is a powerful force. The strongly pro-unification New Party did poorly, obtaining only 4.3 percent of the province-wide ballot, compared with 56 percent for the Kuomintang and 39 for the DPP.

Third, the Taipei defeat of the Kuomintang showed the voters' willingness to differentiate between national and local issues. In the capital, voters protested corruption and incompetence in the city administration. People of mainland origin, a larger proportion of the population in Taipei than elsewhere, are disillusioned with the Kuomintang's pro-Taiwanese drift. Middle-class critics of the KMT may be reluctant to vote for the Democratic Progressive Party, which sometimes appears nativist and rabble-rousing.

The net result was that the DPP got 44 percent, the New Party candidate, a respected former Kuomintang minister, Jaw Shau-kuang, 30 percent, and the KMT incumbent, only 26 percent.

But despite its setbacks, the Kuomintang bestrides the center of Taiwan politics. Lee Teng-hui put it there. This election result was one reward. The bigger one should come in 1996, when Mr. Lee stands to become Taiwan's first directly elected president.

Beijing will be deeply unhappy about Saturday's vote. It indicates that Taiwan is continuing to inch toward independence. It gives a democratic example to other Chinese that will not be welcomed everywhere. But nothing has happened to justify stronger action by Beijing in pursuit of "national" unity. It is hard to identify any serious leverage, short of blockade, that Beijing can bring to bear on Taiwan. China relies on Taiwanese-owned factories at least as much as Taiwan looks to China as an outlet for exports and a source of labor.

Taiwanese voters may like the occasional brawl, and they certainly want recognition. But the latest election results suggest that they have a strong grip on their own self-interest.

International Herald Tribune.

IN OUR PAGES: 100, 75 AND 50 YEARS AGO

1894: Reichstag Opens

BERLIN — The session of the Reichstag was opened by the Emperor in the Knights Hall of the Royal Castle this morning [Dec. 5]. His Majesty, in his speech from the throne, after announcing the removing of the Reichstag to the new building and invoking a divine blessing upon the latter, referred to the social question, and announced the determination of the Federal Governments to protect the weaker sections of society and to improve their economic and moral condition.

1919: Serbs Sign Treaty

PARIS — The Serbian delegation to the Peace Conference, headed by M. Pashich, yesterday [Dec. 5] went to the French Foreign Office and signed the declaration of adherence to the Treaty of Saint-Germain, under reserve of modifications made up to the present by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. The Yugo-Slav delegates afterwards signed the Treaty with Bulgaria.

1944: Tire Shortage

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris — [From our New York edition:] A severe tire shortage which threatens to put 10 percent of all American Army vehicles in Europe out of action by the first week in February, unless drastic conservation steps are taken, was disclosed today [Dec. 5] by General Dwight D. Eisenhower. The seriousness of the situation was brought to light by a letter which the supreme Allied commander addressed to every officer and enlisted man in the theater, urging them to "extract every possible mile from our tires, and use them only as necessary."

International Herald Tribune
ESTABLISHED 1887
KATHARINE GRAHAM, ARTHUR OCHS SULZBERGER
Co-Chairmen
RICHARD McCLEAN, Publisher & Chief Executive
JOHN VINOCUR, Executive Editor & Vice President
• WALTER WELLS, News Editor • SAMUEL ARI, KATHERINE KNORR and CHARLES MITCHELLMORE, Deputy Editors • CARL GEWIRTZ, Associate Editor
• ROBERT J. DONAHUE, Editor of the Editorial Pages • JONATHAN GAGE, Business and Finance Editor
• RENEE BONDY, Deputy Publisher • JAMES McLEOD, Advertising Director
• JUANITA CASPARI, International Development Director • ROBERT FARRÉ, Circulation Director, Europe
Directeur de la Publication: Richard D. Simmons
Directeur Adjoint de la Publication: Katharine P. Dorrone
International Herald Tribune, 181 Avenue Charles-de-Gaulle, 92521 Neuilly-sur-Seine, France.
Tel.: (1) 46 37 93 00. Fax: 46 37 05 51. Adv.: 46 37 52 12. Internet: IHT@earthlink.net
Editor for Asia: Michael Richardson, 50 Cantonment Rd., Singapore 0511. Tel. (65) 472-7768. Fax: (65) 274-2334
Mng. Dir. Asia: Jeff D. Kneppel, 50 Cantonment Rd., Hong Kong. Tel. 852-9222-1188. Fax: 852-9222-1190
Cm. Mng. Germany: T. Schiller, Friedrichstr. 15, 10117 Berlin. Tel. (49) 30 27 55 35. Fax: (49) 30 27 55 30
Pres. U.S.: Michael Conroy, 830 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. Tel. (212) 723-3800. Fax: (212) 723-3802
U.K. Advertising Office: 63 Long Acre, London WC2E 9LT. Tel. (44) 20 7460 1200. Fax: (44) 20 7460 1201
S.A. an imprint of L. 340000 F. RCS Nanterre B 732021 126. Commission Paritaire No. 61337
© 1994 International Herald Tribune. All rights reserved. ISSN 0294-8025

OPINION

Clinton Might Still Give 'em Hell

By David McCullough

WEST TISBURY, Mass. — The similarities between the Republican triumph on Nov. 8 and the congressional elections of 1946 are, understandably, the subject of great interest. Not only did the Republicans win the House and Senate by substantial majorities in both cases, recovering power after years of unbroken Democratic control, but the Democrat in the White House was humiliated. And although the incoming speaker of the House in 1946, Joseph W. Martin Jr., had none of the fire of a Newt Gingrich, he and the Republicans and Southern Democrats who dominated Capitol Hill felt that they had a mandate to cut into the power of the presidency and to turn back the New Deal.

Yet Harry Truman staged one of the great comebacks in political history. So an obvious question comes to mind: What does Bill Clinton have to do to be another Truman?

Truman had seen his popularity plunge. He was ridiculed for his diminutive size, his Midwestern ways, his past ties to Kansas City's Pendergast political machine, even for his devotion to his mother.

He was called stupid, corny and, like Bill Clinton, a small-bore provincial pol who was too eager to please everybody. The Democrats were mortified.

When Truman returned to Washington after voting in Missouri, Dean Acheson, the assistant secretary of state, was the only administration figure who bothered to go to Union Station to welcome him.

But interestingly, repudiation seemed to liberate Truman; he began to look and sound like a president of purpose and determination.

Truman took on and bested John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers. He put a balcony on the White House so that he and his wife, Bess, could enjoy outdoor privacy, and let the critics rant as they would. And in one of his wisest moves he named General George C. Marshall as secretary of state.

It was after the 1946 election, when the Truman presidency should have been in sorry eclipse, that most of his landmark achievements came to pass — the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, the first civil rights message ever sent to Congress, the executive order to desegregate the armed forces, the recognition of Israel, the Berlin airlift.

Of course, not all these triumphs were entirely Truman's doing. Some came in response to world events. It was the sudden withdrawal of British support from Greece and Turkey in 1947 that led to the Truman Doctrine; the Soviet blockade of Berlin in June 1948 that inspired the airlift. Nor should General Marshall's immense influence be discounted, as Truman was the first to stress.

And without the bipartisan support of the legislature that he berated later as the "do nothing 80th Congress" run by "a bunch of old mossbacks" — especially the leadership of Arthur Vandenberg, the Michigan Republican who headed the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — there would have been no Truman Doctrine, no Marshall Plan.

But in the presidency it is character that counts above all. Although never known to raise his voice with his staff, Truman could be tough as a boot when the chips were down. "We stay in Berlin," he said simply, emphatically, at the start of the crisis, at a time when there seemed no way to supply the beleaguered city.

The courage he is so widely remembered for was mainly the courage of his convictions. Warned by Southern Democrats and old friends back home that his civil rights program could cost him re-election, Truman responded that if he lost because of civil rights, then his failure would be in a good cause.

Like Bill Clinton, Harry Truman was being pushed and pulled in all directions on domestic issues. His cabinet, old friends on the Hill from his years in the Senate, big-city Democratic bosses such as Ed Flynn of the Bronx, former Roosevelt insiders, columnists and radio commentators — they all seemed to know better than he how he should conduct himself.

His staff, especially his counsel Clark Clifford, urged him to "strike for new moral high ground." If Congress was determined to gut the New Deal, Mr. Clifford said, Truman should be even more determined to see it improved and expanded.

The president called for more federal aid for education, raising the minimum wage, expanding Social Security and creating a national health insurance program, none of which Congress passed. It was this intractability on domestic matters that allowed Truman to tar the Congress as "do nothing" as he fought for election.

Truman wasn't always right. During this time he made the most reprehensible political decision of his presidency, an executive order to create the loyalty program, under which all federal employees were subject to investigations. Trying to appease the growing right-wing clamor over Communists in government, he made matters worse.

Still, he knew who he was and he knew what he stood for. This helped him keep a sense of proportion and to work for what he felt was best for the country in the long run, over mind the polls and the naysayers.

From his diary entries and private correspondence, we know how low he often felt. "Any man in his right mind would never want to be president if he knew what it entails," he confided to his sister in 1947. Yet those around him heard none of this, no complaints, no whining.

Dean Acheson later said it was the "life force" in Truman that so amazed them all — "his strongest, most inspiring quality, and always in the darkest, most difficult times."

Acheson recalled the lines from Shakespeare's "Henry V." where the King — Harry — walks among his dispirited, terrified troops in the dark of night before the battle of Agincourt: "Every wretch, pinning and pale before, beholding him, plucks comfort from his looks. . . . His liberal eye doth give to every one . . . a little touch of Harry in the night." Truman had little capacity to move an audience as could Franklin Roosevelt (or, for that matter, Bill Clinton). Still, on the night of July 15, 1948, in a sweltering Philadelphia auditorium, wearing a snow-white "ice cream suit," he walked onto a floodlit stage and brought a weary, dispirited Democratic National Convention to its feet cheering, as no one had thought possible. "I will win this election and make these Republicans like it — don't you forget that," he said, his hands chopping the air with each word. Although several factors aided his upset victory that November — including his lackluster opponent, Thomas E. Dewey, and a strong voter allegiance to the New Deal — it was Truman himself, the kind of person he was, that mattered most. If there is a lesson to be drawn from the Truman example, it is that.

The writer is author of "Truman," which won the 1992 Pulitzer Prize for biography. He contributed this comment to The New York Times.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bosnia Finger-Pointing

Regarding the report "Bosnia Fighting Rages as Allies Point Fingers" (Nov. 29):

After all the mutual recriminations, it has been the European approach to the war in ex-Yugoslavia that has prevailed.

While the United States may have wanted to do more with NATO air power and to lift the arms embargo, the Europeans vetoed those ideas. Whether they would have worked will never be known. Similarly, while the French and British may point to U.S. refusal to commit ground troops, it is difficult to believe that the addition of, say, 10,000 American troops acting as mere observers of determined Serbian aggression would have made a difference. The European approach was not to deter or prevent aggression, but merely to soothe the results of it. The stark fact is that it is this policy and this policy alone that has brought the situation in ex-Yugoslavia via to its present state of affairs. K. W. EMERSON, Brussels.

Yes, the war in the Balkans is horrible. Yes, the West should do something. The problem in this case, however, is not a lack of will but a flawed understanding of reality on the ground. Air strikes cannot stabilize the situation in Bosnia without the use of substantial NATO ground troops. This, of course, would split NATO, placing Turkey and Greece on opposite sides of a war which cannot be won without sacrificing the lives of thousands of American, British and French troops and spreading the disaster over larger swathes of Europe. Your essayists are effective at calling for action. I wonder if their sons or daughters would be among those likely to serve in a conflict that would in the end look much more like the Vietnam War than the Gulf War.

MIKE BAKER, Oslo.

Making Chicken Safe

Regarding the report "Got an Urge for Chicken? When in Europe, Careful" (Nov. 16):

In the United States, people have been made aware for years of the dangers of salmonella in chicken; it comes as no surprise that Europeans should also take precautions. In addition to the statistics provided, the article should have included more of the basic safeguards that virtually eliminate health risks.

Chicken should always be refrigerated until it is to be prepared; this retards salmonella growth. Rinse chicken under cold water before cooking, and clean all utensils and cutting surfaces well with hot, soapy water promptly after use. As the article stated, thorough cooking kills the salmonella bacterium, therefore care should be taken not to eat chicken which is still pink inside.

ANTONIA SCHLUETER, Cuneo, Italy.

Peacemaking: A Fine Art Finds a Spot in the Schools

By Colman McCarthy

WASHINGTON — In her travels around the United States speaking with high school social studies teachers, and in hosting them in Washington, Mary Soley of the U.S. Institute of Peace has seen an idea taking root: Peacemaking can be taught and learned. As the institute marks its 10th anniversary this month, Ms. Soley, a senior program officer in education and training, is one of the reasons to be modestly grateful that this small independent agency is around.

"Small" may be overstating it. This year's budget is $11.5 million, equal to what the Pentagon spends in eight seconds. Since 1984, Congress has given the institute $76 million — or 1/144th the U.S. Army's yearly budget for research, development and acquisition.

The institute, which calls itself "an organization devoted to furthering world peace," barely survived its infancy. The second Reagan administration sought to kill it with zero funding in 1985 and '86. Then it packed the board with a mix of far-right ideologues, militarists and retired academics needing a perch.

For a time, it appeared as if the institute was destined to offer no greater service than staging conferences for former diplomats, policy analysts and assorted brow-furrowers to ponder the latest worrisome threat and hear each other talk. On that drossy level, it might well have been an annex to the Heritage Foundation.

In 1991, shifts began from discussing peace to teaching it. Small grants — 25 percent of the institute's budget — must be in grants — were dispensed for classroom peace education. Last month, a 110-page book, "Managing World Conflict," was published. For 1995, the institute states that one of its two priorities "will be to increase its effort in education and training in the classroom . . . and in the specialized areas of skills training in conflict resolution."

What created this shift? Consumer demand. Teachers, few of whom went to high schools or colleges themselves where courses in peace studies or conflict resolution were offered, began asking Mary Soley and her institute colleagues for teaching materials and strategies.

"Among educators," Ms. Soley says, "I'm finding that obviously they need to talk about national security issues but now they're saying we also need to discuss the mechanism for peacemaking. There's a transformation about what they're teaching."

Ms. Soley, a high school history teacher in Indiana before getting a doctorate in education and political science in 1982, came to the institute in 1991. That year, by coincidence, a Close Up Foundation survey of teachers found that 91 percent reported an "academic inadequacy, and one-sidedness" in teaching materials on peace education.

The institute is new to the field. So is nearly everyone else. Overnight, it seems, more than 300 violence prevention programs and 100 conflict resolution curricula have been made available by anti-violence groups to middle and high schools, according to the National Network of Violence Prevention Practitioners. Peer mediation has never been more in vogue.

Much of that is a reaction to adolescent violence, from kids shooting kids to students harming teachers. As useful as this eruption of concern may be, violence prevention is not peace education. The goal should be fully educating the young, beginning in first grade, in a viable solution: knowledge of the methods, history and practitioners of nonviolence and pacifism.

An academic grounding in those worthy disciplines would give students the ideas and facts needed to reject not only schoolyard violence but America's legalized violence as found in its interventionary wars, capital punishment, abortion, television and film gore, sexual and racial discrimination, animal exploitation and corporations fighting health and safety regulations.

Teaching the art of peacemaking to kids is more than explaining how to walk away from fights. It is offering a broad educational choice: access to ideas and methods to counter the cultural and institutional blessings of violence that now prevail.

If the U.S. Institute of Peace is moving in that direction — to the classrooms of America's 28,000 high schools and 78,000 grade schools — we can escalate from being modestly grateful to resoundingly grateful.

Washington Post Writers Group.

Letters intended for publication should be addressed "Letters to the Editor" and contain the writer's signature, name and full address. Letters should be brief and are subject to editing. We cannot be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts.

INTERNATIONAL
Herald Tribune
NEW YORK TIMES AND THE WASHINGTON POST

People going places get more out of it.

You tell us you enjoy the 30 minutes you spend engrossed in your paper. It appears you don't miss a single page.

You also tell us that last year alone you flew on an astonishing 4.76 million business air trips and rented 1.56 million cars.

It appears then, that you and the leading travel companies who advertise with us are destined to meet in the pages of the International Herald Tribune.

For summaries of the surveys from which these facts are taken, please call in Europe, James McLeod on (33-1) 46 37 93 81; in Asia, Andrew Thomas on (65) 223 6478; in the Americas, Richard Lynch on (212) 752 3890.

Hotel Okura Tokyo
Jet Lag Plan

Jet lag can be a drag.

It's afternoon in Tokyo. The business meeting is going well. Yet something feels wrong. Your body is awake, but your mind seems asleep somewhere in London. Welcome to the world of jet lag.

The Hotel Okura understands that adjusting to new time zones is often half the global business battle. So we've created a special Jet Lag Plan that helps you adapt as quickly as possible.

The only such plan in Japan, its amenities cover the three main avenues of attack for overcoming the effects of jet lag:

Exercise: Use of the Okura Health Club for stretching, swimming, sauna, jet stream bath and bodysonic systems.

Relaxation: A light therapy box that simulates soothing natural daylight, relaxation videos, and the special sleep pillows you prefer automatically furnished to your room every time you visit—a Hotel Okura exclusive service.

Special Okura jet-lag nutrition menu.

Naturally, all this takes place in an atmosphere of comfort and luxury that makes the Hotel Okura the best business address you can have when you're travelling in Japan. Find out for yourself.

The Legend in the Heart of Tokyo

Hotel Okura

2-10-4 Toranomon, Minato-ku, Tokyo 105, Japan
Tel: (3) 3582-0111; Fax: (3) 3582-3707

For a brochure regarding the Hotel Okura Jet Lag Plan, contact us by mail or facsimile. Include your name, address, company and title, telephone, facsimile number, and the name of the publication in which you saw this ad.

London Office Tel: (0171) 353-4994; Fax: (0171) 353-0677 Amsterdam Office Tel: (020) 676160; Fax: (020) 676885 New York Office Tel: (212) 755-0735; Fax: (212) 688-4827 Los Angeles Office Tel: (213) 526-2221, (213) 488-1477; Fax: (213) 488-9382 Hong Kong Office Tel: 896-1717; Fax: 896-1808

For more than a century and a half, Patek Philippe has been known as the finest watch in the world. The reason is very simple. It is made differently. It is made using skills and techniques that others have lost or forgotten. It is made with attention to detail very few people would notice. It is made, we have to admit, with a total disregard for time. If a particular Patek Philippe movement requires four years of continuous work to bring to absolute perfection, we will take four years. The result will be a watch that is unlike any other. A watch that conveys quality from first glance and first touch. A watch with a distinction: generation after generation it has been worn, loved and collected by those who are very difficult to please; those who will only accept the best. For the day that you take delivery of your Patek Philippe, you will have acquired the best. Your watch will be a masterpiece, quietly reflecting your own values. A watch that was made to be treasured.

PATEK PHILIPPE
GENEVE

Patek Philippe S.A.,
41, rue du Rhône - 1211 Geneva 3 - Switzerland

President Made Dash To Europe And Back

By Douglas Jehl
New York Times Service

BUDAPEST — Seldom has an American president traveled so far so quickly for so symbolic a purpose as did Bill Clinton in the 24 hours that ended Monday at 6:30 P.M.

From a White House ceremony honoring American artists, Mr. Clinton clambered aboard Air Force One Sunday for a flight to the Hungarian capital.

He read a brief statement, hurried to a ceremony, called on his hosts, and grunted for the cameras along with the dozens of his counterparts who were here to attend the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

And then the president climbed back on his plane, this time to dash back to the White House for the one event his advisers decided he could not give short shrift: a Christmas party for members of the outgoing Congress.

Even a senior administration official who joined Mr. Clinton on his flight said its main purpose was to offer "a symbolic demonstration of American commitment to the organization and to Europe."

The president completed his 9,104-mile (14,736-kilometer) trip in just over 24 hours, traveling at an average speed of more than 370 miles per hour even during the slightly more than six hours that he was on the ground.

What forced the tight schedule was in large part indecision within a White House whose advisers were at odds all year about whether the president should make the journey.

It was not until late last month that foreign policy deputies finally prevailed, in saying that it would be a mistake to give a European summit meeting a slight.

At the Budapest meeting: Mr. Clinton, Jacques Delors, Mr. Kohl and Klaus Kinkel.

DELORS: 'Noncontender' Tests the Waters in France

Continued from Page 1

a caricaturist's idea of Donald Duck in horn-rims and likes bull sessions with Al Gore, the workaholic whose idea of leisure is watching soccer games and the Tour de France bicycle race — this earnest figure comes out of the phone booth a contender, a man who gets mad, ridicules his rivals, speaks ringingly about his vision of France.

His political autobiography has a plot perhaps best summarized as follows: Mr. Delors goes to Brussels and gets mugged by the real facts behind Euro-sclerosis.

Once a Socialist, economist and internationalist, Mr. Delors has been converted to the belief that there is no substitute for free markets. Political action is the key to national destiny and French leadership is the only hope for European unity.

This conversion of Mr. Delors from Eurocrat to patriot does not exactly leap off the pages of his book, which offers few populist concessions beyond a jacket photograph of Mr. Delors with unattractively bright blue eyes — a gift from his publisher who has a way with special effects. Most of the time, arcane references elude the prose until it reads like the Maastricht treaty — which, incidentally, Mr. Delors says that he deemed badly drafted even when he was promoting it.

At present, such pungent directness emerges mainly in smallish gatherings of his supporters, sessions with other French leaders or private events.

On one recent such occasion, a score of guests, including Nobel-winning scientists, publishers, academics, lawyers, journalists and a movie director who said that he had never voted before, milled around Mr. Delors in a private room at a Paris restaurant for a pre-prandial drink. On cue, a tapestry wall dropped silently through the floor, so guests could move next door to the dinner table.

It was a four-course seminar. With the fig leaf of privacy, Mr. Delors can be withering: French politicians, he says, are hiding the truth from voters who are deeply unsure about Europe and themselves.

His analysis — summarized by intimates since Mr. Delors did not spell it out — centers on a paralyzing French fear of re-united Germany's growing power. As a result, France is regressing into narrow chauvinism, a paranoia liable to become self-fulfilling prophecy.

To break this vicious circle, France must bank on a more deeply integrated European Union, Mr. Delors says, quickly adding that it can be largely shaped to French designs on condition that Paris sacrifices enough sovereignty to make unity credible in German eyes.

German politicians, who gave Mr. Delors more backing in Brussels than French leaders did, make no secret of their hope that Mr. Delors will beat out his conservative rivals, all of whom are less pro-European.

Accusations that he is "Germany's candidate" are part of the image Mr. Delors would have to dispel in order to win election. In a nation shifting to the right, Mr. Delors insists that a strong state is needed to correct social tensions.

That crossover would juggle the French political landscape as the centrist parties pulled Mr. Delors to the right. The prospect makes Mr. Delors a candidate, not just for the presidency, but for the history books.

Mr. Delors could then promote his personal vision of strengthening the French state in areas where it can alleviate social tensions and yet abolish state control in the economy — for example, privatizing telecommunications and other industries that are still able to compete internationally.

That crossover would juggle the French political landscape as the centrist parties pulled Mr. Delors to the right. The prospect makes Mr. Delors a candidate, not just for the presidency, but for the history books.

Mr. Delors could then promote his personal vision of strengthening the French state in areas where it can alleviate social tensions and yet abolish state control in the economy — for example, privatizing telecommunications and other industries that are still able to compete internationally.

SUMMIT: U.S.-Russia Split

Continued from Page 1

propose ending the war. For his part, Mr. Iztbegovic, whose country is gripped in a war that has left more than 200,000 dead or missing, unleashed a vitriolic attack rarely heard at such diplomatic gatherings and vowed that his soldiers would fight to the bitter end.

"What shall be the result of the war in Bosnia, which is now being prolonged due to a mixture of incapability, hesitation and sometimes even ill-will of the West?" Mr. Iztbegovic asked the other leaders. "The result shall be a discredited United Nations, a ruined NATO, Europeans demoralized by a feeling of inability to respond to the first crisis after the Cold War."

He painted a picture of what he called a different world as a result of the European and American failure in Bosnia, "a worse world in which the relations between Europe and the U.S.A., the West and Russia, and the West and the Muslim world shall never again be the same."

Mr. Clinton, whose trip to Budapest initially was opposed by his domestic political advisers, appeared eager to avoid any encounter that could have entangled him in substantive and potentially contentious discussions.

He spent only seven hours on the ground and did not conduct a full-scale meeting with Mr. Yeltsin except for brief exchanges on the margins of the arms control ceremonies.

His only meetings with other leaders before he left for Washington were what White House officials described as two brief "pull-asides," one with Mr. Kohl, the other with Mr. Iztbegovic and President Franjo Tudjman of Croatia.

VIETNAM: A Generation in U.S. Looks Homeward

Continued from Page 1

up in a place where they know their neighbors."

Miss Ngo's fascination with the land her parents fled makes them a little uneasy, but unlike the parents of some of her Vietnamese-American friends, her father never threatened to disown her if she returned.

From consulting firms to car rental companies to boutiques and restaurants like Cali-pho in Ham-bu-rg in Ho Chi Minh City, the former Saigon, the enterprises of overseas Vietnamese are appearing on the business scene in an increasingly hustling Vietnam.

There are no firm figures on the number of refugees who are returning to stay, known as "Viet Kieu." But their businesses are a growing part of an infusion of hard currency into Vietnam, a state that the Hanoi government says totals more than $600 million a year.

Some less affluent emigrants bring a few thousand dollars to help their families establish small enterprises like guest houses, tailor shops or motorcycle repair shops. Wealthier individuals or groups are negotiating to build hospitals or finance condominiums and beach resorts.

The smaller enterprises mostly fly below the radar of government interference and red tape. Like other ethnic Vietnamese, Miss Ngo benefits from family connections — an aunt in this government office, an in-law in that one — that she said can at least help steer her through the bureaucracy.

She also makes full use of family ties to address the mutual mistrust that can make business negotiations here a delicate minefield.

Suspicion on the Vietnamese side has been furthered by foreign entrepreneurs who have taken advantage of the Vietnamese's innocence in the marketplace.

More American business executives now believe NAFTA has created jobs in the United States and many think the pact should be expanded into Latin America, said a survey released Monday. The Associated Press reported from New York.

The survey, commissioned by the consulting firm KPMG Peat Marwick LLP, found that 62 percent of U.S. executives involved in global strategic planning favored broadening NAFTA to include Latin America.

The trade accord has been criticized for failing to deliver on its promise of more U.S. jobs. A congressional analysis released last week said NAFTA had resulted in a net loss of 10,000 U.S. jobs.

CHINA: Dissident Sues Government Over Harassment

Continued from Page 1

to the law that the public security bureau should stop invading my rights."

Mr. Wang was a co-founder of the Beijing Autonomous Students' Federation during the popular 1989 protests, landing him at the top of a nationwide most-wanted list of student leaders after troops crushed the protests.

He was arrested, sentenced to four years in prison for counter-revolutionary activities and paroled in February 1993, six months before his sentence was to expire.

In his lawsuit, Mr. Wang complained that the police had set up camp six months ago at the entrance to the apartment block where he lives, followed him whenever he went out and refused to give an explanation when he confronted them.

He appealed to the court to accept his lawsuit, but added that he was not optimistic.

Also on Monday, a dissident in Shanghai, Han Lifa, said he and several other activists had resumed Sunday meetings at the city's People's Park. For several years, activists had gathered weekly at the park.

But Shanghai authorities have cracked down on democracy activities in the past year and have sentenced at least four leading dissidents to labor camp sentences.

Mr. Han said the family of one Shanghai political prisoner, Bao Ge, was still awaiting a government decision on whether he will be allowed to pay his last respects to his father, who died Nov. 27. (Reuters, AP) to the law that the public security bureau should stop invading my rights."

CHINA: Dissident Sues Government Over Harassment

Continued from Page 1

Mr. Wang was a co-founder of the Beijing Autonomous Students' Federation during the popular 1989 protests, landing him at the top of a nationwide most-wanted list of student leaders after troops crushed the protests.

He was arrested, sentenced to four years in prison for counter-revolutionary activities and paroled in February 1993, six months before his sentence was to expire.

In his lawsuit, Mr. Wang complained that the police had set up camp six months ago at the entrance to the apartment block where he lives, followed him whenever he went out and refused to give an explanation when he confronted them.

He appealed to the court to accept his lawsuit, but added that he was not optimistic.

Also on Monday, a dissident in Shanghai, Han Lifa, said he and several other activists had resumed Sunday meetings at the city's People's Park. For several years, activists had gathered weekly at the park.

But Shanghai authorities have cracked down on democracy activities in the past year and have sentenced at least four leading dissidents to labor camp sentences.

Mr. Han said the family of one Shanghai political prisoner, Bao Ge, was still awaiting a government decision on whether he will be allowed to pay his last respects to his father, who died Nov. 27. (Reuters, AP) to the law that the public security bureau should stop invading my rights."

CHINA: Dissident Sues Government Over Harassment

Continued from Page 1

Mr. Wang was a co-founder of the Beijing Autonomous Students' Federation during the popular 1989 protests, landing him at the top of a nationwide most-wanted list of student leaders after troops crushed the protests.

He was arrested, sentenced to four years in prison for counter-revolutionary activities and paroled in February 1993, six months before his sentence was to expire.

In his lawsuit, Mr. Wang complained that the police had set up camp six months ago at the entrance to the apartment block where he lives, followed him whenever he went out and refused to give an explanation when he confronted them.

He appealed to the court to accept his lawsuit, but added that he was not optimistic.

Also on Monday, a dissident in Shanghai, Han Lifa, said he and several other activists had resumed Sunday meetings at the city's People's Park. For several years, activists had gathered weekly at the park.

But Shanghai authorities have cracked down on democracy activities in the past year and have sentenced at least four leading dissidents to labor camp sentences.

Mr. Han said the family of one Shanghai political prisoner, Bao Ge, was still awaiting a government decision on whether he will be allowed to pay his last respects to his father, who died Nov. 27. (Reuters, AP) to the law that the public security bureau should stop invading my rights."

CHINA: Dissident Sues Government Over Harassment

Continued from Page 1

Mr. Wang was a co-founder of the Beijing Autonomous Students' Federation during the popular 1989 protests, landing him at the top of a nationwide most-wanted list of student leaders after troops crushed the protests.

He was arrested, sentenced to four years in prison for counter-revolutionary activities and paroled in February 1993, six months before his sentence was to expire.

In his lawsuit, Mr. Wang complained that the police had set up camp six months ago at the entrance to the apartment block where he lives, followed him whenever he went out and refused to give an explanation when he confronted them.

He appealed to the court to accept his lawsuit, but added that he was not optimistic.

Also on Monday, a dissident in Shanghai, Han Lifa, said he and several other activists had resumed Sunday meetings at the city's People's Park. For several years, activists had gathered weekly at the park.

But Shanghai authorities have cracked down on democracy activities in the past year and have sentenced at least four leading dissidents to labor camp sentences.

Mr. Han said the family of one Shanghai political prisoner, Bao Ge, was still awaiting a government decision on whether he will be allowed to pay his last respects to his father, who died Nov. 27. (Reuters, AP)

No matter where you're traveling to, THIS IS YOUR RETURN TICKET.

COUNTRIES	ACCESS NUMBERS	COUNTRIES	ACCESS NUMBERS	COUNTRIES	ACCESS NUMBERS	COUNTRIES	ACCESS NUMBERS
American Samoa	633-1000	Cyprus	005-55-877	Peru	106	Taiwan	00-800-1-4477
Anguilla (dedicated phone)	20	Czech Republic	0042-287-187	Philippines (ETI dialers only)	108-01	U.S. Virgin Islands	1-800-877-4000
Antigua (local phone)	1-800-366-4668	Dominican Rep.	001-809-771-7777	Philippines (PhilCom)	108-10	U.S.	1-800-877-4000
Argentina	001-800-777-1111	Egypt	002-2-477-4777	Philippines (PLDT)	109-10	Uruguay	0052-99-0027
Australia	006-551-110	Egypt (all other)	002-2-477-4777	Poland	00104-800-115	United Arab Emirates	00971-4-777
Australia (Telstra)	1-800-481-4777	El Salvador	00504-290-100-3	Portugal	00351-21-477	United Kingdom (BT)	0800-89-0027
Austria	0043-1-477-4777	Finland	0900-1-4774	Puerto Rico	1-800-877-8000	United Kingdom (Mercury)	0800-89-0027
Bahamas	1-800-389-2111	France	0033-1-477-4777	Romania	01-800-0877	Uruguay	0052-99-0027
Bahamas 2	1-800-877-8000	Germany	0049-1-477-4777	Russia (Moscow)	155-6133	Venezuela City	0052-99-0027
Belgium	0032-2-477-4777	Greece	0030-1-477-4777	Russia (all other)	007-155-6133	Venezuela (English)	172-1877
Belize (local)	556	Hong Kong	00852-2-477-4777	Spain	0034-1-477-4777	Venezuela (Spanish)	800-1111-0
Belize 2	1-800-877-8000	Hungary	0036-1-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777		800-1111-1
Bermuda	1-800-473-0877	India	0091-1-477-4777	Sweden	0046-1-477-4777
Bolivia	00591-2-477-4777	Indonesia	0062-2-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Brazil	0055-11-477-4777	Israel	00972-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
British Virgin Is. 3	1-800-877-8000	Italy	0039-2-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Bulgaria	00359-1-477-4777	Japan	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Canada	1-800-877-8000	Japan (English)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Chile	0056-2-477-4777	Japan (Korean)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
China (English)	0086-10-477-4777	Japan (Japanese)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
China (Mandarin)	0086-10-477-4777	Japan (Korean)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Colombia (English)	0057-1-477-4777	Japan (Japanese)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Colombia (Spanish)	0057-1-477-4777	Japan (Korean)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Costa Rica	00506-2-477-4777	Japan (Japanese)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777
Croatia	00385-1-477-4777	Japan (Korean)	0081-3-477-4777	Switzerland	0041-1-477-4777

Sprint.

It's not just the handy guide and dial that's your number for the country you're calling. In no time at all, you'll be connected to an English-speaking Sprint Operator. It's that easy.

Helmut Newton's Cover-Up: No More Nudes

By Suzy Menkes
International Herald Tribune

PARIS — At the age of 74, Helmut Newton has taken a radical decision: no more nudes. The provocative photographer calls the show of full-sized images of oiled women, starkly black and white, in a Paris Left Bank gallery, "Mes derniers nus" (My Last Nudes). And Newton, who has dodged the flak from feminists for 15 years over his so-called "porno-photography," says that he suddenly has had a "strong reaction" against the exposed female body.

"I think I have done enough," he says. "Even when you see a lovely body or an interesting body, I don't think I am going to be seduced. I have a very strong desire to photograph women clothed from head-to-foot with hardly an inch of flesh."

It may be a prescient decision from a controversial photographer who has always been ahead of the trend. His sexually ambivalent images of the 1970s were precursors of fashion androgyny; his hard-edge bondage and fetish references ultimately reached the runways.

"It will be very interesting and extremely daring to photograph women fully dressed," he claims. "It is much more interesting to work under certain restraints than to work in a society where anything is allowed."

Nudes is good news for fashion. For Newton has signed a contract to work exclusively with American Vogue — 20 years after his images of louché, sexually predatory women first shocked the fashion world.

Since those images, especially the work with Yves Saint Laurent in the 1970s, are a current source of inspiration to young designers and photographers, Newton's second flowering is also a double-take. A recent spread in a British magazine was a pastiche of the images of divine decadence that Newton took on his favorite setting of Monte Carlo Beach. (He lives in the principality with his wife, June, known as the photographer Alice Springs.)

What does Newton think of the homage to his seminal work by fashion designer Marc Jacobs, and his palpable influence on current photographs evoking sex and violence?

"I think I am a very lucky guy

— I am sorry for Guy Bourdin that he is not alive," says Newton, referring to a fellow photographer who died in 1991; their two influences gave French Vogue the stamp of fashion authority for two decades.

What fashion pros describe as "very Helmut Newton" means images of Amazonian bodies (even before women worked out), pictures suggesting erotic relationships, often with voyeurs, and strange, unsettling scenarios, like the 1979 photo of models in a steam bath while another woman is laid out cadaver-like in a herbal wrap.

Newton says he is fascinated by images from the 1920s and 1930s, especially the work of the Hungarian-born photographer Brassai and his low-life visions of Paris.

In a striking Newton image of 1975, a mannish woman in a Saint Laurent tuxedo poses in a mean street (another version had a nude beside her). It not only set the fashion agenda for the androgynous 1980s, but also looked back to the Marlene Dietrich Berlin in the 1930s, where Newton spent his teenage years, before his Jewish family fled Berlin for Australia.

"I can't deny the influence of Berlin," he says. It comes in the louché voyeurism, the glossy references to fetishism, or in the symbolic, morose (even for nudes). Newton claims it originated as a teenage crush on the monocled woman who worked with him at the studio of the photographer Yva, where Newton was apprenticed at age 16. It could just as well be taken from the painting by Otto Dix.

The first photographic shoot for American Vogue took place in Monte Carlo last Friday and featured that other Newton obsession, with medical imagery. To create an ambience for a high-heeled shoes story, towering model Nadja Auermann, with one leg in a plaster cast, is carried aloft by men or pushed in a wheelchair. Newton puts down such surgical obsessions to "my hypochondria." His critics suggest it is part of his instinct to portray women as victims.

"I am not going to defend myself," says Newton, reciting the rhetorical question of why he would photograph women if he did not like them, adding provocatively that anyway "a masochist is the stronger person than the sadist."

There is no doubting the

A decadent display of diamonds on Monte Carlo Beach, for American Vogue, 1989; androgynous Saint Laurent tuxedo on a mean Paris street, 1975; and self-portrait.

power of Newton's women, clothed or undressed, as in the series he painstakingly created to identical settings in the 1980s, as a prelude to fashion going offstage and nudes becoming his obsession.

He helped break conventions... the frankly appraising glance of the liberated woman, of a woman who feels sure of herself towards men, makes this one of the most suggestive pictures I think Vogue has ever published," wrote Alexander Liberman, deputy chairman-editorial for Condé Nast publications, of a 1975 photo of a woman with legs splayed under a thin dress.

It is rare for a photographer to stay at fashion's cutting edge, but Anna Wintour, editor-in-chief of American Vogue, calls Newton "one of the leading photographers and right now he seems to be having such an influence." She cites British photographer Nick Knight and the German Jürgen Teller.

Wintour believes that the running-in-the-street reportage that she herself pioneered, has inevitably caused a reaction toward more graphic and stylized images.

Two years ago, Newton walked out of a fashion photography seminar in Monte Carlo claiming that it was "cheating" to take fashion images that do not focus on clothes. His wife, he says, will criticize a picture if she can't "see the buttons."

"If someone asks you to photograph a building, and you photograph the clouds, it seems pointless," he says. "In the best fashion photographs we can all remember the dresses. I remember [Irving] Penn's fashion photographs — the big hats, the wasp waists, and then it all goes out."

Newton's warts-and-all photography still has the power to shock. A jewelry spread last summer in French Vogue had wrinkled hands in Bulgari rings, gutting the entrails of a chicken. He was inordinately pleased at the reaction.

The nudes at the Vallois gallery (36 Rue de Seine, in the sixth arrondissement, until Jan. 15) are not placed in Newton's usual, art-directed context. They gaze out from a plain ground.

"Terrorists" was the original title, because the inspiration for these life-size figures, stripped bare, came from seeing pictures of Baader-Meinhof suspects in police cells. In an adjacent room, Newton presents "mutations," distorted versions, when he re-photographed the images on different planes to show close-ups of genitals or breasts swelling from armless torsos. Instead of the familiar sparkling water of Monte Carlo Beach, bodies float as if dissolving in a bath of acid. The pictures are weird and disturbing.

"You destroy what you love," says Newton. "They are the last of the line."

Dior: Measuring the Man

International Herald Tribune

PARIS — When a new biography of Christian Dior is "baptized" at the couture house Wednesday, two famous faces will be missing: Dior's elderly sister Catherine, who shared a sheltered bourgeois childhood in a flower-filled Normandy garden; and Jacques Rouët, the genie of the company's expansion from its foundation in 1946 until 1984.

The book's "outing" of Dior as a homosexual, although delicately done, has appalled the tight-knit circle of people who still revere the master couturier, who died in 1957, a decade after his "New Look" revolutionized postwar fashion.

Catherine Dior is also perturbed by what she feels is an unjust portrait of their mother as a social climber. Rouët is concerned that a veil has been lifted on a private life about which Dior himself was ultra-discreet.

To its credit, the house of Dior, now under the ownership of Bernard Arnault, has stood by author Marie-France Pochna, a French journalist and broadcaster. Arnault is telling friends privately that he finds nothing shocking in 1994, in discussing the life of a designer who died 37 years ago — and in the context of a serious book that presents Dior as a marketing pioneer as well as a creative spirit.

In "Christian Dior" (Flammarion), the effect of Pochna's infamous "outing" is rather to enhance Dior's stature, because she places him in the artistic milieu of the 1920s, when he was part of a quasi-Bohemian circle that included Jean Cocteau and Christian Bérard.

The book portrays the family as less than the Edwardian idyll that Dior himself suggested.

(One brother had Bolshevik leanings and another was mentally disturbed). Yet Dior, obliged to earn his living after his father was ruined in the 1930s crash, comes out as more astute and interesting than the marshmallow portraits previously painted.

In the same week as this literary storm in a thimble, the Lyon-based "Université de la Mode" announced a new annual prize for a fashion book, in French and in a foreign language. It may have trouble making a short list.

The good news is that an extensively researched "Dictionnaire de la Mode au XXe Siècle," or fashion encyclopedia of the 20th century, edited by Bruno Renauzy, was published by Editions du Regard this fall. Most fashion books, funded by the designers themselves, are gush and puff, with self-congratulatory texts filling the (small) space between lavish pictures.

Even serious authors who have had the cooperation of a fashion house may find themselves frozen out if the results do not please (like the biography of Saint Laurent by journalist Laurence Benaim, which was ultimately ignored by the house).

Nobody wants fashion biographies to focus only on the private side — like the recent unauthorized "Obsession: The Life and Times of Calvin Klein," which tells all about homosexual parties on Fire Island in the 1970s and little about the designer's contribution to fashion. But an artist expresses himself in his work, and it helps to know about the man behind the myth.

Suzy Menkes

This year 40 million hotel guests in 30 cities will turn to WHERE Magazines for directions & advice

WHERE
INTERNATIONAL

The English-language magazine for affluent tourists
London: Tel 44 171 436 55 53 Fax 44 171 436 45 07
Paris: Tel 33 1 44 56 31 99 Fax 33 1 42 66 49 11
Rome: Tel 39 6 529 30 06 Fax 39 6 529 30 06
Budapest: Tel 36 1 266 3113 Fax 36 1 118 5318
Dublin: Tel 353 1 831 4752 Fax 353 1 831 4769
Costa del Sol: Tel 34 5 282 2498 Fax 34 5 282 2498

The 25 key world markets reported in a single index — daily in the IHT.

The Trib Index, the IHT's exclusive global equities index, tracks share price movements in all the world's major markets and industrial sectors. This unique index provides a quick, selective benchmark on the state of the world's stock markets and, indirectly, the international economy. It is the only major world equities index to carry a Latin American component. The Trib Index appears daily in the International Herald Tribune.

Herald Tribune

Les Roses de Noël

Motifs d'oreilles, or, corail et brillants.

Broche or, corail, et brillants.

Van Cleef & Arpels

"Il est des signatures auxquelles on tient."

Dec. 5, 1994

INTERNATIONAL FUNDS managed by funds listed and transmitted by MICROPAL PARIS (Tel.

frequency of quotations supplied: (d) - daily; (w) - weekly; (b) - bi-monthly; (t) fortnightly (every two weeks); (o) - once a month.

INVESTMENT FIRM	GT Strategic Rd Ed B Sh—5	8.64	MCKINLEY CAPITAL PARTNERS, LTD	PUTNAM	33.93
				d Emerging Hlth Sc. Trust—$	29.51

1990

100

1. Phragmites (Common Reed)

MARKET DIARY

Stocks Move Little, Fearing Rate Rises

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches
NEW YORK — The stock market finished mixed Monday as concern that rising rates would draw money from stocks offset expectations of strong corporate earnings.

The Dow Jones industrial average finished down 3.70 points at 3,741.92, but gaining issues

U.S. Stocks

Outnumbered losing issues by an 11-to-10 ratio on the New York Stock Exchange.

The price of the benchmark 30-year Treasury bond fell 5/32 point, to 95 7/32, while the yield edged up to 7.92 percent from 7.91 percent Friday.

Bonds were set back after data showing strong sales of new homes and automobiles revived concern that brisk economic growth could accelerate inflation, traders said.

RJR Nabisco was the most actively traded issue on the Big Board, slipping 1/4 to 6 1/4 after the Federal Trade Commission said it was considering changing the way it tested the level of nicotine and tar in cigarettes. That could affect how tobacco companies advertise so-called light brands.

Computer stocks were strong on expectations for growing demand for personal computers.

Michael Kwanitz, a computer analyst for PaineWebber, said surveys of retailers implied that "an impressive consumer quarter for personal computer sales is in progress," with demand in some instances outstripping supply.

Compaq rose 3/4 to 40 1/4, and Dell rose 1/4 to 42 1/4. International Business Machines got an added lift, rising 1/2 to 71 1/4, after SoundView Financial Group raised its investment opinion to short-term buy from hold.

PPG Industries fell 1/4 to 35 1/4 after the company said analysts' estimates for the year were probably accurate but that it considered their upper predictions for 1995 income a "challenge."

In over-the-counter trading, Electronic Arts rose 1/4 to 21 1/4 on rumors that the developer of interactive entertainment software would merge with Bertelsmann AG, the German media company. Bertelsmann denied there were any such talks in progress. (Bloomberg, AP)

Dollar Slips as Traders Lock In Their Gains

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

NEW YORK — The dollar was mostly lower Monday as traders took profits after the currency's gains last week, dealers said.

A series of stronger-than-expected economic reports last week sparked speculation that the Federal Reserve Board would have to follow up its 75-basis-point rate increase of Nov. 15 with another increase to keep inflation in check.

The dollar closed at 1.5717 Deutsche marks, down from 1.5800 DM on Friday, and at 100.355 yen, down from 100.605 yen. The dollar was also at 5.3950 French francs, down from 5.4210 francs, and at 1.3255 Swiss francs, down from 1.3337 francs.

The pound was at $1.5570, down from $1.5610.

Traders said dollar trading was light because of a firmer market against most other currencies.

Mr. Bentsen said the U.S. government and the Fed had to balance the need to avoid a dollar collapse, fight inflation and bring down the budget deficit.

"We had some profit-taking, and the market is taking a bit of a break," said Kaori Muto, a corporate adviser at Bank of America in London. "But people want to buy on dips."

(Knight-Ridder, Reuters, Bloomberg)

NYSE Most Active

Symbol	Vol.	High	Low	Last	Chg.
IBM	1,000,000	100 1/2	100 1/4	100 1/4	-1/4
Microsoft	1,000,000	40 1/4	40 1/8	40 1/8	-1/8
Apple	1,000,000	35 1/4	35 1/8	35 1/8	-1/8
Oracle	1,000,000	25 1/4	25 1/8	25 1/8	-1/8
Sun	1,000,000	20 1/4	20 1/8	20 1/8	-1/8
HP	1,000,000	15 1/4	15 1/8	15 1/8	-1/8
Compaq	1,000,000	40 1/4	40 1/8	40 1/8	-1/8
Dell	1,000,000	42 1/4	42 1/8	42 1/8	-1/8
IBM	1,000,000	100 1/2	100 1/4	100 1/4	-1/4
Microsoft	1,000,000	40 1/4	40 1/8	40 1/8	-1/8
Apple	1,000,000	35 1/4	35 1/8	35 1/8	-1/8
Oracle	1,000,000	25 1/4	25 1/8	25 1/8	-1/8
Sun	1,000,000	20 1/4	20 1/8	20 1/8	-1/8
HP	1,000,000	15 1/4	15 1/8	15 1/8	-1/8
Compaq	1,000,000	40 1/4	40 1/8	40 1/8	-1/8
Dell	1,000,000	42 1/4	42 1/8	42 1/8	-1/8

NASDAQ Most Active

Symbol	Vol.	High	Low	Last	Chg.
Intel	1,000,000	35 1/4	35 1/8	35 1/8	-1/8
Northern Telecom	1,000,000	25 1/4	25 1/8	25 1/8	-1/8
WorldCom	1,000,000	15 1/4	15 1/8	15 1/8	-1/8
Verizon	1,000,000	10 1/4	10 1/8	10 1/8	-1/8
Qwest	1,000,000	5 1/4	5 1/8	5 1/8	-1/8
Level 3	1,000,000	3 1/4	3 1/8	3 1/8	-1/8
Opticon	1,000,000	2 1/4	2 1/8	2 1/8	-1/8
Opticon	1,000,000	2 1/4	2 1/8	2 1/8	-1/8
Opticon	1,000,000	2 1/4	2 1/8	2 1/8	-1/8
Opticon	1,000,000	2 1/4	2 1/8	2 1/8	-1/8

AMEX Most Active

Symbol	Vol.	High	Low	Last	Chg.
Goldman Sachs	1,000,000	100 1/2	100 1/4	100 1/4	-1/4
JP Morgan Chase	1,000,000	50 1/4	50 1/8	50 1/8	-1/8
Bank of America	1,000,000	30 1/4	30 1/8	30 1/8	-1/8
Wells Fargo	1,000,000	20 1/4	20 1/8	20 1/8	-1/8
Citigroup	1,000,000	15 1/4	15 1/8	15 1/8	-1/8
First Union	1,000,000	10 1/4	10 1/8	10 1/8	-1/8
Bank of New York	1,000,000	5 1/4	5 1/8	5 1/8	-1/8
JP Morgan Chase	1,000,000	50 1/4	50 1/8	50 1/8	-1/8
Bank of America	1,000,000	30 1/4	30 1/8	30 1/8	-1/8
Wells Fargo	1,000,000	20 1/4	20 1/8	20 1/8	-1/8
Citigroup	1,000,000	15 1/4	15 1/8	15 1/8	-1/8
First Union	1,000,000	10 1/4	10 1/8	10 1/8	-1/8
Bank of New York	1,000,000	5 1/4	5 1/8	5 1/8	-1/8

Market Sales

Market	Today	Prev.
NYSE	2,548,000	2,548,000
AMEX	225,000	225,000
NASDAQ	2,548,000	2,548,000

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
INDUS	3742.44	3742.75	3741.92	-3.70
TRNS	1428.22	1428.45	1428.10	-0.10
SP 500	1179.10	1179.15	1178.90	-0.20
COMP	1317.79	1317.84	1317.60	-0.20

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
Industrials	548.00	548.10	547.90	-0.10
Technology	152.00	152.10	151.90	-0.10
Health Care	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
Financial	80.00	80.10	80.00	0.00
Consumer Goods	60.00	60.10	60.00	0.00
Energy	40.00	40.10	40.00	0.00
Utilities	20.00	20.10	20.00	0.00
Real Estate	10.00	10.10	10.00	0.00
Commodities	5.00	5.10	5.00	0.00
SP 500	1179.10	1179.15	1178.90	-0.20

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
Composite	2630.00	2630.10	2629.90	-0.10
Industrials	1240.00	1240.10	1239.90	-0.10
Technology	820.00	820.10	819.90	-0.10
Health Care	500.00	500.10	500.00	0.00
Financial	300.00	300.10	300.00	0.00
Consumer Goods	200.00	200.10	200.00	0.00
Energy	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
Utilities	50.00	50.10	50.00	0.00
Real Estate	20.00	20.10	20.00	0.00
Commodities	10.00	10.10	10.00	0.00
NYSE	2630.00	2630.10	2629.90	-0.10

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
Composite	2630.00	2630.10	2629.90	-0.10
Industrials	1240.00	1240.10	1239.90	-0.10
Technology	820.00	820.10	819.90	-0.10
Health Care	500.00	500.10	500.00	0.00
Financial	300.00	300.10	300.00	0.00
Consumer Goods	200.00	200.10	200.00	0.00
Energy	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
Utilities	50.00	50.10	50.00	0.00
Real Estate	20.00	20.10	20.00	0.00
Commodities	10.00	10.10	10.00	0.00
NASDAQ	2630.00	2630.10	2629.90	-0.10

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
Composite	2630.00	2630.10	2629.90	-0.10
Industrials	1240.00	1240.10	1239.90	-0.10
Technology	820.00	820.10	819.90	-0.10
Health Care	500.00	500.10	500.00	0.00
Financial	300.00	300.10	300.00	0.00
Consumer Goods	200.00	200.10	200.00	0.00
Energy	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
Utilities	50.00	50.10	50.00	0.00
Real Estate	20.00	20.10	20.00	0.00
Commodities	10.00	10.10	10.00	0.00
AMEX	2630.00	2630.10	2629.90	-0.10

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
30 Year	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
20 Year	95.00	95.10	95.00	0.00
10 Year	90.00	90.10	90.00	0.00
5 Year	85.00	85.10	85.00	0.00
3 Month	80.00	80.10	80.00	0.00
1 Month	75.00	75.10	75.00	0.00
6 Month	70.00	70.10	70.00	0.00
9 Month	65.00	65.10	65.00	0.00
12 Month	60.00	60.10	60.00	0.00
Dow Jones	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
30 Year	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
20 Year	95.00	95.10	95.00	0.00
10 Year	90.00	90.10	90.00	0.00
5 Year	85.00	85.10	85.00	0.00
3 Month	80.00	80.10	80.00	0.00
1 Month	75.00	75.10	75.00	0.00
6 Month	70.00	70.10	70.00	0.00
9 Month	65.00	65.10	65.00	0.00
12 Month	60.00	60.10	60.00	0.00
NASDAQ	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00

Open	High	Low	Last	Chg.
30 Year	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00
20 Year	95.00	95.10	95.00	0.00
10 Year	90.00	90.10	90.00	0.00
5 Year	85.00	85.10	85.00	0.00
3 Month	80.00	80.10	80.00	0.00
1 Month	75.00	75.10	75.00	0.00
6 Month	70.00	70.10	70.00	0.00
9 Month	65.00	65.10	65.00	0.00
12 Month	60.00	60.10	60.00	0.00
AMEX	100.00	100.10	100.00	0.00

Now Highs	43	49
Now Lows	123	136

Spot Commodities

Commodity	Today	Pre
Aluminum, lb	0.85	0.87
Copper electrolytic, lb	1.43	1.41
Iron FOB, ton	213.00	213.00
Lead, lb	0.44	0.44
Silver, Troy oz	4.63	4.59

JB 1735
BLANCPAIN

Since November 20th 1994, these watches are no longer displayed at the Deutsches Museum in Munich.

Pocket-watch with automata Ref. 115

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 271

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 282

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 901

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. MU 39

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 641

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 456

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. MU 38

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 382

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. 648

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. TP 23

Pocket-watch with automat Ref. TP 136

Jewellery watch Ref. 78

Jewellery watch Ref. 390

Jewellery watch Ref. 212

They have been stolen on the night of November 19th to 20th!

Ultra-slim watch No. 413 Ref. 0021-3318-55

Extra-slim watch No. 1097 Ref. 1195-1127-55

Chronograph with split seconds-hand and perpetual calendar No. 520 Ref. 5581-1418-55

Tourbillon No. 7 Ref. 0023-3318-55

Extra-slim jewellery watch No. 2583 Ref. 0096-2228-65

Perpetual calendar No. 10 Ref. 5495-3318-55

Ultra-slim watch No. 51 Ref. 0021-3427S-55

Moon-phase watch No. 3 Ref. 6595-3318-55

Minute-repeater No. 34 Ref. 0033-3318-55

Ultra-slim watch with interchangeable bezels No. 382 Ref. 0020-1828-65

A reward of 110'000 Sfr. will be offered to any person who can give useful information. For any information you could give, please contact the criminal police in Munich - tel. 089/12511 - or any other police station.

Deutsches Museum

NASDAQ

Monday's 4 p.m.

This list compiled by the AP, consists of the 1,000 most traded securities in terms of dollar value. It is updated twice a day.

12 Month	High	Low	Stock	Div	Yld	PE	52	High	Low	Label	Chg
High	Low	Stock	Div	Yld	PE	52	High	Low	Label	Chg
120	110	AA
110	100	AB
100	90	AC
90	80	AD
80	70	AE
70	60	AF
60	50	AG
50	40	AH
40	30	AI
30	20	AJ
20	10	AK
10	0	AL
0		AM
		AN AO
		AP
		AQ
		AR
		AS
		AT
		AU
		AV
		AW AX
		AY
		AZ
		BA
		BB
		BC
		BD BE BF
		BG
		BH
		BI
		BJ
		BK
		BL
		BM
		BN
		BO
		BP
		BQ
		BR
		BS
		BT
		BU
		BV
		BW
		BX
		BY BZ
		CA
		CB
		CC
		CD
		CE
		CF
		CG
		CH
		CI
		CJ
		CK
		CL
		CM
		CN
		CO
		CP
		CQ
		CR
		CS
		CT
		CU
		CV
		CW
		CX
		CY
		CZ
		DA
		DB
		DC
		DD
		DE
		DF
		DG
		DH
		DI
		DJ
		DK
		DL
		DM
		DN
		DO
		DP
		DQ
		DR
		DS
		DT
		DU DV
		DW
		DX
		DY
		DZ
		EA
		EB
		EC
		ED
		EE
		EF
		EG
		EH
		EI
		EJ
		EK
		EL
		EM
		EN
		EO
		EP
		EQ
		ER
		ES
		ET
		EU
		EV
		EW
		EX
		EY
		EZ
		FA
		FB
		FC
		FD
		FE
		FF
		FG
		FH
		FI
		FJ
		FK
		FL
		FM
		FN
		FO
		FP
		FQ
		FR
		FS
		FT
		FU
		FV
		FW
		FX
		FY FZ
		GA
		GB
		GC
		GD
		GE
		GF
		GG
		GH
		GI
		GJ
		GK
		GL
		GM
		GN GO
		GP
		GQ
		GR
		GS
		GT
		GU
		GV
		GW
		GX
		GY
		GZ
		HA
		HB
		HC
		HD
		HE HF
		HH
		HI
		HJ
		HK
		HL
		HM
		HN
		HO
		HP
		HQ
		HR
		HS
		HT
		HU
		HV
		HW
		HX
		HY
		HZ
		IA
		IB
		IC
		ID
		IE

Continued on Page 16

Monday's Closing

Monday's Closing
Tables include the nationwide prices up to the closing on Wall Street and do not reflect late trades elsewhere. Via The Associated Press

(Continued)

[illegible]

Year	1900	1901	1902	1903	1904	1905	1906	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911	1912	1913	1914	1915	1916	1917	1918	1919	1920	1921	1922	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929	1930	1931	1932	1933	1934	1935	1936	1937	1938	1939	1940	1941	1942	1943	1944	1945	1946	1947	1948	1949	1950	1951	1952	1953	1954	1955	1956	1957	1958	1959	1960	1961	1962	1963	1964	1965	1966	1967	1968	1969	1970	1971	1972	1973	1974	1975	1976	1977	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2028	2029	2030	2031	2032	2033	2034	2035	2036	2037	2038	2039	2040	2041	2042	2043	2044	2045	2046	2047	2048	2049	2050	2051	2052	2053	2054	2055	2056	2057	2058	2059	2060	2061	2062	2063	2064	2065	2066	2067	2068	2069	2070	2071	2072	2073	2074	2075	2076	2077	2078	2079	2080	2081	2082	2083	2084	2085	2086	2087	2088	2089	2090	2091	2092	2093	2094	2095	2096	2097	2098	2099	2100
1900	1901	1902	1903	1904	1905	1906	1907	1908	1909	1910	1911	1912	1913	1914	1915	1916	1917	1918	1919	1920	1921	1922	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929	1930	1931	1932	1933	1934	1935	1936	1937	1938	1939	1940	1941	1942	1943	1944	1945	1946	1947	1948	1949	1950	1951	1952	1953	1954	1955	1956	1957	1958	1959	1960	1961	1962	1963	1964	1965	1966	1967	1968	1969	1970	1971	1972	1973	1974	1975	1976	1977	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2028	2029	2030	2031	2032	2033	2034	2035	2036	2037	2038	2039	2040	2041	2042	2043	2044	2045	2046	2047	2048	2049	2050	2051	2052	2053	2054	2055	2056	2057	2058	2059	2060	2061	2062	2063	2064	2065	2066	2067	2068	2069	2070	2071	2072	2073	2074	2075	2076	2077	2078	2079	2080	2081	2082	2083	2084	2085	2086	2087	2088	2089	2090	2091	2092	2093	2094	2095	2096	2097	2098	2099	2100

一、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 二、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 三、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 四、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 五、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 六、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 七、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 八、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 九、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，
 十、凡我同胞，如有不法之徒，

[illegible]

[The page contains several columns of extremely faint, illegible text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side.]

姓名	性别	年龄	籍贯	职业	住址	备注
张三	男	35	山西	农民	山西
李四	女	28	河北	工人	河北
王五	男	45	山东	商人	山东
赵六	女	32	河南	教师	河南
陈七	男	50	浙江	医生	浙江
周八	女	40	江苏	护士	江苏
吴九	男	38	安徽	记者	安徽
孙十	女	25	江西	学生	江西
郑十一	男	42	福建	工程师	福建
冯十二	女	30	广东	会计	广东
马十三	男	48	广西	公务员	广西
朱十四	女	36	湖南	作家	湖南
徐十五	男	55	湖北	教授	湖北
孙十六	女	43	四川	研究员	四川
李十七	男	31	陕西	画家	陕西
王十八	女	29	甘肃	音乐家	甘肃
张十九	男	47	宁夏	作家	宁夏
赵二十	女	34	青海	教师	青海
陈二十一	男	52	新疆	商人	新疆
周二十二	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
吴二十三	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
孙二十四	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
郑二十五	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
冯二十六	女	33	河北	工人	河北
马二十七	男	51	山西	商人	山西
朱二十八	女	37	山东	教师	山东
徐二十九	男	44	河南	医生	河南
孙三十	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
李三十一	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
王三十二	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
张三十三	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
李三十四	女	45	福建	会计	福建
王三十五	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
张三十六	女	32	广西	作家	广西
李三十七	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
王三十八	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
张三十九	男	30	四川	画家	四川
李四十	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
王四十一	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
张三十二	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
李四十三	男	53	青海	商人	青海
王四十四	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
张三十五	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
李四十五	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
王四十六	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
张三十六	女	33	河北	工人	河北
李四十六	男	51	山西	商人	山西
王四十七	女	37	山东	教师	山东
张三十七	男	44	河南	医生	河南
李四十七	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
王四十八	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
张三十八	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
李四十八	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
王四十九	女	45	福建	会计	福建
张三十九	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
李四十九	女	32	广西	作家	广西
王五十	男	50	湖南	教授	湖南
张五十	女	40	湖北	研究员	湖北
李五十一	男	30	四川	画家	四川
王五十二	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
张三十二	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
李五十三	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
王五十四	男	53	青海	商人	青海
张三十三	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
李五十五	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
王五十六	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
张三十四	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
李五十六	女	33	河北	工人	河北
王五十七	男	51	山西	商人	山西
张三十五	女	37	山东	教师	山东
李五十七	男	44	河南	医生	河南
王五十八	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
张三十六	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
李五十八	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
王五十九	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
张三十七	女	45	福建	会计	福建
李五十九	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
王六十	女	32	广西	作家	广西
张三十八	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
李六十	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
王六十一	男	30	四川	画家	四川
张三十九	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
李六十二	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
王六十三	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
张三二十	男	53	青海	商人	青海
李六十四	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
王六十五	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
张三二十一	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
李六十六	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
王六十七	女	33	河北	工人	河北
张三二十二	男	51	山西	商人	山西
李六十八	女	37	山东	教师	山东
王六十九	男	44	河南	医生	河南
张三二十三	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
李六十九	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
王七十	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
张三二十四	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
李七十	女	45	福建	会计	福建
王七十一	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
张三二十五	女	32	广西	作家	广西
李七十一	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
王七十二	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
张三二十六	男	30	四川	画家	四川
李七十二	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
王七十三	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
张三二十七	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
李七十三	男	53	青海	商人	青海
王七十四	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
张三二十八	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
李七十四	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
王七十五	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
张三二十九	女	33	河北	工人	河北
李七十五	男	51	山西	商人	山西
王七十六	女	37	山东	教师	山东
张三三十	男	44	河南	医生	河南
李七十六	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
王七十七	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
张三三十一	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
李七十七	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
王七十八	女	45	福建	会计	福建
张三三十二	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
李七十八	女	32	广西	作家	广西
王七十九	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
张三三十三	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
李七十九	男	30	四川	画家	四川
王八十	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
张三三十四	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
李八十	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
王八十一	男	53	青海	商人	青海
张三三十五	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
李八十一	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
王八十二	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
张三三十六	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
李八十二	女	33	河北	工人	河北
王八十三	男	51	山西	商人	山西
张三三十七	女	37	山东	教师	山东
李八十三	男	44	河南	医生	河南
王八十四	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
张三三十八	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
李八十四	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
王八十五	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
张三三十九	女	45	福建	会计	福建
李八十五	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
王八十六	女	32	广西	作家	广西
张三四十	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
李八十六	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
王八十七	男	30	四川	画家	四川
张三四十一	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
李八十七	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
王八十八	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
张三四十二	男	53	青海	商人	青海
李八十八	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
王八十九	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
张三四十三	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
李八十九	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
王九十	女	33	河北	工人	河北
张三四十四	男	51	山西	商人	山西
李九十	女	37	山东	教师	山东
王九十一	男	44	河南	医生	河南
张三四十五	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
李九十一	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
王九十二	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
张三四十六	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
李九十二	女	45	福建	会计	福建
王九十三	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
张三四十七	女	32	广西	作家	广西
李九十三	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
王九十四	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
张三四十八	男	30	四川	画家	四川
李九十四	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
王九十五	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
张三四十九	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
李九十五	男	53	青海	商人	青海
王九十六	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
张三五十	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
李九十六	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
王九十七	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
张三五十一	女	33	河北	工人	河北
李九十七	男	51	山西	商人	山西
王九十八	女	37	山东	教师	山东
张三五十二	男	44	河南	医生	河南
李九十八	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
王九十九	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
张三五十三	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
李九十九	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
王一百	女	45	福建	会计	福建
张三五十四	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
李一百	女	32	广西	作家	广西
王一百零一	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
张三五十五	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
李一百零一	男	30	四川	画家	四川
王一百零二	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
张三五十六	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
李一百零二	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
王一百零三	男	53	青海	商人	青海
张三五十七	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
李一百零三	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
王一百零四	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
张三五十八	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
李一百零四	女	33	河北	工人	河北
王一百零五	男	51	山西	商人	山西
张三五十九	女	37	山东	教师	山东
李一百零五	男	44	河南	医生	河南
王一百零六	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
张三六十	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
李一百零六	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
王一百零七	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
张三六十一	女	45	福建	会计	福建
李一百零七	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
王一百零八	女	32	广西	作家	广西
张三六十二	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
李一百零八	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
王一百零九	男	30	四川	画家	四川
张三六十三	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
李一百零九	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
王一百一十	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
张三六十四	男	53	青海	商人	青海
李一百一十	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
王一百一十一	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
张三六十五	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
李一百一十一	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
王一百一十二	女	33	河北	工人	河北
张三六十六	男	51	山西	商人	山西
李一百一十二	女	37	山东	教师	山东
王一百一十三	男	44	河南	医生	河南
张三六十七	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
李一百一十三	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
王一百一十四	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
张三六十八	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
李一百一十四	女	45	福建	会计	福建
王一百一十五	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
张三六十九	女	32	广西	作家	广西
李一百一十五	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
王一百一十六	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
张三七十	男	30	四川	画家	四川
李一百一十六	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
王一百一十七	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
张三七十一	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
李一百一十七	男	53	青海	商人	青海
王一百一十八	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
张三七十二	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁
李一百一十八	女	27	吉林	学生	吉林
王一百一十九	男	46	黑龙江	农民	黑龙江
张三七十三	女	33	河北	工人	河北
李一百一十九	男	51	山西	商人	山西
王一百二十	女	37	山东	教师	山东
张三七十四	男	44	河南	医生	河南
李一百二十	女	31	浙江	护士	浙江
王一百二十一	男	49	江苏	记者	江苏
张三七十五	女	38	安徽	学生	安徽
李一百二十一	男	56	江西	工程师	江西
王一百二十二	女	45	福建	会计	福建
张三七十六	男	43	广东	公务员	广东
李一百二十二	女	32	广西	作家	广西
王一百二十三	男	54	湖南	教授	湖南
张三七十七	女	42	湖北	研究员	湖北
李一百二十三	男	30	四川	画家	四川
王一百二十四	女	28	陕西	音乐家	陕西
张三七十八	男	47	甘肃	作家	甘肃
李一百二十四	女	35	宁夏	教师	宁夏
王一百二十五	男	53	青海	商人	青海
张三七十九	女	41	内蒙古	公务员	内蒙古
李一百二十五	男	39	辽宁	工人	辽宁

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

MORE or LESS

Pana
PLAIN

PLAIN

[illegible][illegible]

Expandable Memory and Paper Capacity

Panafax UF-755

LASER PRINTING

sonic

PAPER FAX

1. The first part of the document is a header section containing the title "PAPER FAX" and a series of horizontal lines.

2. The second part of the document is a body section containing a series of horizontal lines.

3. The third part of the document is a footer section containing a series of horizontal lines.

[illegible]

[The page contains dense handwritten text in Devanagari script, which is mostly illegible due to extreme blurring and noise.]

[The page contains dense handwritten text in Devanagari script, which is mostly illegible due to extreme blurring and noise.]

[illegible]

1990-1991		1991-1992		1992-1993		1993-1994		1994-1995		1995-1996		1996-1997		1997-1998		1998-1999		1999-2000		2000-2001		2001-2002		2002-2003		2003-2004		2004-2005		2005-2006		2006-2007		2007-2008		2008-2009		2009-2010		2010-2011		2011-2012		2012-2013		2013-2014		2014-2015		2015-2016		2016-2017		2017-2018		2018-2019		2019-2020		2020-2021		2021-2022		2022-2023		2023-2024		2024-2025		2025-2026		2026-2027		2027-2028		2028-2029		2029-2030		2030-2031		2031-2032		2032-2033		2033-2034		2034-2035		2035-2036		2036-2037		2037-2038		2038-2039		2039-2040		2040-2041		2041-2042		2042-2043		2043-2044		2044-2045		2045-2046		2046-2047		2047-2048		2048-2049		2049-2050		2050-2051		2051-2052		2052-2053		2053-2054		2054-2055		2055-2056		2056-2057		2057-2058		2058-2059		2059-2060		2060-2061		2061-2062		2062-2063		2063-2064		2064-2065		2065-2066		2066-2067		2067-2068		2068-2069		2069-2070		2070-2071		2071-2072		2072-2073		2073-2074		2074-2075		2075-2076		2076-2077		2077-2078		2078-2079		2079-2080		2080-2081		2081-2082		2082-2083		2083-2084		2084-2085		2085-2086		2086-2087		2087-2088		2088-2089		2089-2090		2090-2091		2091-2092		2092-2093		2093-2094		2094-2095		2095-2096		2096-2097		2097-2098		2098-2099		2099-2100		2100-2101		2101-2102		2102-2103		2103-2104		2104-2105		2105-2106		2106-2107		2107-2108		2108-2109		2109-2110		2110-2111		2111-2112		2112-2113		2113-2114		2114-2115		2115-2116		2116-2117		2117-2118		2118-2119		2119-2120		2120-2121		2121-2122		2122-2123		2123-2124		2124-2125		2125-2126		2126-2127		2127-2128		2128-2129		2129-2130		2130-2131		2131-2132		2132-2133		2133-2134		2134-2135		2135-2136		2136-2137		2137-2138		2138-2139		2139-2140		2140-2141		2141-2142		2142-2143		2143-2144		2144-2145		2145-2146		2146-2147		2147-2148		2148-2149		2149-2150		2150-2151		2151-2152		2152-2153		2153-2154		2154-2155		2155-2156		2156-2157		2157-2158		2158-2159		2159-2160		2160-2161		2161-2162		2162-2163		2163-2164		2164-2165		2165-2166		2166-2167		2167-2168		2168-2169		2169-2170		2170-2171		2171-2172		2172-2173		2173-2174		2174-2175		2175-2176		2176-2177		2177-2178		2178-2179		2179-2180		2180-2181		2181-2182		2182-2183		2183-2184		2184-2185		2185-2186		2186-2187		2187-2188		2188-2189		2189-2190		2190-2191		2191-2192		2192-2193		2193-2194		2194-2195		2195-2196		2196-2197		2197-2198		2198-2199		2199-2200		2200-2201		2201-2202		2202-2203		2203-2204		2204-2205		2205-2206		2206-2207		2207-2208		2208-2209		2209-2210		2210-2211		2211-2212		2212-2213		2213-2214		2214-2215		2215-2216		2216-2217		2217-2218		2218-2219		2219-2220		2220-2221		2221-2222		2222-2223		2223-2224		2224-2225		2225-2226		2226-2227		2227-2228		2228-2229		2229-2230		2230-2231		2231-2232		2232-2233		2233-2234		2234-2235		2235-2236		2236-2237		2237-2238		2238-2239		2239-2240		2240-2241		2241-2242		2242-2243		2243-2244		2244-2245		2245-2246		2246-2247		2247-2248		2248-2249		2249-2250		2250-2251		2251-2252		2252-2253		2253-2254		2254-2255		2255-2256		2256-2257		2257-2258		2258-2259		2259-2260		2260-2261		2261-2262		2262-2263		2263-2264		2264-2265		2265-2266		2266-2267		2267-2268		2268-2269		2269-2270		2270-2271		2271-2272		2272-2273		2273-2274		2274-2275		2275-2276		2276-2277		2277-2278		2278-2279		2279-2280		2280-2281		2281-2282		2282-2283		2283-2284		2284-2285		2285-2286		2286-2287		2287-2288		2288-2289		2289-2290		2290-2291		2291-2292		2292-2293		2293-2294		2294-2295		2295-2296		2296-2297		2297-2298		2298-2299		2299-2300		2300-2301		2301-2302		2302-2303		2303-2304		2304-2305		2305-2306		2306-2307		2307-2308		2308-2309		2309-2310		2310-2311		2311-2312		2312-2313		2313-2314		2314-2315		2315-2316		2316-2317		2317-2318		2318-2319		2319-2320		2320-2321		2321-2322		2322-2323		2323-2324		2324-2325		2325-2326		2326-2327		2327-2328		2328-2329		2329-2330		2330-2331		2331-2332		2332-2333		2333-2334		2334-2335		2335-2336		2336-2337		2337-2338		2338-2339		2339-2340		2340-2341		2341-2342		2342-2343		2343-2344		2344-2345		2345-2346		2346-2347		2347-2348		2348-2349		2349-2350		2350-2351		2351-2352		2352-2353		2353-2354		2354-2355		2355-2356		2356-2357		2357-2358		2358-2359		2359-2360		2360-2361		2361-2362		2362-2363		2363-2364		2364-2365		2365-2366		2366-2367		2367-2368		2368-2369		2369-2370		2370-2371		2371-2372		2372-2373		2373-2374		2374-2375		2375-2376		2376-2377		2377-2378		2378-2379		2379-2380		2380-2381		2381-2382		2382-2383		2383-2384		2384-2385		2385-2386		2386-2387		2387-2388		2388-2389		2389-2390		2390-2391		2391-2392		2392-2393		2393-2394		2394-2395		2395-2396		2396-2397		2397-2398		2398-2399		2399-2400		2400-2401		2401-2402		2402-2403		2403-2404		2404-2405		2405-2406		2406-2407		2407-2408		2408-2409		2409-2410		2410-2411		2411-2412		2412-2413		2413-2414		2414-2415		2415-2416		2416-2417		2417-2418		2418-2419		2419-2420		2420-2421		2421-2422		2422-2423		2423-2424		2424-2425		2425-2426		2426-2427		2427-2428		2428-2429		2429-2430		2430-2431		2431-2432		2432-2433		2433-2434		2434-2435		2435-2436		2436-2437		2437-2438		2438-2439		2439-2440		2440-2441		2441-2442		2442-2443		2443-2444		2444-2445		2445-2446		2446-2447		2447-2448		2448-2449		2449-2450		2450-2451		2451-2452		2452-2453		2453-2454		2454-2455		2455-2456		2456-2457		2457-2458		2458-2459		2459-2460		2460-2461		2461-2462		2462-2463		2463-2464		2464-2465		2465-2466		2466-2467		2467-2468		2468-2469		2469-2470		2470-2471		2471-2472		2472-2473		2473-2474		2474-2475		2475-2476		2476-2477		2477-2478		2478-2479		2479-2480		2480-2481		2481-2482		2482-2483		2483-2484		2484-2485		2485-2486		2486-2487		2487-2488		2488-2489		2489-2490		2490-2491		2491-2492		2492-2493		2493-2494		2494-2495		2495-2496		2496-2497		2497-2498		2498-2499		2499-2500		2500-2501		2501-2502		2502-2503		2503-2504		2504-2505		2505-2506		2506-2507		2507-2508		2508-2509		2509-2510		2510-2511		2511-2512		2512-2513		2513-2514		2514-2515		2515-2516		2516-2517		2517-2518		2518-2519		2519-2520		2520-2521		2521-2522		2522-2523		2523-2524		2524-2525		2525-2526		2526-2527		2527-2528		2528-2529		2529-2530		2530-2531		2531-2532		2532-2533		2533-2534		2534-2535		2535-2536		2536-2537		2537-2538		2538-2539		2539-2540		2540-2541		2541-2542		2542-2543		2543-2544		2544-2545		2545-2546		2546-2547		2547-2548		2548-2549		2549-2550		2550-2551		2551-2552		2552-2553		2553-2554		2554-2555		2555-2556		2556-2557		2557-2558		2558-2559		2559-2560		2560-2561		2561-2562		2562-2563		2563-2564		2564-2565		2565-2566		2566-2567		2567-2568		2568-2569		2569-2570		2570-2571		2571-2572		2572-2573		2573-2574		2574-2575		2575-2576		2576-2577		2577-2578		2578-2579		2579-2580		2580-2581		2581-2582		2582-2583		2583-2584		2584-2585		2585-2586		2586-2587		2587-2588		2588-2589		2589-2590		2590-2591		2591-2592		2592-2593		2593-2594		2594-2595		2595-2596		2596-2597		2597-2598		2598-2599		2599-2600		2600-2601		2601-2602		2602-2603		2603-2604		2604-2605		2605-2606		2606-2607		2607-2608		2608-2609		2609-2610		2610-2611		2611-2612		2612-2613		2613-2614		2614-2615		2615-2616		2616-2617		2617-2618		2618-2619		2619-2620		2620-2621		2621-2622		2622-2623		2623-2624		2624-2625		2625-2626		2626-2627		2627-2628		2628-2629		2629-2630		2630-2631		2631-2632		2632-2633		2633-2634		2634-2635		2635-2636		2636-2637		2637-2638		2638-2639		2639-2640		2640-2641		2641-2642		2642-2643		2643-2644		2644-2645		2645-2646		2646-2647		2647-2648		2648-2649		2649-2650		2650-2651		2651-2652		2652-2653		2653-2654		2654-2655		2655-2656		2656-2657		2657-2658		2658-2659		2659-2660		2660-2661		2661-2662		2662-2663		2663-2664		2664-2665		2665-2666		2666-2667		2667-2668		2668-2669		2669-2670		2670-2671		2671-2672		2672-2673		2673-2674		2674-2675		2675-2676		2676-2677		2677-2678		2678-2679		2679-2680		2680-2681		2681-2682		2682-2683		2683-2684		2684-2685		2685-2686		2686-2687		2687-2688		2688-2689		2689-2690		2690-2691		2691-2692		2692-2693		2693-2694		2694-2695		2695-2696		2696-2697		2697-2698		2698-2699		2699-2700		2700-2701		2701-2702		2702-2703		2703-2704		2704-2705		2705-2706		2706-2707		2707-2708		2708-2709		2709-2710		2710-2711		2711-2712		2712-2713		2713-2714		2714-2715		2715-2716		2716-2717		2717-2718
-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--	-----------	--

[illegible]

項目	金額	備考
1. 雑費	10.00
2. 雑費	10.00
3. 雑費	10.00
4. 雑費	10.00
5. 雑費	10.00
6. 雑費	10.00
7. 雑費	10.00
8. 雑費	10.00
9. 雑費	10.00
10. 雑費	10.00
11. 雑費	10.00
12. 雑費	10.00
13. 雑費	10.00
14. 雑費	10.00
15. 雑費	10.00
16. 雑費	10.00
17. 雑費	10.00
18. 雑費	10.00
19. 雑費	10.00
20. 雑費	10.00
21. 雑費	10.00
22. 雑費	10.00
23. 雑費	10.00
24. 雑費	10.00
25. 雑費	10.00
26. 雑費	10.00
27. 雑費	10.00
28. 雑費	10.00
29. 雑費	10.00
30. 雑費	10.00
31. 雑費	10.00
32. 雑費	10.00
33. 雑費	10.00
34. 雑費	10.00
35. 雑費	10.00
36. 雑費	10.00
37. 雑費	10.00
38. 雑費	10.00
39. 雑費	10.00
40. 雑費	10.00
41. 雑費	10.00
42. 雑費	10.00
43. 雑費	10.00
44. 雑費	10.00
45. 雑費	10.00
46. 雑費	10.00
47. 雑費	10.00
48. 雑費	10.00
49. 雑費	10.00
50. 雑費	10.00
51. 雑費	10.00
52. 雑費	10.00
53. 雑費	10.00
54. 雑費	10.00
55. 雑費	10.00
56. 雑費	10.00
57. 雑費	10.00
58. 雑費	10.00
59. 雑費	10.00
60. 雑費	10.00
61. 雑費	10.00
62. 雑費	10.00
63. 雑費	10.00
64. 雑費	10.00
65. 雑費	10.00
66. 雑費	10.00
67. 雑費	10.00
68. 雑費	10.00
69. 雑費	10.00
70. 雑費	10.00
71. 雑費	10.00
72. 雑費	10.00
73. 雑費	10.00
74. 雑費	10.00
75. 雑費	10.00
76. 雑費	10.00
77. 雑費	10.00
78. 雑費	10.00
79. 雑費	10.00
80. 雑費	10.00
81. 雑費	10.00
82. 雑費	10.00
83. 雑費	10.00
84. 雑費	10.00
85. 雑費	10.00
86. 雑費	10.00
87. 雑費	10.00
88. 雑費	10.00
89. 雑費	10.00
90. 雑費	10.00
91. 雑費	10.00
92. 雑費	10.00
93. 雑費	10.00
94. 雑費	10.00
95. 雑費	10.00
96. 雑費	10.00
97. 雑費	10.00
98. 雑費	10.00
99. 雑費	10.00
100. 雑費	10.00

一、（一） 凡在本行存款，其利息按日计算，按月结息。
（二） 凡在本行存款，其利息按季计算，按季结息。
（三） 凡在本行存款，其利息按半年计算，按半年结息。
（四） 凡在本行存款，其利息按年计算，按年结息。

MORE
or LESS

Expandable Memory
and Paper Capacity

Panafax UF-755
LASER PRINTING

Panasonic
PLAIN PAPER FAX

Taiwan
Rise 40%
At 6-Week

Taiwan Stocks Rise 4% to Close At 6-Week High

Bloomberg Business News

TAIPEI — Taiwan's benchmark stock index soared to a six-week high Monday on forecasts that the governing Nationalist Party's election victory over the weekend would launch a period of political stability and economic growth.

The results were better than all expectations, said Daniel Chiang, vice president of International Investment Trust in Taipei.

The benchmark weighted price index of the Taiwan Stock Exchange rose 270.40 points, or 4.17 percent, to 6,750.22 on trading valued at 103.8 billion Taiwan dollars ($4 billion). About 25 shares rose for each one that declined, and 52 companies rose their daily 7 percent limit.

The Nationalists handily won two of the three biggest races Saturday in the island's broadest election in 45 years.

The opposition Democratic Progressive Party, which supports a referendum on whether Taiwan should declare itself independent of China, won nine major races but otherwise made only small gains.

In the first-ever election for governor of Taiwan, the Nationalist candidate James Soong, who is considered pro-business, won by a surprisingly wide margin.

Plastics and electronics stocks led the rally on expectations of strong earnings growth in the fourth quarter and next year, analyst said.

companies again, and they have come back in plastics and electronics shares," said David Chou, a dealer with Capital Securities.

The Taiwan Stock Exchange index of plastics stocks rose 5.5 percent, while the exchange's index of electronics and electrical machinery shares climbed 5.2 percent.

Among plastics stocks, Formosa Plastics Corp. rose 3 dollars, to 54.50, and Nan Ya Plastics Corp. climbed the 7 percent daily limit, adding 3.50 to 56.

Among electronics stocks, Acer Inc., Taiwan's biggest computer maker, soared 6.50, reaching its 7 percent limit and ending at 102.5, and United Microelectronics Corp. also rose by its limit, gaining 8.50 to 131.50.

Also on Monday, the government reported that consumer prices rose 3.88 percent in November from a year earlier, the slowest increase in four months.

For the first 11 months of 1994, consumer prices climbed 4.23 percent, surpassing the government's 3.8 percent target.

"Investors are looking at the business outlook for individual

Japan: The Day of the Dead Cross

Some Fear the Charts Portend a New Slide in Stocks

Bloomberg Business News

TOKYO — The sign of the dead cross has fallen across this stock market, serving as an omen to many that the time for owning Japanese equities has passed.

"It means the long-term trend in the Japanese market is to be changed for the negative," said Takaharu Nakamura, general manager at Commerz Securities (Japan) Co.

Though it may sound like some sort of hex, the dead cross is little more than a mathematical coincidence.

The term describes the point at which the graph of stock prices averaged over five years crosses below the graph of stock prices averaged over 10 years. The opposite phenomenon, when the five-year graph line rises above the 10-year, is known as a golden cross.

Last month, the Nikkei Stock Average, Tokyo's benchmark index of 225 stocks, witnessed a dead cross for the first time since World War II.

Some fund managers and analysts say that spells more trouble for a market where prices have already fallen 10 percent since mid-June.

What makes the dead cross so dreaded, they say, is that it has a track record in New York. When the five-year moving average crossed below the 10-year in November 1977, the Dow Jones industrial average fell more than 8 percent in the next three months. After they crossed in this manner in December 1973, the Dow fell almost 9 percent in 10 months.

Some Tokyo investors border on the superstitious when it comes to statistical analysis.

Hard Times Ahead?

Books that chart the Nikkei and Japanese stock prices are popular sellers at newsstands in Tokyo. "If people weren't looking at it, the chart books wouldn't sell," said Alexander Kimmo, a strategist for Morgan Stanley Japan.

The dead cross did not cause the market to melt down Monday. Instead, the Nikkei average rose 1.6 percent to close at 19,305.66. Investors were encouraged by the rise in the dollar against the yen and by gains in U.S. stock markets Friday.

Not everyone is afraid of the dead cross. Some in Tokyo have not even heard of it, and many said they did not need any statistical mysticism to tell them that Japanese equities are headed for trouble.

There are some basic reasons for pessimism that do not have unusual nicknames.

Stock prices are still too high compared with corporate earnings, analysts say. The average ratio of price to earnings in Japan is about 70, while in the United States, anything higher than 20 raises eyebrows.

Also menacing the market is the yen, which has appreciated 11 percent against the U.S. dollar this year, making Japan's exports less and less competitive. Many traders said they thought the dollar's recent slight recovery was a short-term phenomenon.

The decline that Mr. Nakamura and others foresee may have less to do with the dead cross than with something investors all over the world are grappling with: higher interest rates.

"My experience," said James Bush, a trader at Barclays de Zoete Wedd Securities (Japan) Ltd., "is that six rate rises in the States wouldn't be conducive to buying equities."

Eric Kent, vice president of overseas equity trading at Nomura Securities Ltd., said: "Individuals are so on the market, I think it's going to take a long time before they can be convinced to come back in."

Is the dead cross ruining investors' appetites, or did their growing awareness of the problems cause the upsetting statistic in the first place?

The answer is a little of each, according to Mr. Nakamura of Commerz Securities. Investors looking at the dead cross are also aware that the days of ironclad corporate cross-shareholdings are ending.

He shares a growing consensus that the Nikkei average is likely to drop to near where it began the year, just below 18,000.

Investor's Asia

Exchange	Index	Monday Close	Prev. Close	% Change
Hong Kong Hang Seng	11000	8,302.53	8,221.57	+0.98
Singapore Straits Times	2400	2,185.67	2,188.02	-0.10
Sydney All Ordinaries	2000	1,897.50	1,880.10	+0.93
Tokyo Nikkei 225	22000	19,305.66	18,998.30	+1.62
Kuala Lumpur Composite	900	963.88	977.74	-1.42
Bangkok SET	2000	Closed	1,336.11
Seoul Composite Stock	2000	1,065.03	1,054.08	+1.04
Taipei Weighted Price	2000	6,750.22	6,478.82	+4.17
Manila PSE	2000	2,622.71	2,596.75	+1.00
Jakarta Stock Index	2000	470.59	471.05	-0.10
New Zealand NZSE-40	2000	1,999.38	1,942.58	+2.92
Bombay National Index	2000	1,934.21	1,943.24	-0.46

Sources: Reuters, AFP

Very briefly:

- Samsung Heavy Industries Co. marked its entry into the South Korean passenger car market by applying for permission to import technology from Nissan Motor Co.
 - China's car market will not be "totally open" to foreign companies until at least 2010, the manager of China Automobile Sales Corp. told the China News Service.
 - Tianjin Automobile Industry Corp. launched a 2 billion yuan ($250 million) expansion project to more than triple production to about 150,000 units in 1995, the People's Daily reported.
 - William Lines Inc. of the Philippines said a loss of one of its ships would not interfere with its planned initial public offering in February of 235.7 million shares priced at between 9.65 centavos and 15.15 centavos (0.40 cent and 0.63 cent).
 - Mitsui & Co. said it and Neptune Orient Lines Ltd. were considering a $50 million project to build a container terminal port near Ho Chi Minh City.
 - Bridgestone Corp. raised its forecast for parent-company pretax profit for 1994 to 57 billion yen ($567 million) from 45 billion yen. Parent-company results in Japan generally do not include subsidiaries' earnings.
- Reuters, Bloomberg, AFP, AP

Fund Chief Sees Leading Role for Yen

Agence France-Presse

SYDNEY — The yen could topple the dollar as Asia's predominant currency, the manager of one of Japan's biggest investment funds said Monday.

Nobumitsu Kagami, vice president of Nomura Investment Management Co., told a conference here that trade and investment between Japan and other Asian countries would lead to closer integration and interdependence.

"This may, in turn, lead to a gradual formation of a de facto yen bloc within the region in which the use of the yen will begin to increase as a regional key currency," he said.

Japan's increasing role as an Asian investor made such a forecast "logical enough, especially now that the persistent weakness of the U.S. dollar has seriously eroded the confidence that the countries in the region traditionally have held in this currency," Mr. Kagami said.

He said 1994 could be remembered as a "major watershed" in the yen's progress as an international currency, adding that Japanese investors were shifting allegiance from U.S. bonds to Eurobonds denominated in yen.

"In view of the fact that the countries in East Asia such as Indonesia, Korea, Malaysia, Thailand and the Philippines have a significant portion of their official liabilities denominated in yen, there should be substantial potential demand by these countries for yen-denominated assets to be included in their foreign-exchange reserves," Mr. Kagami said.

Asian countries had improved their competitive positions with Japan by tying their currencies to the U.S. dollar, he added, but when those economies matured and needed price stability, they could turn to the yen.

Capital Spending Called Weak

Hideaki Kumano, a vice minister at the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, said capital spending remained weak, indicating that the Japanese economy had not entered a full recovery, AFP-Exel News reported from Tokyo.

Separately, the ministry said sentiment in Japan's corporate sector improved in the third quarter from the second quarter, reflecting firm consumer spending and progress in inventory adjustment.

MITI said 35.5 percent of the companies that responded had reported an improvement in the business environment in the third quarter from the second quarter.

Tourism Booms in China

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

BEIJING — China's earnings from tourism this year are expected to jump by about 50 percent, to more than $7 billion, the official Economic Information Daily said Monday.

Statistics compiled by the National Tourism Administration showed earnings in the tourism industry of $3.39 billion in the first half of the year, the report said.

China took in 32.3 million overseas tourists in the first three quarters of this year, and the figure is expected to reach 43 million for all of 1994, it said.

The number of domestic tourists is expected to reach 450 million in 1994, up nearly 10 percent from 1993.

Liu Yi, director of the tourism administration, said earnings from domestic tourists were expected to climb 10 percent this year, to 95 billion yuan ($11 billion).

(AP, AFP)

BMW to Make Cycles in India

Bloomberg Business News

NEW DELHI — Bayerische Motoren Werke AG said Monday it had signed a letter of intent with Majestic Auto Ltd., part of the Hero group, to produce motorcycles in India.

Majestic Auto will immediately start production and sale of BMW F650 motorcycles, and the company said it hoped for sales of 300 million rupees ($10 million) in the first year. The F650 motorcycle will be assembled in India from imported parts.

The market for motor scooters and motorcycles in India is growing at the rate of 26 percent a year. A BMW spokesman said the venture would fill a need for motorcycles that could be serviced easily.

Give the IHT as a gift and give yourself a gift as well!

Up to 50% off the cover price!

A subscription to the IHT is an ideal year-long gift for a friend or business acquaintance — especially at our special gift rate of up to 50% off the cover price.

For each six or twelve-month gift subscription that you order we will send you the Oxford

Special bonus

for current subscribers

We will extend your own subscription by one week for each month's gift subscription you enter. For example, if you order two one-year gift subscriptions, your own subscription will automatically be extended by 24 weeks.

Encyclopedias illustrated above — absolutely free. And, of course, we will send the new subscriber a handsome card, signed as you specify, announcing your gift.

Subscribe yourself

If you are not already an IHT subscriber, you can also take advantage of this special gift offer. In addition to your subscription you will receive these Oxford Encyclopedias — free.

Just complete the coupon below and send (or fax) us a copy for each order. And leave the rest to us.

Call us toll-free in

AUSTRIA: 0660 8155 LUXEMBOURG: 0800 2703
BELGIUM: 0800 17538 SWITZERLAND: 155 57 57
FRANCE: 05 437 437 THE NETHERLANDS: 06 022 5158
GERMANY: 0130 848585 UNITED KINGDOM: 0800 89 5965

Currency/Country	12 months 2 months FREE	6 months 1 month FREE
Austria	A.Sch. 4,000	3,300
Belgium	B.Fr. 14,000	7,700
Denmark	D.Kr. 3,000	1,900
Finland	F.M. 2,400	1,300
France	F.F. 1,950	1,070
Germany	D.M. 700	385
Greece	Dr. 210	115
Great Britain	Dr. 75,000	41,000
Italy	Lit. 470,000	260,000
Japan	Yen. 14,000	7,700
Luxembourg	L.Fr. 270	430
Netherlands	N.Kr. 3,300	1,900
Norway	N.Kr. 47,000	25,000
Portugal	Esc. 48,000	26,500
Spain	Ptas. 55,000	27,500
Sweden (crown)	S.Kr. 3,100	1,700
Switzerland	S.Fr. 3,300	1,900
Switzerland	S.Fr. 610	335
West of Europe, except C.B.	S	485
C.B. North Africa, France, French Africa, Middle East, Gulf States	S	630
Central and Latin America, South Africa	S	780
Rest of Africa	S	900

Please indicate which gift subscription term you prefer and fill in the recipient's name and complete address. ☐ 12 months (+ $2 free issues, 364 issues in all) ☐ 6 months (+ 26 free issues, 182 issues in all)

☐ Please check here if you prefer to send the free Oxford Encyclopedias to the recipient.

Recipient's Name _____

Address _____

City/Code/Country _____

My name as it should appear on the gift card _____

Address _____

City/Code/Country _____

My subscription account number _____

☐ My check or money order is enclosed (payable to the International Herald Tribune).

☐ Please charge my credit card:

☐ Access ☐ American Express ☐ Eurocard ☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐ Visa

Credit card changes will be made in French Francs at current exchange rates.

Card No. _____

Exp. Date _____

Signature _____

For business orders, please indicate your VAT number: (IHT VAT number: FR74733211261)

Return your completed coupon to: Subscription Manager, IHT, 181 Avenue Charles-de-Gaulle, 92521 Neuilly Cedex, France. Fax: 33.1 46 37 06 51 - Tel: 33.1 46 37 03 61.

6-12-94

Herald Tribune

Special gift rate for new subscribers only. Offer valid through January 31, 1995.

Herald Tribune

PUBLISHED WITH THE NEW YORK TIMES AND THE WASHINGTON POST

If you would like to receive further information on any of the advertisements published in today's Education Special Directory (pages 19-21), simply complete this coupon and send it to:

CLAIRE ACHARD, Advertising Department,
181, Avenue Charles de Gaulle, 92521 Neuilly Cedex, France.

Executive Education

France ☐ Tick box

1 CEFAM ☐

2 CIAM ☐

3 Georgia Tech Lorraine ☐

Spain ☐

4 University of Chicago ☐

Switzerland ☐

5 Center for Management ☐

U.S.A. ☐

6 Wharton Executive Education ☐

Colleges & Universities

France ☐

7 American University of Paris ☐

8 CEFAM ☐

9 Georgia Tech Lorraine ☐

10 Sorbonne ☐

International ☐

11 Schiller University ☐

Italy ☐

12 American University of Rome ☐

13 John Cabot University ☐

Switzerland ☐

14 Schiller American College ☐

Netherlands ☐

15 ERC Emerson ☐

U.K. ☐

16 American College in London ☐

17 London School of Journalism ☐

U.S.A.

18 American Institute of Computer Science ☐

19 Autonoma University de Guadalajara ☐

20 Century University ☐

21 Chadwick University ☐

22 La Salle University ☐

23 Lesley College ☐

24 Hofstra University ☐

25 New York University ☐

26 St Mary's College ☐

27 Rose University ☐

Day & Boarding Schools

Austria ☐

28 Salzburg Int'l Preparatory School ☐

France ☐

29 APER ☐

30 College Covenant International ☐

31 Ecole Active Bilingue ☐

32 Ecole ☐

33 International School of Monaco ☐

34 Lycée Canadien en France ☐

35 Lycée International de Paris ☐

36 The Bilingual Montessori School ☐

Switzerland ☐

37 Teis ☐

Switzerland ☐

38 Erasmus Institute ☐

39 Institut Montma ☐

40 John F. Kennedy ☐

41 Leyja American School ☐

U.S.A. ☐

42 Oxford Academy ☐

Language Schools

France ☐ Tick box

43 American Media Services (AMS) ☐

44 Institut de Français ☐

45 Sud-Langue ☐

International ☐

46 Cezan ☐

Switzerland ☐

47 Ecole Lemania ☐

U.K. ☐

48 Self Schools ☐

Art & Design Schools

France ☐

49 Parsons School of Design ☐

Italy ☐

50 The International School of Art ☐

U.S.A. ☐

51 Harvard Graduate of Design ☐

52 Parsons School of Design ☐

53 School of Fashion Design ☐

Hotel Management Schools

Switzerland ☐

54 Hotel Constat ☐

55 Hosta Ecole Hotelière ☐

56 Hotel Institute Montreux ☐

57 IHTI International Hotel & Tourism ☐

Cooking Schools ☐

France ☐

58 Le Cordon Bleu ☐

Summer Studies ☐

U.S.A. ☐

59 University of Virginia ☐

Name: _____ Address: _____

Job Title: _____

ZIMBABWE

WORLD DISCOVERS DRAMA OF AFRICA

Since 1989, the number of visitors has trebled.

For years, Zimbabwe succeeded in concealing from the world its combination of an orderly infrastructure and huge expanses of wilderness, which include a geographical marvel on a gargantuan scale.

At independence in 1980, the country gave itself a name that made it the last alphabetical entry in the tourist catalogue index. Then it had a tribal conflict and gained a reputation of being fiercely leftist. But in 1989, as the world began to change, the small Southern African country and its 10 million people settled political differences and emerged into the world's consciousness with a more positive image.

In a leap that began in 1989, arrivals more than trebled to 880,000 last year, and tourism is now growing annually by 10.4 percent, well above the global average. Receipts from international tourism rose fivefold, to $95 million, last year. Spillover benefits of the sector nearly double that figure, to represent 4.8 percent of the gross domestic product. The prime attraction is Victoria Falls, the world's largest waterfall, a spectacle that draws an involuntary "aah" from visitors. This high drama is complemented by the impressive diversity of African flora and fauna in the sprawling, efficiently run national parks. All this in a country whose cities, transport and communication networks are of a high standard and which is populated mostly by friendly, hospitable Africans.

In the last five years, the tourist industry has been radically altered. All of the established hotel companies have invested heavily in refurbishment. The growth area has been the low-density, high-cost bush lodge. In 1989, there were eight such camps around Victoria Falls. Now there are 28. These were mostly developed by small, independent local companies, which often work at a breathtaking pace. Landela Safaris, one of the first to see the opportunities five years ago, grew from virtually nothing to spending $1.5 million in the last three years on four lodges that take visitors on a circuit of the major wildlife destinations. The company plans to spend another $1 million on three more lodges next year, says managing director Stewart Cranswick.

Zimbabwe Sun Hotels, the leisure wing of the country's biggest, part-state-owned conglomerate, has been the most aggressive of the big corporations. It has had a capital investment of $10 million since 1989, when it abandoned big hotels to build new lodges or buy up existing operations. This year, the company broke new ground when it moved into the severely underdeveloped southeast of the country. To begin with, there will be five lodges on the 700,000-acre Save River Conservancy, jointly owned by 14 former cattle ranchers who pulled up their fences two years ago and trucked in 150 elephants from the Gonarezhou national park next door.

A Special Place For Tourists

VILLAGES COMBINE TO GREET VISITORS

Rural communities put in charge of development

When it comes to trading on esoteric names, Zimbabwe's Uzumba-Maramba-Pfungwe district council could compete with some well-known Welsh villages.

In July, the council received an "honorary mention" eco-tourism award from British Airways. Framed and fixed to the mud wall of the council's Sunungukai Camp on the banks of the Mufurudzi River in northeast Zimbabwe, the reward recognizes a radical change made by a tiny rural African community that wants to thrive in its fragile, wild environment.

It took three years to bring the three villages of 600 people to accept collective responsibility for setting up the four rondavels (round huts), in which visitors stay for $2 a night. Scores of gold panners had to be persuaded to move away from the river front, tree felling had to be stopped, and poachers had to be policed. The camp made a profit of only $370 in its first year, but things are improving fast. Liz Rihoy, field worker for the local aid organization, Zimbabwe Trust, says, "There was a lot of mismanagement, but they have learned a lot."

The trust is one of a small group of organizations backing an initiative called CAMPFIRE (Communal Areas Management Program for Indigenous Resources), a far-sighted concept of rural development introduced by Zimbabwe's National Parks Department in 1984. It puts remote rural communities in charge of the bush and wildlife they live in, so they can benefit from tourism profits earned through their own carefully managed conservation.

By 1989, 12 districts had adopted CAMPFIRE programs, but they were devoted to safari hunting and leased hunting rights to operators. Last year, total earnings of the 12 districts rose 60 percent, to $1.13 million, far beyond the returns of traditional subsistence agriculture. All the profits were plowed back into the communities.

Sunungukai camp, aimed at the lowly backpacker market, was the first CAMPFIRE operation that did not involve hunting. Two other deals concluded this year show how CAMPFIRE has brought rural communities into the world of corporate finance.

Zimbabwe Sun Hotels and Landela Safaris have each signed with separate district councils for the lease of land for luxury game lodges, under terms drafted by Price Waterhouse that give the councils a percentage of turnover, but also oblige them to maintain the land in a wilderness state.

The Hwange council, east of Victoria Falls, will soon be developing what is likely to become a highly valuable real estate — 12 camp-lodge sites on the banks of the Zambezi River for lease.

Hwange council is also charging white-water rafting a levy if visitors end their rides on council land, and when a hotel dug 200 silver fig trees from Hwange's territory, they were obliged to pay.

"Councils are realizing they can demand payment for their resources," says Mr. Riboy.

THE SMOKE THAT IS THREATENED

The "Smoke that Thunders," which was what the Makololo people called Victoria Falls before David Livingstone "discovered" the waterfall in the 19th century and named it after his reigning queen, is under threat, according to a study this year by the Zimbabwe Department of Natural Resources.

The curtain of water, 1,708 meters wide and 100 meters deep, is a defining magnet for superlatives — the biggest, most spectacular waterfall in the world, one of the wonders of the natural world, and a World Heritage Site under the UNESCO convention.

No one — at least publicly — questions that the area should be kept as near as possible to its natural state, physically and visually.

But the Department of Natural Resources study suggests that not enough is being done to curtail the excesses of tourists — up from 46,000 in 1983 to 158,000 last year — and their tourist industry hosts. The addition of five new hotels since 1988 has nearly doubled the number of hotel beds to 1,500.

The report says that the riverbank above the falls, a narrow strip of dense vegetation, is cut through with jetties and access roads for boating enthusiasts.

There are too many boat operators for tourist cruises on the broad stretch of water above the falls. Authorities agreed that 26 boat operators were enough, and that issued another four licenses.

In the narrow, turbulent gorge below the falls, there are too many rafting and kayaking operators.

The air above the falls is filled with the roar of joyriding helicopters, fixed-wing aircraft and microlights.

The overall effect is loss of habitat for some species, erosion, litter, disruption of the movements of wildlife (particularly large mammals that depend on being able to migrate daily to water at the river front), man-made eye-sores, and high-level noise pollution.

A last hope is envisaged for which, says the study, is to build a series of electric fences around the riverbank and lay out wildlife off-road access to the river and for having structures that suck out above trucking and planes, with lights at night. Another is said to have been built, a designated game corridor.

EXPERIENCE ZIMBABWE

Whenever you go in Zimbabwe, you will discover the warm hospitality style and comfort of a Zimbabwe Sun Hotel. Whether you're visiting the thundering Victoria Falls, fishing on Lake Kariba or game viewing at Hwange you'll find that our range of hotels and lodges, each with their own distinctive identity, are all perfectly appointed to ensure that your stay in Zimbabwe will be as memorable as the warmth of the sun.

For further details and booking information, please contact:
Hotel Management International
10 East Lane, Wokingham,
Middlesex HA0 3NU, ENGLAND
Tel: 081-908-0698, Fax: 081-908-6833

ZIMBABWE SUNS

"ZIMBABWE" was produced in its entirety by the Advertising Department of the International Herald Tribune. WRITER: Jan Raath is based in Harare. PROGRAM DIRECTOR: Bill Mahder.

See Zimbabwe, and you've seen Africa

Zimbabwe has it all. Everything you perceive as epitomising Africa. Its teeming wildlife in the vast untamed reserves. Its grandiose, panoramic landscapes, golden-brown in the perenial sun. The brooding ruins of an ancient city, testimony to a long-lost civilisation. The world's greatest and most spectacular cataract — the Victoria Falls — where the mighty Zambezi thunders over the vertical cleft to the chasm one-hundred metres below.

In contrast is its modern high-rise cities, complete with every facility, in a friendly, peaceful, politically-stable land. A land where a million visitors are enraptured every year.

A land brimming with investment opportunity.

For further information, please contact:
The Director, Zimbabwe Investment Centre,
Royal Mutual Building,
45 Baker Avenue, P.O. Box 5950, Harare, Zimbabwe.
Telephone: 757931-6 759911-6,
Fax: 757937 759917
Telex: 22481 ZICHRE ZW.

"Promoting Investment for Growth"

1443

Hotels

Rainbow Group of Hotels
- New Ambassador Hotel
- A'Zambezi River Lodge
- Rainbow Hotel
- Christmas Pass Hotel

Tours

- Tourism Services
- Zimbabwe

Conferences

- Harare International Conference Centre
- HICC Auxiliary Business
* Under Management Contracts

Investments

- Sheraton Harare Hotel*
- Zambezi River Lodges*

All the warmth of coming home.

Central Reservations

11th Floor Travel Centre, Third Street / Spoke Avenue
P.O. Box 5418 Harare. Tel: 733775-9/708125/729203/728303
Fax: 749685, Telex: 26467 ZW

PREMIUM EXPORT LAGER

IN TUNE WITH OUR TERRAIN

LANDELA SAFARIS

FOUR DELIGHTFUL LODGES — HARARE, LAKE KARIBA, HWANGE NATIONAL PARK AND AT VICTORIA FALLS — FOR FURTHER DETAILS AND BROCHURE CONTACT

United Kingdom Tel 071 262 3409 Fax 071 262 7792
Germany Tel 0897932615 Fax 0897934226
Zimbabwe Tel 4-734043/6 Fax 4-750785

More class

PERSONALISED SERVICE
THERE'S A DEEPER COMMITMENT TO YOUR WELLBEING BY OUR EXPERIENCED CABIN STAFF. AND YOU'LL ENJOY OUR DELICIOUS CUISINE.
MORE COMFORT
OUR NEW, EXECUTIVE CLASS SEATS GUARANTEE YOUR COMPLETE COMFORT MORE LEGROOM AND ANGLES OF RECLINE ALLOW FOR FULLY-RELAXED BODY SUPPORT.
MORE ENTERTAINMENT
A CHOICE OF SIX CHANNELS OF MOVIE ENTERTAINMENT ARE AVAILABLE ON YOUR PERSONAL VIDEO UNIT, OR TEN CHANNELS OF MUSIC ON YOUR PERSONAL MUSIC SET THE EXECUTIVE CLASS IS A TOTAL COMMITMENT TO YOU PERSONALLY. AND IF IT'S YOUR BUSINESS TO FLY, IT'S OURS TO MAKE FLYING A PLEASURE.

The Executive Class

FOR MORE INFORMATION, CONTACT AIR ZIMBABWE RESERVATIONS AND SALES. TEL: (071) 4913783, FAX: (071) 1358926.

MORE OF WHAT YOU'VE COME TO EXPECT

Dear Reader,
For further information on any of the following companies, tick the appropriate box(es) and send the completed coupon to:
International Herald Tribune, Supplements Department,
181 ave. Charles de Gaulle, 92521 Neuilly France.
Fax: (33-1) 46 37 50 44

☐ Air Zimbabwe ☐ Bushbuck Safaris
☐ Landela Safaris Adventures ☐ Zimbabwe Breweries
☐ Zimbabwe Investment Center ☐ Zimsun
☐ Zimbabwe Tourist Investment Company 6-12-94

Name: _____
Title: _____ Company: _____
Address: _____
City: _____ Country: _____
Fax: _____

150 من الاله

INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION: SPECIAL DIRECTORY

Executive Education

FRANCE

GRADUATE MANAGEMENT STUDIES IN FRANCE

Five Leading French Grandes Ecoles
CERAM Nice - ESC Lyon - ESCP (Paris)
ESSEC (Paris) - HEC (Paris) offer a two-year graduate programme:

MASTER'S IN MANAGEMENT

for students holding a first university degree or equivalent qualification (all majors). The degree is fully accredited by the French Ministry of Education.

A COMPREHENSIVE PROGRAMME

- Core courses in all major functional areas
- An in-company training period
- A period of in-depth study or a concentration in a specific area of management
- A Business Policy course

THREE PROGRAMME OPTIONS

- Management programme in French, offered by the five schools
- Management programme in French and English, offered by the five schools
- Management programme in English (first year) offered by ESCP, ESSEC and (HEC International Track)

UNIQUE STRENGTHS

- A focus on Europe
- Selectiveness and prestige
- A balanced approach to management education
- A close partnership with the business community
- The International dimension
- An excellent student/faculty ratio

For further information about the programmes and admission procedures, please write for a brochure to:

POLONIA HEBERT - CIAM/FRENCH GRADUATE MANAGEMENT ADMISSIONS BOARD
1, RUE DE LA LIBERATION - 78351 JOUY-EN-JOSAS, CEDEX
FRANCE
TEL: (33-1) 39 67 73 60

FRANCE

TEMPLE/IGS INTERNATIONAL MBA

Groupe IGS
Paris - Lyon

This AACSB - accredited MBA degree from Temple University, in collaboration with IGS is a one-year full-time multicountry program designed to prepare individuals for a career in global management.

- Internationally-focused courses taught in English
- Full semester in France (Paris or Lyon), Spring semester in Philadelphia
- Optional summer internship in Japan
- Executive mentoring & consulting experience

Admission: Bac + 4, IS BBA or equivalent
Program may last longer if business core courses required
Call or write Don Munday
Temple/IGS MBA
107 rue de Valenciennes 93007 Lyon
Tel: (33) 72 73 47 83 - Fax: (33) 72 72 93 57

Georgia Tech Lorraine

The European Extension of the Georgia Institute of Technology

MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS FOR THE 21st CENTURY

Degree and Non Degree Programs in Management of Technology

For information:
Tel: (33) 87.20.39.39
Fax: (33) 87.20.39.40

U.S.A.

FLYING LESSONS, WHARTON STYLE.

Let Wharton's management faculty help you fly above the clouds for a global perspective on your business.

Need a flight plan for managing in Europe, the Pacific Rim or emerging economies around the world? Look to Wharton's faculty for innovative thinking. From Howard Perlmutter's groundbreaking concept of "the global civilization and multinational corporation" to the Lauder Institute's dual MA/MBA degree program for international management studies - Wharton has been on the leading edge from the beginning. This rich tradition of innovation is the foundation for our executive education programs which incorporate a unique blend of scholarly excellence and real-world pragmatism. These insightful, dynamic courses offer business people new perspectives and a chance to refocus priorities. Are you running low on ideas to keep your business on course? Come to Wharton Executive Education. Then put what you learn to work and fly circles around the competition.

- Implementing Strategy
April 30 - May 5, 1995
September 10 - 15, 1995
- Integrating Finance and Marketing: A Strategic Framework
February 5 - 10, 1995
September 10 - 15, 1995
- Sales Force Management
February 26 - March 3, 1995
July 23 - 28, 1995

- Wharton Executive Development Program: The Transition from Functional to General Management
February 5 - 17, 1995
May 7 - 19, 1995
October 29 - November 10, 1995
- International Forum
January 18 - 20, 1995 (Europe)
April 19 - 23, 1995 (Asia)
September 6 - 10, 1995 (USA)

Call today for a complete catalog listing over thirty different courses in finance, management, strategy and marketing. (215) 898-1776, ext. 1399.

WHARTON EXECUTIVE EDUCATION

Aresty Institute of Executive Education • 255 S. 38th Street • Phila., PA 19104-6359
1-800-255-EXEC ext. 1399 • (215) 898-1776 • FAX Attn: Dept. 1399 (215) 386-4384

SWITZERLAND

Degree from SWITZERLAND
HACHIMOTO MASTER/MBA
Part-time, full-time, Off-Campus Distance Learning Programs
Your Effort & Persistence are required, your achievement is NOT!
For Details: Center for Management Studies,
Avenue de France 6
CH-1950 Sion/VS, Switzerland
Tel: +41-27-220937, Fax: +41-27-366382

SPAIN

Don't settle for less.

The University of Chicago International Executive M.B.A. Program at Barcelona

- Join our intensive part-time program for experienced managers.
- Applications are now being accepted for the next session which begins in July.

To find out more, attend an information reception:

In Paris
Tuesday,
December 13, 6:30 p.m.
U.S. Consulate
2 rue Saint Florentin

In Milan
Wednesday,
December 14, 6:30 p.m.
Hotel Michelangelo
Via Scarlatti 33

University of Chicago Professor Marvin Zonis will deliver a presentation at each reception titled "Winners and Losers in the Coming Global Boom."

To confirm your attendance at a reception — or to receive more information — call or fax:

International Executive M.B.A. Program at Barcelona
The University of Chicago Graduate School of Business

Aragón 271
08007 Barcelona
Spain
Tel: +34 3 488 33 80
Fax: +34 3 488 34 66

1101 East 58th Street
Chicago, Illinois 60637
U.S.A.
Tel: +1 312 702 2191
Fax: +1 312 702 2225

Colleges & Universities

U.S.A.

Building Bridges Through Intercultural Relations

A unique master's degree program at Lesley College Graduate School, for men and women interested in a career in the intercultural relations field with specializations in:

- Intercultural Training and Consulting
- Managing Culturally Diverse Human Resources
- Foreign Student Advising/ International Educational Exchange
- Multicultural Education
- Development Project Administration
- Intercultural Health and Human Services

Classes are offered in the late afternoon and evening allowing full-time or part-time enrollment in the Master of Arts degree program in Intercultural Relations.

For more information, please contact:
Zareen Karani Lam de Araoz, Ph.D., Director
(617) 349-8365 or (800) 999-1959 ext. 8365.

Intercultural Relations Program
Lesley College Graduate School
29 Everett Street, Cambridge, MA 02138
(617) 349-8365 or (800) 999-1959 ext. 8365

FRANCE

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY OF PARIS

Etablissement d'enseignement supérieur privé

AUP prepares its students to be a part of an increasingly global society.

Bachelor of Arts: Art History, Comparative Literature, European Cultural Studies, French Studies, Int'l Affairs, Int'l Business Administration, Int'l Economics, Modern History.

Bachelor of Science: Applied Economics, Computer Science, new 5-year Engineering program in cooperation with the University of Alabama at Huntsville.

Contact: The Office of Admissions,
BP 134, 31, avenue Bosquet, 75007 Paris, France.
Tel. (33) 1 40 62 06 00 Fax (33) 1 47 05 34 32

AUP, The American university in Europe.

U.S.A.

Earn an MBA in International Business in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Saint Mary's College of California offers an International MBA program that is designed to integrate a global perspective on business with a conceptually rigorous exposure to the analytical skills and functional knowledge typical of MBA programs. This challenging, full-time 72 unit program is offered in an accelerated 13 month format. The program commences on October 2, 1995.

Founded in 1863, Saint Mary's College has been rated among the top ten regional universities in the western United States by U.S. News and World Report. The College enrolls 4,000 students and is located on a beautiful 425 acre campus 21 miles from San Francisco and 10 miles from Berkeley.

To receive an application and a catalog, mail your name and address to: Saint Mary's College, Graduate Business Programs, P.O. Box 4240, Moraga, California, 94575 USA. Or, FAX to (510) 376-6521. Telephone: (510) 631-4500.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE OF CALIFORNIA

Colleges & Universities

ITALY

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY OF ROME

DEGREE PROGRAMS
A.A. Interdisciplinary Studies
A.A. Business Administration
B.B.A. International Business
B.A. International Relations
B.A. Italian Studies
B.A. Interdisciplinary Studies

SUMMER SESSIONS

SEMIESTER STUDY ABROAD PROGRAM
HOUSING IN STUDIO APARTMENTS

The American University of Rome is accredited by the Accrediting Council for Independent Colleges and Schools and is affiliated with major U.S. institutions.

For further information contact:
American University of Rome
Dept. 601, Via Pietro Roselli 4-00153 Rome, Italy.
Tel.: 06/583 30019 - Fax: 06/583 30922

MEXICO

UNIVERSIDAD AUTÓNOMA DE GUADALAJARA SCHOOL OF MEDICINE in Guadalajara, Mexico

The International Choice

We are proud to have 8,000 successful U.S. graduates

For information, please call or write our U.S.A. office:
210-561-9559 • fax 210-561-9562
10999 I-10 West, Suite 355 • San Antonio, Texas 78230

UNIVERSITE DE PARIS SORBONNE

Centre Expérimental d'Etude de la Civilisation Française associée à l'Université

COURS DE CIVILISATION FRANÇAISE DE LA SORBONNE

DE LA SORBONNE

GRADUATE COURSES

- University Courses
- "MAGISTÈRE de langue et de Civilisation Française" (équivalent à M.A. credit U.S.A.)
- Summer Session for Foreign Teachers and Students
- Courses for Teachers of French Language and Civilization
- Special seminars on request

Options in Economics and Commercial Studies in each session:
• "Certificat Pratique de Français des Affaires"
• "Diplôme Supérieur de Français des Affaires"
• "Diplôme approfondi du Français des Affaires"

Diplomas and certificates from the Sorbonne and the Paris Chamber of Commerce and Industry. Residency visa required. Inquire at the Cultural section of the French Embassy.
Apply to: COURS DE CIVILISATION FRANÇAISE,
47 rue des Ecoles, 75005 Paris. Tel.: (33-1) 40 46 22 11 - Fax: (33-1) 40 46 32 29

INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION SPECIAL DIRECTORY

Colleges & Universities

ITALY

JOHN CABOT UNIVERSITY

An American University in the Heart of Rome

- Bachelor's degrees with majors in Business Administration, International Affairs, Art History and English Literature.
- Quarter Calendar with five-week Summer Session: Begin studies in September, January, April, or June.
- Study Abroad & Transfer Students welcome.
- International student body from over 30 different countries.
- Advanced Placement for International Baccalaureate, Maturita, or equivalent diplomas.
- American Language Program: Intensive English language preparation for university admission.

John Cabot University is affiliated with Hiram College in Ohio. Students may study abroad at other American universities while working toward their degrees. Many graduates pursue Master's degree programs at universities in the United States and Europe.

For further information contact:
John Cabot University
Via della Lungara, 233 - 00165 Rome - ITALY
Tel. +39/6/6878881 - Fax +39/6/6832088

SWITZERLAND

Schiller International University

AMERICAN COLLEGE of SWITZERLAND

"Providing a multi-cultural atmosphere, stability and security on an 11 acre campus with excellent residential facilities"

University degree programs

(A.A., B.A., B.S., M.B.A.) in:

- Liberal Arts • International Business Administration
- Economics • International Political Studies
- French Language, Literature & Civilization

Fully accredited by ACICS Washington DC, USA

Collegium Palatinum courses in Intensive French

Preparatory program for university entrance:

designed for those seeking to complete their last year of secondary school in a university atmosphere. Small, tutorial type courses catering to individual needs.

The American College of Switzerland
Dept 1284 HTACS1, CH 1854 Leysin

Tel: (025) 34 22 23 • Fax: (025) 34 13 46

NO COST EVALUATION (505) 889-2711

6400 Upson Blvd. NE, Suite 200-W Dept. 50
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87110, U.S.A.

Century University

GUIDED INDEPENDENT STUDY PROGRAM

Bachelor, Master, Doctorate

• Business Administration • Engineering

• Health Care Management • Education

Earn a bachelor, master or doctoral degree. Use your past experience as credit toward your degree. No classes, seminars or on-campus attendance. Studies build upon your experience, relate to your career. Self-paced. Open time schedule. Distinguished faculty advisors. Act now to advance your career.

• SEND RESUME FOR NO COST EVALUATION (505) 889-2711

6400 Upson Blvd. NE, Suite 200-W Dept. 50
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87110, U.S.A.

Century University

THE NETHERLANDS

EUROPEAN INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL COMMUNICATION

The European Institute for International Communication (E.I.I.C.-Emerson) in Maastricht, the Netherlands, is the international branch of Emerson College in Boston, the only fully accredited university in the United States, since 1880 devoted exclusively to educating communication professionals.

Bachelor's Degree Programs:

- Video • Audio • Film
- Print & Broadcast Journalism
- Management & Organizational Communication
- Advertising • Public Relations

One-year intensive Master's Degree:

Global Marketing Communication & Advertising

For more information contact:

E.I.I.C.-Emerson • Office of Admission
Brusselsestraat 84 • 6211 PH Maastricht • the Netherlands
Tel: +31 43 258282 • Fax: +31 43 255350

INTERNATIONAL

EDUCATION FOR INTERNATIONAL CAREERS

Associate, Bachelor's and Master's degrees at our campuses in Florida • London • Strasbourg • Paris

Heidelberg • Berlin • Madrid • Engelberg and at the American College of Switzerland, Leysin

- Business Administration and other business majors
- International Hotel / Tourism Management
- International Relations / Diplomacy
- Computer Systems Management • Economics
- Psychology • Public Administration
- Engineering Management
- Pre-Medicine • Commercial Art • Liberal Arts
- French, German

The Leysin Institute of Art & Design
Advertising • Design • Promotion Marketing

For Catalog, Viewbook or Informational Video, write or call:

SCHILLER INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY
Dept 12/84 HTHM1 • 51 Waterloo Road • London SE1 8TX • England

Tel: (071) 926 8484 • Fax (071) 620 1226

www.schiller-international.com

FRANCE

CENTRE D'ETUDES FRANCO-AMERICAIN DE MANAGEMENT

STUDY IN FRANCE

at an American University in Lyon

Working with accredited American Universities, CEPAM accepts business majors who wish to spend a semester or academic year discovering Europe, while acquiring important international credentials.

- All courses in English (American Professors)
- Tuition: $3,000 per semester
- France's 2nd largest city
- International student body, downtown campus
- Degree programs available (BBA and MBA)

Contact: David Russell - CEPAM
107, rue de Marseille - 69007 LYON

Tel: (33) 72-73-47-83 • Fax: (33) 72-72-93-57

Art & Design Schools

FRANCE

PARSONS PARIS SCHOOL OF DESIGN

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN EDUCATION • B.A. & M.F.A. DEGREE PROGRAMS

U.S.A.

Design at Harvard

Architecture
Landscape Architecture
Urban Design

CAREER DISCOVERY PROGRAM

June 19-July 28, 1995

For people of all ages considering career choices or changes

Harvard University
Graduate School of Design
Career Discovery Box 41
48 Quincy Street
Cambridge, MA 02138
617-495-3422

GREAT BRITAIN

Earn Your American University Degree at a College in London

M.B.A. in International Business, Bachelor's & Associate degrees in Business Administration, Commercial Art, Fashion Design, Fashion Marketing, Interior Design and Video Production

You'll feel right at home studying with other American and international students who have chosen The American College in London

U.S. accredited and degree granting. Terms begin October, January, March, June and July. Housing and job placement services available. Study abroad opportunities to sister campuses in Atlanta and Los Angeles

For further information or a prospectus contact:

The American College in London

110 Marylebone High Street, London W1M 3DB England

Tel: (071) 486-1772 • Fax: (071) 935-8144

Classes begin January, March, June, July and October.

FRANCE

Georgia Tech Lorraine

Metz, France

The European Extension of the Georgia Institute of Technology

Atlanta, Georgia, USA

offers at the heart of Europe, Euro-American graduate programs leading to the American Master of Science and American Ph.D. and Advanced Degrees from selected European Universities

DEGREES AND DOUBLE DEGREES OFFERED:

- Master of Science in Electrical Engineering from the Georgia Institute of Technology, USA
- Ph.D. from the Georgia Institute of Technology, USA
- Diplomes d'Etudes Approfondies from French Universities
- Diplomes de Specialisation from French Engineering Schools

Contact:

Georgia Tech Lorraine, 2 et 3, rue Miroult, F-57070 Metz, France

Tel: +33 87 20 39 39 Fax: +33 87 20 39 40

or Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta, GA 30332-0252, USA

Tel: +1 (404) 894-2927 Fax: +1 (404) 894-2997

U.S.A.

CHADWICK ACCREDITED
DEGREE GRANTING UNIVERSITY
For free information call
1-205-323-6191

U.S.A.

B.S. & M.S. in Computer Science
• ALL COURSES HOME STUDY
• Increase your earning power
• Approved for tuition reimbursement by leading corporations
For free information call
1-205-323-6191

GREAT BRITAIN

BE A WRITER OR JOURNALIST

Specialist courses covering Journalism, Fiction or Feature Writing and English for Business. Home study by post or attend our NUJ recognised courses in London. Overseas students welcome. Prospectus from:

The London School of Journalism

Dept. HT, 22 Upbrook Mews, Bayswater, LONDON, W2 3HG

Tel: +44 71 706 3536 Fax: +44 71 706 3780

Day & Boarding Schools

SWITZERLAND

International Education for the 21st Century

- Coeducational boarding school, grades 9-12, 13th year
- University preparation: International Baccalaureate, Advanced Placement, US High School Diploma; excellent examination results
- Accredited by Middle States Association and ECIS
- Recreation, excursions, sports, ski program, family atmosphere
- SUMMER PROGRAMS: JUNE - AUGUST
- Summer in Switzerland: ages 14-19, Alpine Adventure, ages 10-13
- English as a Second Language, French, international theater, computer studies, arts & crafts, sports, activities, excursions
- Located in beautiful Alpine resort of Leysin above Lake Geneva

LEYSIN AMERICAN SCHOOL IN SWITZERLAND

Tel: +41 (26) 333 777 Fax: +41 (26) 3415 85

CH 1854-38 Leysin, Switzerland

FRANCE

THE INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL OF MONACO

ECOLE INTERNATIONALE DE MONACO

OFFERS A TRUE BILINGUAL EDUCATION TO STUDENTS FROM PRE-KINDERGARTEN TO GRADE 5

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT:

DR. EUGENE STEVENS, HEADMASTER,

12, QUAI ANTOINE-LE, MC 98000 MONACO, TEL. 93 25 68 26, FAX 93 25 68 30

U.S.A.

HOFSTRA

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Bilingualism, Computer Science, Clinical and School Psychology, Educational Administration, Electron Microscopy, Literature, History, Speech Pathology, Business Administration, and Oral Biology. Sixty-five graduate programs at the master's or doctoral levels. AACSB accredited M.B.A. Programs; NCATE accredited School of Education Library holding over 1.3 million volumes.

For admissions information, write:
Dean of Admissions, Hofstra University, Hempstead, NY 11550

HOFSTRA UNIVERSITY
WE TEACH SUCCESS

AA/EOE

U.S.A.

FREE VIDEO
BABS MSBBA PHD
Bus. & Pub. Adm. • Psychology
Computer Sci. • Engineering
Health Care Mgt. • Tourism
Criminal Justice Mgt. • Grad
Teacher Prep. • and others
(504) 624-2977
LA SALLE UNIVERSITY

Ross University

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Guaranteed U. S. Clinical Rotations

SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

Clinical Rotations in U.S. Vet Schools

Our Graduates are in Private Practice throughout the U.S.

Financial Aid Available

Accepting Applications For Both Schools

Call or Write:

ROSS UNIVERSITY

460 W. 34th Street, New York, NY 10001

(212) 278-3500

Take your place in a career that's going places.

NYU's Master of Science programs in Real Estate, Tourism and Travel, and Hospitality

They're careers that are rapidly changing, quickly growing—and full of potential for the 90's.

Learn from people who've already made it in Real Estate, Tourism and Travel, and Hospitality—at New York University's School of Continuing Education.

Located in what may well be the international center for all three of these industries, NYU offers unparalleled master's programs taught by leading industry professionals. Each is career-specific, so you get the precise background and skills you need to advance in these high-profile industries.

The Master of Science in Real Estate is a 38-credit full- or part-time program. You may specialize in development and investment, valuation and analysis, and international real estate markets.

The Master of Science in Tourism and Travel Management is a 38-credit evening program that will expand general management proficiency as well as develop industry-specific skills.

The Master of Science in Hospitality Industry Studies is a 38-credit full- or part-time program that focuses on real estate, financing and marketing, as well as hotel operations.

For more information, mail or fax the coupon. For Tourism and Travel, or Hospitality call 212-790-1340. Or for Real Estate call 212-790-1335.

School of Continuing Education
New York University
7 East 12th Street, 11th Floor, New York, NY 10003
Fax to: 212-995-3656

Please send me more information about your Master of Science programs in:

- ☐ Real Estate
- ☐ Tourism and Travel Management
- ☐ Hospitality Industry Studies

Name _____

Address _____

City/State/Zip _____

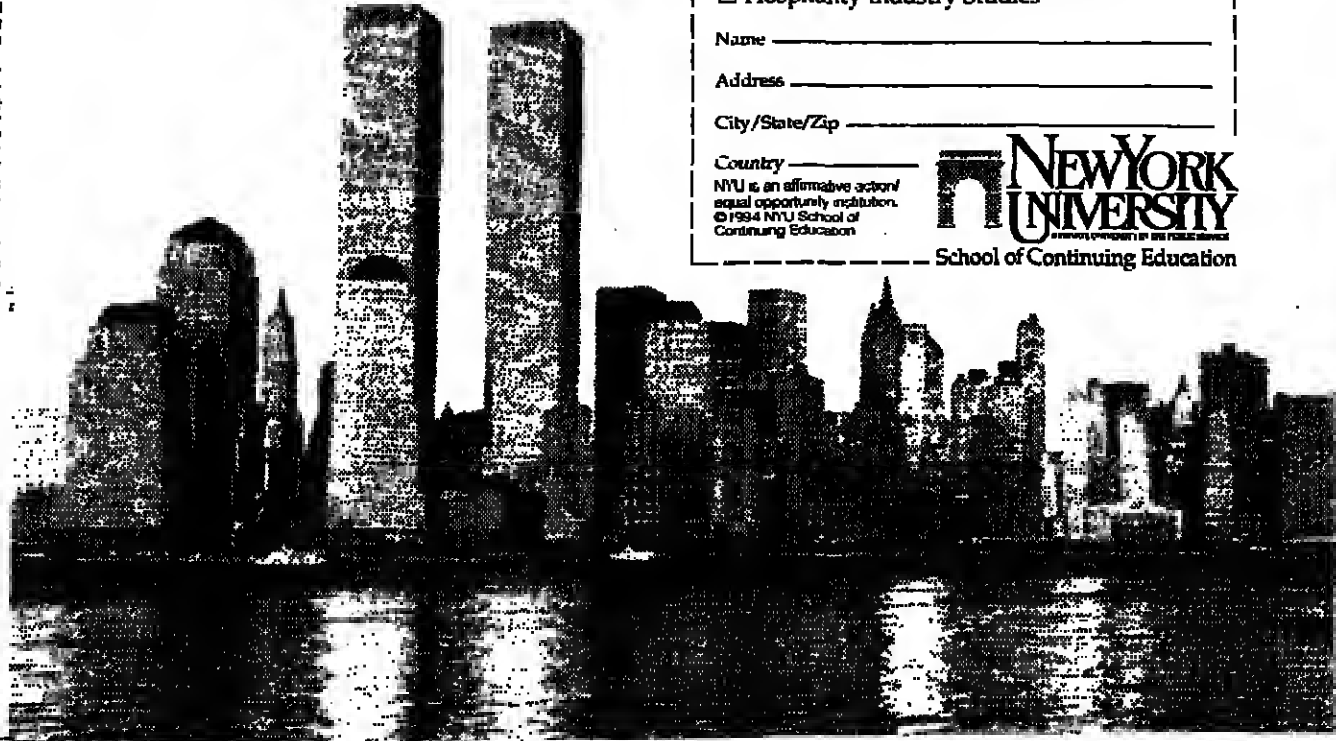

Country _____

NYU is an affirmative action equal opportunity institution.

© 1994 NYU School of Continuing Education

School of Continuing Education

SPORTS

Bills Bolt Back Into Contention as NFL Playoff Races Enter Home Stretch

The Associated Press
Don't count the Buffalo Bills, or several other teams, out of the National Football League's playoff race.

Jim Kelly threw for four touchdowns, two to Andre Reed, who also completed the first pass of his 10-year NFL career, as Buffalo prevailed in a 42-31 shoot-out Sunday in Miami. The Bills, who have been hammered in the last four Super Bowls, scored 35 points in the second half.

"This was a stepping stone for us," Kelly said. "If everyone does their job, there's no telling what we're capable of."

The day's results did nothing to clear up the playoff picture with three weeks remaining. Dallas (11-2) clinched the NFC East title with an easy victory in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh secured at least a wild-card in the AFC by winning in Cincinnati.

The Steelers got sole possession of first place in the AFC Central when Cleveland lost to the New York Giants.

But with 13 of the league's 28 teams at 500 or within a game of it entering Monday night's Raiders-Chargers game in San Diego, the scramble for the playoffs has gotten wild.

Already in San Francisco, which routed Atlanta and has secured the NFC West crown, San Diego wins the AFC West title by beating Los Angeles.

Denver, despite losing John Elway to a knee injury—he will be diagnosed further—moved into a tie with Kansas City in the AFC West at 7-6 with an overtime victory. New England and Buffalo remained tied at 7-6, with the Patriots beating the New York Jets. The Indianapolis Colts moved up to 6-7 by winning in Seattle.

In the NFC East, the Eagles fell to 7-6, one game in front of the Giants and Arizona, which beat Houston. Detroit's victory over Green Bay gave it a 7-6 mark and dropped the Packers to 6-7 in the Central. The Falcons are 6-7 in the West.

AFC EAST
Bills 42, Dolphins 31: The Bills were sensational in the second half, getting some breaks and making all the big plays. They have won 15 of 18 games.

NFL ROUNDOUP

against the Dolphins since 1987, including eight of nine at Joe Robbie Stadium, site of this season's Super Bowl.

"We had some lucky plays," said the Bills' coach, Marv Levy. "But you've got to do something with it after you get the lucky plays."

The lucky plays included Don Beebe's 72-yard touchdown on a ball that was tipped; Reed's throw to Bill Brooks for 32 yards after Reed had dropped the ball; Mike Dumas's catch of Yonel Jourdain's fumble on a kickoff return, which he turned into a 63-yard play to set up a touchdown.

Patriots 24, Jets 13: In Foxboro, Massachusetts, the Patriots also got a crucial interception touchdown, as Ricky Reynolds scored from 11 yards after stealing Boomer Esiason's pass.

The Jets' Art Monk tied Steve Largent's NFL record of 177 straight games with a catch, on a 7-yard completion from Esiason with 3:25 left in the first quarter.

Colts 31, Seahawks 19: Marshall Faulk gained 129 yards for Indianapolis, and has 1,086 yards this season, a single-season rookie rushing record for the team. Seattle lost quarterback Rick Mirer with a broken thumb on his left (nonthrowing) hand and played listlessly after an auto accident that left defensive tackle Mike Frier paralyzed and with pneumonia.

Running back Chris Warren, also injured in the crash, played and rushed for 81 yards.

AFC CENTRAL
Steelers 38, Bengals 15: Pittsburgh's overpowering defense got plenty of help from its offense as Bam Morris rushed for 108 yards and two touchdowns and Rod Woodson returned one of Pittsburgh's two interceptions for a touchdown.

The Steelers have two five straight for the first time since 1983.

Giants 16, Browns 13: Backup kicker Brad Daluiso was good on a 33-yard field goal with 19 seconds to go. Daluiso, usually used only on kickoffs, kicked three field goals after David Treadwell was benched for missing a 37-yarder in the first half.

The Browns (8-4) could have clinched their first playoff berth since 1989, but committed turnovers on four of their first five second-half possessions. Vinny Testaverde threw two interceptions and lost a fumble.

AFC WEST
Broncos 20, Chiefs 17: Elway was replaced in Kansas City by Hugh Miller, who led the Broncos to their winning field goal, a 34-yarder by Jason Elam in overtime. Denver has rallied from a 0-4 start.

Steve Bono, starting for the injured Joe Montana, hit 61- and 62-yard passes for Kansas City, which has lost three of its last four. The Chiefs made it 17-15 on Bono's 62-yard touchdown pass to Willie Davis with 7:08 left, then forged a 17-17 tie on Bono's two-point conversion pass to Davis.

The Broncos' Shane Dronett blocked Lin Elliott's 37-yard field goal attempt as time expired, then Elam won it in overtime.

NFC EAST

Cowboys 31, Eagles 19: Dallas (11-2) won its 14th straight division game as Emmitt Smith carried 25 times for 91 yards and two touchdowns, and Michael Irvin had 117 yards and a touchdown on four receptions. It was Philadelphia's fourth straight loss.

The big play was made by safety Darren Woodson. With Philadelphia at the Dallas 8, he picked off Randall Cunningham's pass and went 94 yards for a touchdown.

Cardinals 30, Oilers 12: Arizona handed Houston (1-12) its ninth consecutive defeat with its usually powerful defense, which forced six turnovers, while the previously dormant offense got three touchdowns.

NFC CENTRAL

Lions 34, Packers 31: Barry Sanders, the league's leading rusher, gained 188 yards and scored a touchdown as he broke his single-season rushing record. Sanders now has 1,594 yards, and is 406 shy of becoming the third player in NFL history to rush for 2,000 yards.

The Lions' quarterback, Dave Krieg, passed for 196 yards and two touchdowns without any interceptions.

Raiders 26, Redskins 21: In Tampa Bay, Craig Erickson's quarterback sneak with 32 seconds left gave the Bucs (4-9) consecutive victories for the first time since September 1992. Erickson gained a team record 192 yards on 40 carries.

Washington (2-11) has lost five straight. It got touchdowns on Heath Shuler's passes of 81 yards to Desmond Howard and 77 yards to Orlando Tuit.

NFC WEST

49ers 50, Falcons 14: San Francisco, which is also 11-2 but has beaten Dallas, forced five turnovers that led to 17 points. Steve Young threw for three touchdowns and ran for two in guiding the 49ers to their eighth consecutive victory.

Young completed 22 of 33 passes for 294 yards, shaking off an interception return for a touchdown by defensive end Chuck Smith that ended a string of 123 passes without being picked off.

Saints 31, Rams 15: Mario Bates ran for three touchdowns and Jim Everett guided New Orleans (5-8) to a 21-point half-time lead in Anaheim, where he was used to play quarterback for the Rams (4-9).

There were eight interceptions returned for touchdowns in the week's NFL games, with a game tied Monday night.

The last time so many interceptions were run back for scores was on Sept. 23, 1984.

Two Woodsons scored; Darren Woodson of Dallas went 94 yards against Philadelphia and Rod Woodson of Pittsburgh went 27 yards against Cincinnati.

The others were by Andre Collins, Washington, 92 yards at Tampa Bay; DeWayne Washington of Minnesota, 54 yards against Chicago on Thursday night; Ray Buchanan of Indianapolis, 37 in Seattle; Chris Dishman of Houston, 36, against Arizona; Chuck Smith of Atlanta, 36, in San Francisco; and Ricky Reynolds of New England, 11 against the Jets.

Bowl Dates
A Plus for Penn State

By Malcolm Moran
New York Times Service

ATLANTA — When a national championship is an expectation and perfection becomes the goal, it makes little difference when the disappointment arrives or what form it takes. The end of Alabama's hopes, with the 24-23 loss to Florida in the Southeastern Conference championship game, seemed no more traumatic than the end of the Crimson Tide just came later.

As a politically bizarre year of college football reaches the pause before the final Saturday of the regular season, it is hard to produce a set of winners and losers.

Although the regular season had already ended for Nebraska and Penn State, the last two contenders with perfect records, the elimination of the Crimson Tide and a unique bowl schedule combined to give the Cornhuskers one additional complication and the Nittany Lions one small added edge.

Nebraska maintained its lead over Penn State in the polls that determine a champion. The Cornhuskers reached the top spot in the final regular-season polls for the second time in Tom Osborne's 22 years as head coach and the first time since 1983, when Nebraska faced a challenge similar to the one it will deal with next month. Then, and now, the Husker season will be defined by a game against Miami at the Orange Bowl, the home field of the Hurricanes.

Alabama's loss removed a significant obstacle from a Miami hope that could have seemed unthinkable two months ago, and that is where the timing of the schedule becomes a factor.

Leonard Russell vaulted through the Kansas City defense for 16 yards to put Jason Elam in range for a 34-yard field goal in overtime that gave the Broncos a 20-17 victory.

Miami's chances will depend on a Penn State loss to Oregon in the Rose Bowl, a game that has preceded the Orange Bowl in each of the past 30 games since the game in Miami became a prime-time event in 1965. With Jan. 1 falling on a Sunday this year, almost all of the major bowls took the customary step of moving their games back one day. The Orange Bowl, seizing an opportunity of avoiding a confrontation with the Sugar Bowl, chose to remain on Jan. 1.

If the Orange Bowl had continued its past practice, Miami would have known early in the evening whether Penn State had won or lost. But that information will not be available this time, a factor that will give the Hurricanes one more reason to believe and will intensify Nebraska's problem of playing for a championship on the road.

SCOREBOARD

NFL Standings

AMERICAN CONFERENCE

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
Miami	8	5	0	415	311	249
Buffalo	7	4	0	338	279	254
New England	7	4	0	328	269	279
N.Y. Jets	6	7	0	442	241	257
Indianapolis	6	7	0	442	274	257

CENTRAL

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
Pittsburgh	10	3	0	349	251	187
Cleveland	9	4	0	392	279	154
Kansas City	7	7	0	354	216	221
Houston	1	12	0	377	379	359

WEST

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
San Diego	7	6	0	250	291	254
Denver	7	6	0	308	282	242
Kansas City	7	6	0	328	241	228
L.A. Raiders	6	7	0	328	279	254
Seattle	5	8	0	265	246	257

NATIONAL CONFERENCE

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
Atlanta	11	2	0	444	366	198
Philadelphia	7	6	0	338	242	242
N.Y. Giants	6	7	0	442	274	257
Arizona	6	7	0	442	274	257
Washington	2	11	0	154	267	357

CENTRAL

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
Atlanta	8	5	0	415	311	249
Chicago	7	6	0	415	311	249
Green Bay	7	6	0	415	311	249
Tampa Bay	7	6	0	415	311	249
Tampa Bay	7	6	0	415	311	249

WEST

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
San Francisco	11	2	0	544	411	241
Atlanta	6	7	0	442	274	257
New Orleans	5	8	0	388	279	254
L.A. Rams	4	9	0	388	279	254

WILDCARD STANDINGS

Team	W	L	T	Pts	PF	PA
Dallas 31, Philadelphia 19	11	2	0	444	366	198
New England 24, New York Jets 13	7	6	0	442	274	257
Pittsburgh 38, Cincinnati 15	10	3	0	349	251	187
Tampa Bay 26, Washington 21	7	6	0	308	282	242
Detroit 34, Green Bay 13	7	6	0	328	241	228
Atlanta 30, Houston 12	8	5	0	415	311	249
San Francisco 30, Atlanta 14	11	2	0	544	411	241
Denver 23, Kansas City 17, OT	7	6	0	415	311	249
Indianapolis 31, Seattle 19	6	7	0	442	274	257
New Orleans 31, Los Angeles Rams 15	7	6	0	415	311	249
New York Giants 16, Cleveland 13	6	7	0	442	274	257
Buffalo 42, Miami 31	8	5	0	415	311	249

The AP Top 25

Rank	Team	Record	Points	Prev.
1	Nebraska (8)	12-0-0	1,254	1
2	Penn St. (24)	11-0-0	1,251	2
3	Miami	10-1-0	1,239	3
4	Colorado	10-1-0	1,236	4
5	Florida	10-1-1	1,213	5
6	Alabama	11-1-0	1,217	6
7	Florida St.	11-1-1	1,211	7
8	Texas A&M	10-0-1	1,081	8
9	Auburn	9-1-1	1,057	9
10	Colorado St.	10-1-0	968	10
11	Kansas St.	9-2-0	942	11
12	Oregon	9-3-0	916	12
13	Ohio St.	9-3-0	781	13

NBA Standings

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Atlantic Division

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Orlando	11	3	.786	0
New York	8	5	.615	2 1/2
Boston	7	6	.538	4 1/2
Philadelphia	6	8	.429	5 1/2
Washington	5	8	.385	6 1/2
New Jersey	4	11	.269	8 1/2
Atlanta	4	9	.308	9 1/2

Central Division

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Indiana	9	5	.643	0
Cleveland	7	8	.464	1 1/2
Chicago	6	7	.455	1 1/2
Detroit	5	7	.417	1 1/2
Charlotte	5	7	.417	1 1/2
Illinois	5	7	.417	1 1/2
Milwaukee	5	7	.417	1 1/2

WESTERN CONFERENCE

Midwest Division

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Houston	11	4	.730	0
Utah	10	6	.625	1 1/2
Denver	8	6	.571	3 1/2
Dallas	6	6	.500	5 1/2
San Antonio	7	7	.500	5 1/2
Minnesota	7	7	.500	5 1/2

Pacific Division

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Phoenix	17	5	.773	0
Seattle	10	5	.667	1 1/2
L.A. Lakers	9	6	.600	1 1/2
Golden State	7	7	.500	3 1/2
Portland	7	7	.500	3 1/2
Sacramento	7	7	.500	3 1/2
L.A. Clippers	6	8	.430	4 1/2

SUNDAY'S GAME

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Atlanta	8	5	.615	0
Phoenix	17	5	.773	0
Utah	10	6	.625	1 1/2
Denver	8	6	.571	3 1/2
Dallas	6	6	.500	5 1/2
San Antonio	7	7	.500	5 1/2
Minnesota	7	7	.500	5 1/2

SECOND DIVISION

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Orlando	11	3	.786	0
New York	8	5	.615	2 1/2
Boston	7	6	.538	4 1/2
Philadelphia	6	8	.429	5 1/2
Washington	5	8	.385	6 1/2
New Jersey	4	11	.269	8 1/2
Atlanta	4	9	.308	9 1/2

THIRD DIVISION

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Orlando	11	3	.786	0
New York	8	5	.615	2 1/2
Boston	7	6	.538	4 1/2
Philadelphia	6	8	.429	5 1/2
Washington	5	8	.385	6 1/2
New Jersey	4	11	.269	8 1/2
Atlanta	4	9	.308	9 1/2

FOURTH DIVISION

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Orlando	11	3	.786	0
New York	8	5	.615	2 1/2
Boston	7	6	.538	4 1/2
Philadelphia	6	8	.429	5 1/2
Washington	5	8	.385	6 1/2
New Jersey	4	11	.269	8 1/2
Atlanta	4	9	.308	9 1/2

FIFTH DIVISION

Team	W	L	Pct	GB
Orlando	11	3	.786	0
New York	8	5	.615	2 1/2
Boston	7	6	.538	4 1/2
Philadelphia	6	8	.429	5 1/2
Washington	5	8	.385	6 1/2
New Jersey	4	11	.269

هكذا من الراحل